If Sarah Palin's not running for president, what a terrible waste that would be of the single best stump speech I've heard since, well, Palin's '08 convention speech, which just happened to be the single most electrifying political moment of my adult life.

If you want to know why Obama's Palace Guards in the MSM are determined to destroy this woman and all of popular culture has risen up to help, press PLAY >

Many years ago, back in the old Western days, a guy in Colorado built himself a nice house with a nice fireplace.He thought those 'rocks' were regular rocks.He didn't know they were oil shale 'rocks'.When he invited some of his frinds over for a house warming party and he lit that fireplace up, the whole house burned down.

Yet another Useful Liberal Fascist JackAss Idiot parroting twisted Communist Party propaganda lies.

The only movie this inbred bastard Marxist video61@tcq.net has seen in his white supremist KKK northern home of Stacy, Minnesota http://www.yellowpages.com/stacy-mn/movie-theaters

...is "Inbred" http://www.inbredmovie.com

The Inbred video61@tcq.net racist makeup of Stacy, Minnesota

White - 1,343 (95.7%)
German - 425 (33.3%)
Norwegian - 203 (15.9%)
Swedish - 155 (12.1%)
Irish - 132 (10.3%)

French - 121 (9.5%)
Polish - 74 (5.8%)
Italian - 36 (2.8%)
English - 34 (2.7%)
Danish - 28 (2.2%)

Hispanic - 35 (2.5%)
Two or more races - 22 (1.6%)
African American - 19 (1.25%)
Asian - 3 (0.2%)
American Indian - 1 (0.07%)

You can't hide in your closet any longer.
We all know how racist inbred Marxists like you must confuse the ignorant masses with twisted lies in order to win them over.

NAZI Origins of LIBERAL FASCISTS Global Warming - While this may sound odd to many who have bought into the Marxian propaganda over the years that the Nazis were right wing capitalistic extremists, Greens who signed up for the Nazi Party were actually very typical of the day. Between 60% and 70% of the German Greens were NAZI Party members, compared to only 10% of the population at large.

The LIBERAL FASCIST Path to Socialism:

Pt.1 http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=fPyoEbU_wc4
Pt.2 http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Dvuxr7v4xzk

"Just as the Left was drawn to the communist killing machines of Lenin, Stalin, Mao, Pol Pot, and Castro, so too it is now attracted to radical Islam."

"The contempt that German Hitlerytes had for "Bolshevism" or "marxist Jews" generally should also not mislead us in assessing the similarity between National Socialism and Communism. Leftist sects are very prone to rivalry, dissension, schism and hatred of one-another. One has only to think of the Bolsheviks versus the Mensheviks, Stalin versus Trotsky, China versus the Soviet Union etc. Similarity does not preclude rivalry. Hitler and Stalin were literally brothers in arms BEFORE they became rivals. That socialist brothers sometimes fall out should not prevent us from noting the brotherhood concerned."

"The fundamental dogma of all brands of socialism and communism is that the market economy or capitalism is a system that hurts the vital interests of the immense majority of people for the sole benefit of a small minority of rugged individualists. It condemns the masses to progressing impoverishment. It brings about misery, slavery, oppression, degradation and exploitation of the working men, while it enriches a class of idle and useless parasites."

"This doctrine was not the work of Karl Marx. It had been developed long before Marx entered the scene. Its most successful propagators were not the Marxian authors, but such men as Carlyle and Ruskin, the British Fabians, the German professors and the American Institutionalists. And it is a very significant fact that the correctness of this dogma was contested only by a few economists who were very soon silenced and barred from access to the universities, the press, the leadership of political parties and, first of all, public office. Public opinion by and large accepted the condemnation of capitalism without any reservation."

Dr. Ludwig von Mises - http://mises.org/midroad.asp

"The term 'planning' is mostly used as a synonym for socialism, communism, and authoritarian and totalitarian economic management. Sometimes only the German pattern of socialism-Zwangswirtschaft-is called planning, while the term socialism proper is reserved for the Russian pattern of outright socialization and bureaucratic operation of all plants, shops, and farms. At any rate, planning in this sense means all-around planning by the government and enforcement of these plans by the police power. Planning in this sense means full government control of business. It is the antithesis of free enterprise, private initiative, private ownership of the means of production, market economy, and the price system. Planning and capitalism are utterly incompatible. Within a system of planning production is conducted according to the government's orders, not according to the plans of capitalists and entrepreneurs eager to profit by best filling the wants of the consumers.

"But the term planning is also used in a second sense. Lord Keynes, Sir William Beveridge, Professor Hansen, and many other eminent men assert that they do not want to substitute totalitarian slavery for freedom. They declare that they are planing for a free society. They recommend a third system, which, as they say, is as far from socialism as it is from capitalism, which, as a third solution of the problem of society's economic organization, stands midway between the two other systems, and while retaining the advantages of both, avoids the disadvantages inherent in each.

"These self-styled progressives are certainly mistaken when they pretend that their proposals are new and unheard of. The idea of this third solution is very old indeed, and the French have long since baptized it with a pertinent name; they call it interventionism. Hardly anybody can doubt that history will link the idea of social security, more closely than with the American New Deal and with Sir William Beveridge, with the memory of Bismarck whom our fathers did not precisely describe as a liberal. All the essential ideas of present-day interventionist progressivism were neatly expounded by the supreme brain-trusters of imperial Germany, Professors Schmoller and Wagner, who at the same time urged their Kaiser to invade and to conquer the Americas. Far be it from me to condemn any idea only on account of its not being new. But as the progressives slander all their opponents as old-fashioned, orthodox, and reactionary, it is expedient to observe that it would be more appropriate to speak of the clash of two orthodoxies; the Bismarck orthodoxy versus the Jefferson orthodoxy.

The origins of the modern left can be traced back to the famous passage in Rousseau’s Discourse on the Origin and Foundations of Inequality, in which he condemned the institution of private property:

“The first man, who after enclosing a piece of ground, took it into his head to say, ‘this is mine,’ and found people simple enough to believe him, was the real founder of civil society.”

Added Rousseau: “How many crimes, how many wars, how many murders, how many misfortunes and horrors, would that man have saved the human species, who pulling up the stakes or filling up the ditches should have cried to his fellows: Beware of listening to this impostor; you are lost, if you forget that the fruits of the earth belong equally to us all, and the earth itself to nobody!”

Around the 1830s, a faction of French liberals gravitated toward Romanticism and the philosophy of the late Rousseau, proclaiming that capitalism, private property, and the increasing complexity of modern society were agents of moral decay -- both for the individual and for society at large. This is essentially the worldview that has made its way, through history, into the collective mind of the modern left; it is a worldview calling for a revolution that not only will topple the existing capitalist order and punish its corrupt leaders, but that also will replace that order with a socialist regime where the utopian ideals of perfect justice and equality will reign. Such an ambition can be put into effect only by a totalitarian state with the authority to micromanage every facet of human life, precisely the end-point toward which the policies and crusades of the modern left are directed.

When the term “liberalism” (from the Latin word liberalis, meaning “pertaining to a free man”) first emerged in the early 1800s, its hallmarks were a belief in individual rights, the rule of law, limited government, private property, and laissez faire economics. These would remain the defining characteristics of liberalism throughout the liberal epoch (generally identified as the period of 1815-1914). Yet the modern left, which portrays itself as the agent of enlightened commitment to “liberal” causes, in fact stands for the antithesis of each of the foregoing liberal ideals. Contrary to its self-definition, the left is neither “liberal” nor “progressive,” but rather a reactionary force that seeks to resurrect the traditions that characterized the epoch which preceded the rise of classical liberalism.

The following is from The World Book Encyclopedia, 1947 edition:
The chief characteristics of Fascism are as follows:

THE CULTIVATION OF IGNORANCE

Fascism, like all forms of government, rests firmly on the sincere consent of a large part of the population... To maintain this consent, the Fascist leadership must cut off the people from any information which might cause them to doubt the complete correctness of the fixed Fascist principles... All forms of communication are carefully censored, so that the public will receive only those facts that the dictators want known... Travel to other countries must be controlled, and freedom of speech and assembly must be rigorously suppressed...

THE POLICE STATE

Fascism depends upon the police to crush all opposition or dissent. Secret police spy on the whole population, and any casual remark against the regime leads to swift and severe punishment... Opposition parties are dissolved. Intellectual, athletic and recreational organizations are usually brought under the control of the Fascist authority... The ruthlessness of the police gradually becomes less noticeable... This is because within a year or so after a Fascist government takes power, vigorous opponents of the regime have either left the country, been killed or jailed...

EXTREME NATIONALISM

Fascism is highly nationalistic... It tries to identify its principles with the country, so that disagreement will look like treason... Some other country, or some group within the country, is chosen to serve as the "enemy" and made to appear as the cause of all evils or misfortunes... For example, the Nazis in Germany represented their movement first as a crusade against the Jews, then as a fight against Communism and later as a struggle against the "attacks" from whatever neighboring country they wished to subdue or occupy... Extreme nationalism often becomes a kind of racial fanaticism... Sometimes it combines racial and religious bigotry...

MILITARISM

Fascism maintains among the people a permanently warlike frame of mind... Every citizen feels that he is mobilized against enemies of the regime from within, and against possible foreign foes... The dictator usually comes to power during a period of economic crisis or depression... He relieves the depression partly by employing many people in the making of armaments... To justify this procedure, he must convince the people that the country is threatened, and must point toward some of the enemies against whom the armaments may be needed...

UPDATE, APRIL 16, 5:55 P.M.: This afternoon, Marilyn Davenport sent an email to fellow Orange County Republican elected officials, apologizing if anyone was offended and blasted the "liberal media" for reporting the story.

"I simply found it amusing regarding the character of [President Barack] Obama and all the questions surrounding his origin of birth," Davenport wrote. "In no way did I even consider the fact he's half black when I sent out the email. In fact, the thought never entered my mind until one or two other people [Scott Baugh, Orange County GOP boss, and this writer] tried to make this about race . . . I received plenty of emails about George Bush that I didn't particularly like yet there was no 'cry' in the media about them . . . That being said, I will NOT resign my central committee position over this matter that the average person knows and agrees is much to do about nothing." (*Davenport's entire statement is at the end of this article.)

Tim Whitacre, a longtime conservative Orange County Republican activist in Santa Ana, defended Davenport.

"Marilyn Davenport is a staunch, ethical Republican lady," Whitacre told me. "There is nothing unethical about this from a party standpoint because it wasn't sent out to the party at large with any racist statements and it wasn't signed as a central committee member. As a private individual, she is just real big on Birther stuff. One of her passions that drives her is the president's lack of forthrightness about where he was born. Marilyn believes that nobody knows where he was born and so this picture says a thousand words.

"She is not a perfect lady, but she is no racist. She is a gentle person who would feed you, help you, be there for you if you were in trouble. She is known as a pleasant, loving person and it kills me that she is being attacked by this non-story knowing her mindset."

ORIGINAL POST, April 15, 5 P.M.: Orange County might be a beautiful oceanfront locale, but it's also home to Holocaust deniers, vicious anti-gay bigots and freakish big-haired televangelists.

Here, one of our Republican politicians welcomed the inauguration of the first African American U.S. president in early 2009 by sending out an email that depicted a watermelon field in front of the White House.

That incident drew embarrassing international attention, but now another Orange County Republican has apparently topped the watermelon imagery with another racist attack on President Barack Obama.

The Weekly has obtained a copy of an email sent to fellow conservatives this week by Marilyn Davenport, a Southern California Tea Party activist and member of the central committee of the Orange County Republican Party.

Under the words, "Now you know why no birth certificate," there's an Obama family portrait showing them as apes.

(Donald Trump must be elated to finally have an explanation about Obama's true birth circumstances.)

Reached by telephone and asked if she thought the email was appropriate, Davenport said, "Oh, come on! Everybody who knows me knows that I am not a racist. It was a joke. I have friends who are black. Besides, I only sent it to a few people--mostly people I didn't think would be upset by it."

The image did upset several local Republicans.

"It's unbelievable," one high-ranking OC GOP official told me. "It's much more racist than the watermelon email. I can't believe it was sent out. I'm not an Obama fan but how stupid do you have to be to do this?"

Another GOP official, who also asked not to be identified, said that Davenport is "a really, really sweet old lady so I am surprised to hear about this."

Scott Baugh, chairman of the OC Republican Party, told Davenport that the email was tasteless, Davenport--a Fullerton-based political activist--admitted to me during the telephone interview.

"You're not going to make a big deal about this are you?" she asked me. "It's just an Internet joke."

But Baugh believes the email is a big deal.

"When I saw that email today I thought it was despicable," Baugh said. "It is dripping with racism and it does not promote the type of message Orange County Republicans want to deliver to the public. I think she should consider stepping down as an elected official."

Michael J. Schroeder, an Orange County resident and former chairman of the California Republican Party, also said he was disgusted.

"This is a three strikes situation for Marilyn Davenport," Schroeder said. "She was a passionate defender of former Newport Beach city councilman Dick Nichols who stated that he was voting against putting in more grass at Corona del Mar's beach because, he said, there were already 'too many Mexicans on the beach.' She was also on the wrong side of the fence with the Los Alamitos mayor and his White House watermelon patch picture. Now, she has managed to top both of those incidents by comparing African Americans to monkeys. She has disgraced herself and needs to resign. If she doesn't, the Republican Party must remove her."

But Davenport does not appear ready to concede she has made a mistake. After this story was published, she sent another email to fellow California conservative activists. It demanded to know the identity of "the coward" who supplied me with a copy of her offensive email.

Several Los Angeles television news broadcasts are planning coverage of this story tonight

(Update: KCAL and KCBS reported during their respective 10 and 11 p.m. broadcasts that in a telephone interview Davenport blamed the media for this controversy and slammed down the phone.)

As a member of the local Republican central committee, Davenport represents an inland section of Orange County: Fullerton, Brea, La Habra, Placentia and, home of the Richard M. Nixon Presidential Birthplace & Library, Yorba Linda.

In February 2009, Los Alamitos Mayor Dean Grose, another Orange County Republican, emailed the White House watermelon image and then apologized.
obama_watermelons.jpg
OC Republican mayor's racist greeting in 2009 to newly elected President Obama.
Ironically, Obama reversed decades and decades of tradition by not getting trounced at the presidential election polls in Orange County, long known as Ronald "Reagan Country." In fact, he won an impressive 48 percent of the vote in 2008. The last Democrat to win a decent showing here: Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Orange County is also home to Orly Taitz, the Soviet Union-born dentist who lives in Laguna Niguel and is one of the world's leading proponents of claims that Obama is killing homosexuals tied to his old Chicago church, was born in Kenya, is personally funding Hamas terrorists and ordered a secret agent to break into her vehicle.
Alas, if you really want to be disturbed, read THIS RECENT RELATED STORY by my colleague Gustavo Arellano.

Just two percent of Orange County's 3 million population is African American.

(This is a copy of Davenport's entire 12:24 p.m. Saturday email to other OC Republican leaders: "I'm sorry if my email offended anyone. I simply found it amusing regarding the character of Obama and all the questions surrounding his origin of birth. In no way did I even consider the fact he's half black when I sent out the email. In fact, the thought never entered my mind until one or two other people tried to make this about race. We all know a double standard applies regarding this president. I received plenty of emails about George Bush that I didn't particularly like yet there was no 'cry' in the media about them. One only has to go to Youtube or Google Images to see a plethora or lampooning videos and pictures of Obama, Bush and other politicians. That being said, I will NOT resign my central committee position over this matter that the average person knows and agrees is much to do about nothing. Again, for those select few who might be truly offended by viewing a copy of an email I sent to a select list of friends and acquaintances, unlike the liberal left when they do the same, I offer my sincere apologies to you--the email was no meant for you. For any of my friends or acquaintances who were the recipients of my email and were truly offended, please call me so I may offer a sincere verbal apology to you.")

What an idiot. You cannot help but speak in a manner conductive to disinformation ...

Like I have said, I am sure the word of God, swearing to obama being natural born, would suffice ... but bar that, nothing short of a long form "Certificate of Birth" and NOT a "Certification of Live Birth" (or, COLB) will ...

Giggling is a sign that you've done nothing but levelled personal insults, and defended that as a rational argument.

Knowing that you're as empty as your handle is quite amusing.

lol ...

Hawaii has some strange things going on. Some of them have happened because it was too easy to fraudulently present your self as born in Hawaii ... as, in the past it could allow you the right to some land.

In 1961 things were lax, later, loopholes were closed.

In obamas' case, there is a "Certificate of Live Birth" and a "CertificatION of Live Birth" at question ... someone has posted the certification (actually a COLB.)

Because of the similar names, there is much confusion, obfuscation, disinformation and "DAMNED LIES" being bandied about ...

obama has spent considerable time and money keeping his birth papers, education papers, etc. hidden from the public, since ohblahbalh, himself, stated:

"The only people who don't want to disclose the truth are people with something to hide." -- barack obama

You have to take him at his word. Indeed, it sounds like he knows what he is talking about, even that he is speaking from experience!

I think rational minded men what to see a damn long form birth certificate now!:

http://www.thepostemail.com/2011/04/07/exposing-the-birth-certificate-lies-used-to-cover-for-obama/

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=U5FMYhbn8oM&feature=player_embedded

At around 4:20 into this audio, obamas' grandmother is asked if obama was born in Kenya, Africa, she says yes:
http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=JlFc4wCpvSo&feature=related

What is so difficult to understand?
Abercrombie, the Hawaiian governor, says it doesn't exist:
http://www.wnd.com/?pageId=252833

A Hawaiian election clerk, who had access to the birth records, looked, he has filed an affidavit stating, quite plainly, the birth certificate DOES NOT EXIST:
http://www.wnd.com/?pageId=254401
I think that is enough evidence that we need a court, judge and jury to make the final determination! Or else, he just shows his birth certificate like all other presidents have done, when asked!

He doesn't, Bruce. There is a class that only sees the word 'nuclear' and condemns all nuclear as one twitch short of The Bomb.
They don't know, don't care, and don't want to know that there is any nuclear that can be better, safer, or more effectively handled, because ANY nuclear is a case of the camel's nose under the tent.

It's how "The China Syndrome," became an instrument of policy.

This can't be a US broadcast, in my opinion . Very deep fading , must be from an overseas station . Whether it is Arabic language or some other (like Farsi or some other) is hard to say - it is mostly music being played , not much talk in their program .

Peter, yepp. I think the single most important thing a person can do - and this is any person, whether they have a background in a topic or not - is, if they have an actual interest in a topic, then learn as much as you can about the topic objectively, and THEN see what kind of propaganda the pro and con sides actually have against it. Just looking at the last two without the first give only skewed perspectives and never zero in the actual issues>

Of course, if a person is not really that interested and just wants to be a gadfly, well - then Troll away! And expect verbal brickbats in return.

What hams need are wealthy, high-profile members - like the NRA and AARP. They may be small, but fascinating people, even if they are stooges, can yield results.

1961 ï¿½ Armed Cuban exiles backed by the CIA invaded Cuba, landing in the Bay of Pigs, with the aim of overthrowing the Cuban government under Fidel Castro.

President Kennedy's decision not to provide naval and air support to the rebels is seen by most analysts as the reason why the invasion failed.

The KKK name was taken over by DEMOCRATS that were pissed about the blacks acting like the savages they are . After the dumb asses in the country decided that blacks should have rights instead of being put in zoos or sent back to the jungle where they belong the democrats bailed out like the cowards they are and reinvented them selves as socialists .

I'm all for it. Just being brutally honest, as is my nature.

My energy plan is to rewire all homes for 12-24 VDC, and use local PV whenever possible. A large centralized grid wastes way too much energy, and concentrates too much political power.

No. It ends with her dying due to her exercising her natural right to chain smoke. The fitting cap to her life was her acceptance of Social Security to ease her transition to the great self-service heaven in the sky.

All of it personal insults. What you do not do, is debate the content, nor the ideas.

You simply insult the person.

The USENet equivalent of "So's your old man." You either have no position of substance, or you're not willing to engage one for fear of defeat in the arena of ideas.

Precisely. The trouble with that, is, if one really digs into a topic and debates facts, one may eventually change one's mind.
Heresy, today, when adamancy is equated with strength.

Contemporaneous reporting in the newspapers, eyewitnesses, the $10 duplicate birth certificate, etc., all support the Hawaiian Native conclusion. The only thing that supports the birthers is Obama's stepmom being inaccurately translated during a phone interview.

I would love to have a house that ran 0n 12/24/48vdc That's a great idea wich I knew how to do it. I've worked with those voltages all my life.

Life's great, ENJOY

Burr

Only problem with LV home wiring is heating/cooling. Lighting's simple, and there's a lot of good audio gear that runs on 12V. But, no decent refrigeration, A/C or heating (though one can use LPG for heating, or even solar for much of the year). Television's a bit of a problem, one would have to use inverters if one wanted a screen larger than about 12". But, with the newest LED driven big screens, you could get away with a fairly small inverter, about 200-250W to have plenty of headroom. Again, refrigeration is the primary problem with LV systems.

In the case of Rand one has to debate philosophy becuase there is no substance. Rand was a child of a bourgeois family when, during the revolution her father's business was taken by government.
This heavily influenced her opinions about socialism. It's amazing how the priviledged decry their losses but think nothing of those they stepped on to maintain their position of power. Rand wrote "The Virtues of Selfishness" but sees no virtue in collective selfishness when facing powerful people.
I am always reminded of a claim I heard from a bully, "I could take all of you one at a time in a fair fight, you had to gang up on me to win."
as if the fight was fair when to his advantage.

Rand's idealization of her early life lead her to justify the roll of the oppressor
as if a natural state of affairs based upon the will of the least moral is in any way the best.

Of course. Why am I not surprised. Deny the substance of the argument, default to personal insult.

Your philosophy professor is probably doing backflips with pride.

About a year ago, maybe a little less than a year ago, I posted something in this here newsgroup about Ayn Rand's philosphy.I did, I did, I sure did.Doggy says I did, and doggy never lies.Except sometimes whe she jumps me and slurps my ear wanting to go out in the front yard to poo poo pee pee and she doesn't do nuttin.

Doggy, you lied to me.

About five sompin years ago, somewhere on the net I read about a new kind of airconditioner out of Colorado.
http://www.coolerado.com

And back in the 1960s I read an article in either Popular Mechanics or Popular Science magazine about a guy in Arkansas who rigged up his own airconditioner.He put a hole in the ground near a window of his house.He mounted one or two old pickup truck radiators in front of the window.He used a water pump to circulate the water through the radiator(s) and an electric fan to blow the cold air into his house.I think he had two holes in the ground, one of them was for the water return back into the ground.According to the article I read his home brewed airconditioner worked very well.

there it is again. you consider empirical evidence as insults. you step right into it. what parts are insults, that she collected on the socialist dole after years of blubbering against it, or that she was a drug addict, or that she was a sex addict, or that she was a proven sociopath, that was a serial killer groupie, which part do you consider to be a insult?

> You simply insult the person.

if you think that what she did was not insulting to normal people, then you are what you are. if someone points that truth out, you get mad. decent people are angry with what your type has done to the world.

> The USENet equivalent of "So's your old man." You either have no or, you could prove that she did not suck on the dole, she was not into drugs, she was not into extra marital sex, that she was not a serial killers groupie, and that she was not a proven sociopath.

And the reason behind that was a constricted view of the problem.
Kennedy and his inner circle excluded information that should have told them that the Cubans were not going to rise up against Castro when the invaders landed, that his army was loyal and competent, and that his air force was likewise. They expected the Cubans to rise up against Castro and the army to turn on their ruler. They thought the Cuban Air Force was incompetent. They were wrong on all counts leading to perhaps the greatest fiasco in U.S. foreign relations history. Groupthink played a big part in that terrible decision (cf.
Irving Janis, "Victims of Groupthink," Chapter 2). Fortunately the Kennedy administration learned from that and did much better during the Cuban missile crisis. Sadly, I don't see any similar learning happening in the current administration.

In climates where evap cooling won't work they should provide old school

You don't read very carefully. I didn't say there wasn't cross contamination. I said it wasn't because the strata are near each other.
If the hole isn't properly built the methane from -8,000 feet gets into the aquifer at 1,500' by migrating on the well somewhere. If there were more inspections this wouldn't happen so much. The bigger issue is the billions of gallons of fresh water that the process trashes.

Politics would be far more honest if everyone vote for independent candidates. It's too easy to corrupt the 'Party' system. You only have to buy one or two top politicians. It costs more to bribe a majority, so economics would reduce corruption.

Corporate/union donations to politicians have to be banned.
Contributions should have to be made in your own name only, with a 1000 dollar a year, tax deductible, maximum limit.

"The only people insanely upset about jokes or comments about their race are those ashamed of their race!" -- barack obama (AKA barry soetoro) SHOULD HAVE SAID THAT!

Instead, he said, "The only people who don't want to disclose the truth are people with something to hide." And, while that is true and relevant to obama -- himself, the other would have encouraged people to worry about more relevant things.

You are talking about the COLB -- Certification of Live Birth.

Obama has NEVER disclose a true birth certificate, a "Certificate of

So why did you delete all but the first sentence? Could it be because I provided facts to support my claims concerning her philosophy?
Do you understand that a work of fiction doesn't have substance to it?
Fiction can provide an argument for a position but that position is philosophic not factual. There was No Dagny Taggart. There was no John Galt.

One cannot argue facts about them other than as presented in the novel.
No conclusion in the world can be based upon anything happening to them. At best one could look for actual cases and map them onto these fictional characters like one would do with "The Carpetbaggers".

Obama was “born Barry Soetoro”

In this video, Donald Trump pounds on Obama’s natural-born status, and then says, “look, he was born Barry Soetoro and somewhere along the way changed his name!” It doesn’t sound like he is speculating, or that he is asking a question. It sounds as though he is stating a fact. Hannity doesn’t follow up on it. He talks about Obama’s Kenyan Grandma Sara and the chaos in the room when she said Barry was born in a Kenya hospital. He talks about Bill Ayers, how Obama got into Harvard, and the Tony Rezko scandal. So what does Trump know that we don’t know about Barry Soetoro?

http://video.foxnews.com/v/4647912/donald-trump-on-presidents-past-part-1/

Obama's Hidden Past

Information about Obama's hidden past is finally coming out due to the diligent research of Citizens for Freedom and Donald Trump's investigation into Obama (And it's NOT about the birth certificate issue.). This video exposes the FACTS they have uncovered about Obama's past that may be surprising, even shocking, to some. Manipulation of political figures by the ruling elite is nothing new. In fact it's the documented history of how the British Empire (the mercantile elite class of Britain) was able to control the world (and still do). Knowing information like this and keeping it suppressed while financing them to high political office is how the controlling elite of the world are able to completely control the puppet politicians in America and deceive all but the most astute studiers of history.

John Kennedy was a republican? Who have thunk it?!

The George Wallace "Schoolhouse Door" incident was in June, 1963.

I'd suggest you consult a good history book for who was president then.

How can you be so historically ignorant?

OBTW, the 13th amendment was authored by a democratic senator.

The author is following the example set by former President George W. Bush who told 935 lies to justify has attack on Iraq.

The author also is following the example set by Senator Jon Kyl (R, AZ) who was caught citing false statistics, after which his staff stated that his comments were "not intended to be factual."

I cite her early life. This is very important in shaping her philosophy.

Coming from a position of privilege then having it taken away by communists is a very good explanation for her hatred. At a minimum it taints her opinions on the matter.

Not by me.

I'm one person. Argue against the points I make rather than something else.

Not the work but the following and their effects in reality based upon an understaning from a work of fiction.

Make that co-authored:

"On January 11, 1864, Senator John Henderson of Missouri, a War Democrat, submitted a joint resolution for a constitutional amendment abolishing slavery. The Senate Judiciary Committee, headed by Illinois Republican Lyman Trumbull, began considering the various versions of the abolition amendment. On February 8, Senator Charles Sumner of Massachusetts, a leading Radical Republican, submitted a constitutional amendment to not only abolish slavery but also guarantee equality under the law. Two days later, spurred partly in reaction to Sumnerï¿½s more radical proposal, the Senate Judiciary Committee reported to the full Senate an abolition amendment combining the drafts by Ashley, Wilson, and
Henderson."--http://13thamendment.harpweek.com/hubpages/CommentaryPage.asp?Commentary=05Pr

Oh. Now let me see if I get this right, "it" has nothing to do with what is factual, or not ... only what personal attacks we can make on the author?

They what? We kill the guy if the author did something wrong? Ignore evidence?

Uhhh. You'll have to excuse me here, I just don't follow your logic!

How does one counter pure fiction? Part of the process is identifying a bias on the part of the author. This doesn't discount what the author
says but does frame it.

The general rule is extraordinary claims require extraordinary evidence.
The author just makes asserts without any evidence. There's no way to counter this when facts are discounted.

Because there was no argument. Only a dismissal based on personalities.

You've yet to address the substance of the work. You've only dismissed the author.

Shoe on the other foot, you've decried such tactics as small

What substance? It's a work of fiction. Tell me what substance you see so we can discuss it. The work of fiction was written to reenforce
the author's beliefs. The beliefs themselves come from her life experiences.
I have introduced her life experiences to explain her beliefs.

Sci Fi has a tradition of using fiction as a setting to narrate a comment about reality. That's all well and good but it isn't evendence of anything.
One has to do the leg work of starting with reality then drawing

Example? Sure you can find me replying in kind to small mindedness as an object lesson. Have I started with that somewhere without a history?

I've argued objectivism for decades now. I don't need to start from Ayn

Fact is, the truth is the truth if spoken by a gutter wino or God himself ...

"Berg said, ï¿½Obamaï¿½s ï¿½LEGAL NAMEï¿½ is Barry Soetoro, his name when he was adopted or acknowledged by his Step-Father, Lolo Soetoro, in Indonesia.
Obama refers to his Step-Father, Lolo Soetoro, in one of his books.
Also, on our web site, obamacrimes.com, we have detailed all of the facts that substantiate ï¿½Soetoro/Obama is a fraud, a phony, an imposter and this is the biggest ï¿½HOAXï¿½ against ï¿½ourï¿½ country in ï¿½ourï¿½ history.
We have a copy of his school record in Indonesia where his name is Barry Soetoro !"

Well, something has to replace trickle-down - it's failed to work at any substantive level yet.

I don't know if we are in disagreement or not?

I mean, "Trickle-Down" worked! It really worked "TOO DAMN WELL!"

However, it went in the wrong direction and became "Trickle Up Poverty!"

Which, may have been their intention all along ... <straight face>

Because the sons are not responsible for the transgressions of their fathers, unless they perpetuate them. Every man makes his own decisions in life. My Dad raised me, but I do not reflect his full range of thinking, any more than you, your own Father's. "Taints" or biases come and go.

I think it means exactly what it says, someone is "certifying" that one exists.

But, yanno', I have a problem with that, bush and his weapons of mass destruction, nixon and his "I am not a crook", clinton and his "I did NOT have sex with THAT woman!", etc, etc.

Plus, the long form, "Certificate of Live Birth" contains much more documentation and is an actual photo copy of the REAL document ... the COLB is a recently created, on the spot, document.

Again, just call me overly cautions, but then, I am trusting obama on one thing!:

"The only people who don't want to disclose the truth are people with something to hide." -- barack obama (AKA barry soetoro)

When you hear/see the truth, you'll know it! He is quite right!

I was lucky to have gold left me by relatives. Back when it was ~$30-$35 an ounce (government forced a false under value on gold.) At that time it was easy to sell it to jewelers at $75 and upwards.

$75.00 dollars, back then, would roughly buy the equivalent of what
$1,400 will buy today ... around 18x inflation of the money.

Or, understand it this way: ~$2,000 back then would have bought me a nice car! Around $38,000 today will still buy me that car ...

Strange how in coinsides with the value of gold! ROFLOL

Actually, I should have extrapolated, for clarity: A $1.00 candy bar, today, was $0.05, if I remember correctly a postage stamp was $0.03, and a gallon of gas was >$0.20 ... so, as you can plainly see, a lot of

Which you have dismissed based on her upbringing. Her upbringing doesn't negate her writings. Nor does it negate her beliefs, nor the validity of them. If it did, you could dismiss every writing by anyone who'd transcended their upbringing. Or anyone who hadn't. Or anyone who'd ever written anything of fiction.

And yet, we revere Huxley for his vision, based on a work of fiction, Orwell for his vision based on a work of fiction. Or any of a number of writers throughout history who transcended their upbringing. Or writers of fiction. Including Plato. And Obama for his vision based on the transcendence of his upbringing.

Your dismissals are selective, and capricious based on what you do and do not agree with, which you then attempt to validate by character assassination.

Your argument has no substance. Your dismissal is opinion. And though your entitled to your opinion, you're also entitled to your asshole. Neither of which do you have the right to inflict on anyone with a sense of entitlement, without supporting fact. Or you may, and will, be dismissed in your own right for your fictional writing. Even if it transcends your upbringing.

So! You're saying that going off the gold standard made no difference, then? Could be. In any case, it's no better an investment than candy bars ;-)

Atlas Shrugged
Who is John Galt? Well you may ask

Release Date: 2011

Ebert Rating: *

By Roger Ebert Apr 14, 2011

http://rogerebert.suntimes.com/apps/pbcs.dll/article?AID=/20110414/REVIEWS/110419990&template=printart

I feel like my arm is all warmed up and I don't have a game to pitch. I was primed to review "Atlas Shrugged." I figured it might provide a parable of Ayn Rand's philosophy that I could discuss. For me, that philosophy reduces itself to: "I'm on board; pull up the lifeline." There are however people who take Ayn Rand even more seriously than comic-book fans take "Watchmen." I expect to receive learned and sarcastic lectures on the pathetic failings of my review.

And now I am faced with this movie, the most anticlimactic non-event since Geraldo Rivera broke into Al Capone's vault. I suspect only someone very familiar with Rand's 1957 novel could understand the film at all, and I doubt they will be happy with it. For the rest of us, it involves a series of business meetings in luxurious retro leather-and-brass board rooms and offices, and restaurants and bedrooms that look borrowed from a hotel no doubt known as the Robber Baron Arms.

During these meetings, everybody drinks. More wine is poured and sipped in this film than at a convention of oenophiliacs. There are conversations in English after which I sometimes found myself asking, "What did they just say?" The dialogue seems to have been ripped throbbing with passion from the pages of Investors' Business Daily. Much of the excitement centers on the tensile strength of steel.

The story involves Dagny Taggart (Taylor Schilling), a young woman who controls a railroad company named Taggart Transcontinental (its motto: "Ocean to Ocean"). She is a fearless and visionary entrepreneur, who is determined to use a revolutionary new steel to repair her train tracks. Vast forces seem to conspire against her.

It's a few years in the future. America has become a state in which mediocrity is the goal, and high-achieving individuals the enemy. Laws have been passed prohibiting companies from owning other companies. Dagny's new steel, which is produced by her sometime lover, Hank Rearden (Grant Bowler), has been legislated against because it's better than other steels. The Union of Railroad Engineers has decided it will not operate Dagny's trains. Just to show you how bad things have become, a government minister announces "a tax will be applied to the state of Colorado, in order to equalize our national economy." So you see how governments and unions are the enemy of visionary entrepreneurs.

But you're thinking, railroads? Yes, although airplanes exist in this future, trains are where it's at. When I was 6, my Aunt Martha brought me to Chicago to attend the great Railroad Fair of 1948, at which the nation's rail companies celebrated the wonders that were on the way. They didn't quite foresee mass air transportation. "Atlas Shrugged" seems to buy into the fair's glowing vision of the future of trains. Rarely, perhaps never, has television news covered the laying of new railroad track with the breathless urgency of the news channels shown in this movie.

So OK. Let's say you know the novel, you agree with Ayn Rand, you're an objectivist or a libertarian, and you've been waiting eagerly for this movie. Man, are you going to get a letdown. It's not enough that a movie agree with you, in however an incoherent and murky fashion. It would help if it were like, you know, entertaining?

The movie is constructed of a few kinds of scenes: (1) People sipping their drinks in clubby surroundings and exchanging dialogue that sounds like corporate lingo; (2) railroads, and lots of 'em; (3) limousines driving through cities in ruin and arriving at ornate buildings; (4) city skylines; (5) the beauties of Colorado. There is also a love scene, which is shown not merely from the waist up but from the ears up. The man keeps his shirt on. This may be disappointing for libertarians, who I believe enjoy rumpy-pumpy as much as anyone.

Oh, and there is Wisconsin. Dagny and Hank ride blissfully in Taggart's new high-speed train, and then Hank suggests they take a trip to Wisconsin, where the state's policies caused the suppression of an engine that runs on the ozone in the air, or something (the film's detailed explanation won't clear this up). They decide to drive there. That's when you'll enjoy the beautiful landscape photography of the deserts of Wisconsin. My advice to the filmmakers: If you want to use a desert, why not just refer to Wisconsin as "New Mexico"?

"Atlas Shrugged" closes with a title card saying, "End of Part 1." Frequently throughout the film, characters repeat the phrase, "Who is John Galt?" Well they might ask. A man in black, always shot in shadow, is apparently John Galt. If you want to get a good look at him and find out why everybody is asking, I hope you can find out in Part 2. I don't think you can hold out for Part 3.

Well, I don't think it really made any difference if our government ever recognized gold (precious metals) as the only real money system, or not. World leaders certainly did, the Shah of Iran even had gold cast into a toilet on his airplane, etc. and attempted to escape the country with his gold, Gaddafi, if he ever flees the country, will attempt to take the ton-and-a-half of gold he has with him (probably much more gold in actuality.)

The earliest books of the bible recognize gold as wealth ... even further back, there is evidence that gold was bartered/traded.

Gold is not just a "flash in the pan", "new fangled", invention of wealth and a method of storing, maintaining and conveying wealth!

AND, it is a much better investment than candy bars!!! I can't even imagine what shape it would be in, nor how it would taste, being 50 years old! Plus, my wife and kids would have eatin' 'em all!

ROFLOL

I am retired, I put my money where my mouth is. Since interest paid on safe investments is/are so low, and since I don't have an addiction to gambling (the stock market,) I am 90%+ in physical gold ... any money end up with, after expenses, I currently put in savings, I do so with PHYSICAL GOLD!

It may not be for everyone ... as always, I would recommend the advice of a good investment counselor ... preferably one which has clients which came out ahead of the economic collapse and will give you reference attesting to his/her qualifications.

JS

You must be a decade plus my senior. I recall, at age 11, in 1966, buying candy bars for a nickel, Tootsie Rolls two for a penny, a Coke from a machine for a dime, bread for 25 cents a loaf, and pumping gas at 31 cents/gal. for 87 octane regular. Postage stamps were a nickel for first class, 4 cents for a post card.

Battlefield Rand

Aliens from the planet Sociolos launch a sneak attack against Earth and overwhelm it. Decades later the surviving humans are slaves of the Sociolos, working on the vast farmlands which send vast herds of cabbage back to Sociolos.
One human slave, a young man with bright red--even orange--hair reworking as a personal servant to farm management crop rotation committee observes his master using an odd machine. Even though they have evolved on different planet with completely different brain structures, the slave discovers the machine can teach him many new things about his human past as well as Sociolos technology.

Thanks to the increased intelligence imparted by the 'Bucky box' as Socialos call it, the slave learns to fly farm management heavy transport committee's flying machine and escapes. He has various adventures where he learns to fly Harrier jump jet as an expert combat pilot after just two weeks in simulator, discovers a Harrier jump jet whose fuel is actually still usuable, saves a barbarian queen from human refugee collective potato cooperative farm, finds
ruins of New York, learns to read ancient blueprint, and begins designing minimalist yet philosophically integrated geodesic dome outhouses.

Our hero returns to Sociolos cabbage plantation while making passionate philosophical arguments with his barbarian queen in the Harrier jump jet cockpit. Once there he builds a geodesic outhouse. The mere sight of drives

the Sociolos into spasms and they die. He then teleports a box of dynamite to the Sociolos home planet; the Sociolos become extinct in a fit of exceptionalism.

Wow, I'm impressed. All this written material proving Obama to not be who he is and endangering America's existence, and still he's president after two years. How has he not been sent to stand before a firing squad by now? Someone like you would get arrested for poking a cop the wrong way, no mountain of evidence or any witnesses needed.

It frames her beliefs. I haven't dismiss her philosophy based upon her upbringing. I had used it to understand why she believes what is obviously flawed philosophy. We can discuss the philosophy.
I've even suggested you start with it rather than a work of fiction that is used to support that philosophy.

> Her upbringing > doesn't negate her writings. Nor does it negate her beliefs, nor the > validity of them. If it did, you could dismiss every writing by anyone

Part of understanding a work of fiction is understanding the author.

> And yet, we revere Huxley for his vision, based on a work of fiction, > Orwell for his vision based on a work of fiction. Or any of a number of > transcendence of his upbringing.

A philosophy isn't true or false based upon who believes it, but who believes a philosophy is based upon their life's history. If a philosophy is false then its support by way of a work of fiction needs to be understood based upon the author's life. If you want a better author then consider Robert Anson Heinlein. You can still have similar themes but it's not so bad. Wikipedia make the following statement:

Birth and childhoodHeinlein (pronounced Hine-line)[4][5] was born on July 7, 1907, to Rex Ivar Heinlein (an accountant) and Bam Lyle Heinlein, in Butler, Missouri. His childhood was spent in Kansas City, Missouri.[6] The outlook and values of this time and place (in his own words, "The Bible Belt") had a definite influence on his fiction, especially his later works, as experiences from his childhood were heavily drawn upon both for setting and for cultural atmosphere in Time Enough for Love and To Sail Beyond the Sunset, among others. However, he would later break with many of its values and mores—especially those concerning morality as it applies to issues such as religion and sexuality—both in his writing and in his personal life.

In general people will focus their energies on unresolved issues because they don't need to spend it on resolved issues. (Adage, "Why is it I always find things in the last place I look?")

> Your dismissals are selective, and capricious based on what you do > and do not agree with, which you then attempt to validate by character > assassination.

Not so. The truth isn't character assassination. Further, since you've not tried to explain any of the "substance" you find and support it you don't present anything else to discuss. I like to understand why people
hold false beliefs and poor philosophy. In this case her life's situation readily explains it. It doesn't make her beliefs false or philosophy bad.

> Your argument has no substance. Your dismissal is opinion. And though > your entitled to your opinion, you're also entitled to your asshole.

OK.

What? Do others have this right, for instance Ayn Rand? Or you?

> Or you may, and will, be > dismissed in your own right for your fictional writing. Even if it

You may dismiss what I write on any basis you want. Others will judge for themselves.

Several years ago, I was asked to speak on end-of-life issues at a retreat for Southern California physicians. A number of doctors there brought up one particular case: an 82-year-old woman who'd suffered a massive heart attack while visiting her daughter.

Her story captures the difficult choices that keep us from controlling healthcare spending. Unless we all confront those choices, the costs of medical care will consume us, stealing away an ever-larger share of our national wealth and driving federal budget deficits to catastrophic levels.

The patient was admitted to intensive care, then put on "pressors" ï¿½ medications that boost blood pressure by causing muscle cells surrounding tiny arteries to contract. Her doctors quickly concluded that her prognosis was dismal. Aggressive doses failed to raise her systolic pressure above 70 (a worrisome sign). Too much heart muscle was nonfunctioning. Yet she remained awake, alert and chatty.

The woman's daughter was around when the doctors delivered their dire prognosis. The pressors were pointless, they said; the battle couldn't be won. Their prescription was to end aggressive treatment. The patient didn't obviously object to the doctors' plan, but her daughter, a social worker told me, "felt it was an assault."

The daughter began paying close attention to clinical details. She questioned the doctors about their intentions. The doctors, in turn, grew annoyed.

"Her daughter could not let go," one of them later told me, "even in the face of a bad prognosis. She was taking ï¿½ an adversarial position, almost litigious. What I tried to clarify for her was that this was not an adversarial relationship."

But one of the doctors admitted to some thinking that wouldn't have reassured the daughter: "When we see dollars wasted, that's not a good thing. Nobody presents that to the patient." Keeping the mother alive, which required the high-tech monitoring and ministrations of the ICU, was most likely a waste because her chances for survival were so tiny. "The problem is that individual members only care about themselves, because they don't have the global perspective."

One cardiologist did present this perspective to the patient. According to colleagues, he came to her bedside, told her she didn't have enough heart muscle to survive, then said: "Have you ever stayed in a really expensive hotel, like the Plaza? You know how expensive a room is? Six to eight hundred dollars. Well, you know how expensive this room is? Ten thousand dollars."

The daughter threatened to sue, demanded new doctors and insisted that the staff go all-out to keep her mom alive. Four weeks later, the 82-year-old patient left the hospital on foot. For a year or so, until she died, she divided her time between her daughter' home, an assisted living facility and her own residence.

The doctor who'd complained to me about the daughter's "adversarial position" said her mother's survival astonished him. Yet he stands by the decision he'd have preferred: to take her off pressors and get her out of the ICU ï¿½ in effect, to let her die. "If you say that the fact that this lady survived means we should do that type of thing for every patient ï¿½ I'm not prepared to say that," he said.

And then he spoke the unspeakable: "We are subconsciously rationing care, whether we call it that or believe that's what we're doing.... If we didn't, the reality is that we would be facing an absurdity in which we made ï¿½ near-futile efforts to save one life out of an enormous number of failures. We'd bankrupt our healthcare system."

We want our doctors to go all-out for our loved ones and ourselves. But as voters and consumers, we send a different message. We pick politicians who promise to cut taxes, and we demand low-cost insurance. We're telling government and the healthcare industry to hold the line on healthcare costs, even if it means sacrificing clinical benefits. And we put doctors in the middle of this contradiction.

In recent weeks, private insurers have revealed plans for double-digit rate hikes. Our medical bills are already close to a fifth of our national income, on track to reach one-third within 25 years. Soaring Medicare and Medicaid costs are the main reason for nightmarish federal deficit projections over the long term. Yet as Republicans and Democrats battle over the federal budget to the point of threatening a government shutdown, serious healthcare spending cuts remain unspeakable.

House Budget Committee Chairman Rep. Paul Ryan (R-Wis.) recently proposed to cut Medicare and Medicaid by shifting their costs to poor and middle-class Americans who can't afford them. It's an unconscionable approach, but it at least acknowledges the urgency of gaining control over federal healthcare spending. Neither President Obama nor congressional Democrats have put forth plausible proposals for doing so.

How might we "bend the curve" of rising costs without forcing doctors to break with Hippocratic ideals? Percentage points can be trimmed by better coordinating care and providing it more efficiently. But the main driver behind rising costs is indiscriminate adoption of new technology.

We must make it much harder for high-cost clinical wizardry to become part of our expectations. We should distinguish between decisive advances ï¿½ biological breakthroughs that make large therapeutic leaps possible ï¿½ and technologies that dazzle but deliver only marginal results. We can do this by demanding proof that pricey services add value before permitting healthcare providers to tap insurers for payment. And we can harness intellectual property law to encourage therapeutic leaps by giving longer-lasting patents to more effective tests and treatments. We should also stop paying providers more for using technology than for listening and talking to their patients.

But as a society, we also have to set limits when it comes to individual treatment. We can't afford to spend without restraint in the ICU, in pursuit of tiny chances. We must ï¿½ and this is the hardest part ï¿½ decide what we can and can't afford. We have to let politicians and policymakers grapple truthfully with these issues rather than punishing them for "killing Grandma" when they speak of making hard choices about healthcare.

We accept cost-benefit tradeoffs in other realms: We base airline and occupational safety regulations on dollar figures for the value of life. Similar clarity must replace the vague terms (like "medical necessity") that insurers use to veil healthcare rationing. Clear limits, applicable to all, can help us come to terms with the need to say "no" without shattering our trust in medicine.

Bedside rationing on the sly won't do.

M. Gregg Bloche, a physician and a professor of law at Georgetown University, is the author of "The Hippocratic Myth."

I have no issue with others doing what I have done with reguards to Any Rand. I'm merely hoping to make their travel quicker.

> 'gf' - one wonders about... your own false beliefs > and your personal philosophy - one does ~ RHF

Sure go ahead. I'm quite open to reasoned argument.
Many issues reduce to the irrational, that's just the way of it. Withholding judgement is about allowing for alternatives where no truths can be assuered.

On of my real eye openers was to learn that the theory of integer arithmatic cannot be both complete and consistent. Goedel then go on to map this onto other domains. This certainly doesn't stop us from using and building upon integer arithmatic.

Sure we know reality through our senses but this limits our access to what actually exists. We cannot know that we we do not sense or can derive from our senses. Like our theories of integer arithmatic our theories concerning what actually exist will be incomplete or inconsistant. Our senses filter actuality.

Ayn skips to moral philosophy but provides no link to it. She might as well conclude like Aleister Crowley, "Do what thou wilt shall be the whole of the Law."

I happen to believe we make our own morality and enforce through our societies. They lack any reality.
The approach I take is to review the stae of affairs as I would like them and compare against the state of affairs others would like. Where there is agreement we can negotiate terms for abiding by them as if the had a reality. I don't need to make up any transendental reality behind my moral beliefs.

And there you have it: A dismissal based on someone's upbringing. You freely discuss her upbringing, and you argue that her upbringing frames her beliefs. But you do not argue the points she puts forward. You gratuitously, dismiss them as flawed. But you offer no reasoning as to why. Which could produce a fruitful, and intersting, discussion.

But you do not argue her points. You argue the personality of the author.

You dismiss, but you do not discuss.

The hallmark of an empty position.

Amusingly, I had a similar encounter to this, just this weekend. A colleague dismissed Rand's work based on Rand's upbringing, and personality. But she refused to discuss the work, itself. During the exchange, she quoted Nietzsche, who was, many believe--herself included--mad. Which by the rule of the fruit of the poisoned tree would invalidate any of Nieztsche's writings, and yet, she had no problem with them. When the dichotomy of this thinking was presented to her, she became entrenched, and repeated what she had earlier said, but never once addressed the points made in Rand's work. She only dismissed Rand based on her personal history. And yet defended Nietzsche on his, while admitting, again, that he was mad.

When I said, "You know, I've read 'Rules for Radicals," too.

She threw a microphone at me, and stomped out of the studio.

Those of us still reading this thread know what you're doing.
Dismiss, marginalize, destroy. But, so far, you've only made gratuitous dismissals of the author's work, without ever discussing the work, itself. Only the author. That is an empty position. The USENet equivalent of 'So's your old man.'

Hardly compelling.

And very sandbox.

You know, I disagree, often, with a number of members in this forum. Sometimes quite strongly. The ones I respect, the ones worthy of respect, are the ones who don't resort to arguing personalities, but rather those who discuss issues. Some, even, can do it without vitriol. Those are the ones who can actually be persuasive.

But, you, so far, have not done that.

More's the pity. Because you marginalize yourself in the process. And in such a way, any valid points you may have had, never materialize.

Have a good day.

You may now repeat empty dismissals, again.

David Peter Maus

Huh?

Bachmann has a brain? What brain?

Bachmann thought "the shot heard 'round the world" was in New Hampshire, not Massachusetts.

During the Great Breast Pump controversy of several weeks ago, Bachmann did not know the difference between Ms. Obama and the IRS nor did Bachmann know the difference between "free" and a "tax write-off".

Some brain...

- This can't be a US broadcast, in my opinion . Very deep fading , must
- be from an overseas station . Whether it is Arabic language or some
- other (like Farsi or some other) is hard to say - it is mostly music
- being played , not much talk in their program .

Listened Again Last Night [17 April 2010]

S-Meter : Solid S9 and SIO 444 with Good Audio I did not detect any noticeable fading just some general atmospheric noise; but still good audio.

Better signal than the night before and it did sounded more like Farsi and several mentions of Iran. ? ? ?

'Accented' Female Voice briefly in English @ 0835 UTC

Strange they played a "Volare" by Dean Martin @ 0850 UTC

Again heard a "WWRB" ID @ 0900 UTC
http://www.wwrb.org/
Morrison, Tennessee -USA-

FWIW : No "Overcomer Ministry" Broadcast with Brother Stair on 3185 kHz which is very normal for this time and frequency.
-note- the Signal Level and Audio was as good the usual "Overcomer Ministry" Broadcast.

Suspect that WWRB has had a Program Change that is NOT yet reflected in their website.

Well, that is often the case. The theology of Karl Barth, for example, can only really be understood within the context of Nazi Germany. His distrust of 'systematic theology' was part and parcel of an attempt to defend the Lutheran church against the corrupting influence of Nazi ideology. It's clear that Marx's philosophy takes as its starting point the Hegelianism and Pietism of his youth, imbibed at home and at school /university.

Fine. I will play ball (as you quaint colonials say) instead.

(Matter snipped.)

"In epistemology, she considered all knowledge to be based on sense perception, the validity of which she considered axiomatic,[86] and reason, which she described as "the faculty that identifies and integrates the material provided by man's senses."[87]"

86.^ Peikoff, Leonard (1991). Objectivism: The Philosophy of Ayn Rand. New York: E. P. Dutton1991, pp. 38–39; Gotthelf, Allan (2000). On Ayn Rand. Wadsworth Philosophers Series. Belmont, California: Wadsworth Publishing, p. 54
87.^ Rand 1964, Rand, Ayn). The Virtue of Selfishness. New York: Penguin.p. 22

I have to tell you that a European first year philosophy student would have problems with that. You do not have to be Derrida or Foucault to realise that one cannot be absolutely objective. The concepts of post-modernist discourse theory and social construct suggest that the empirical evidence of our senses is mediated through a social construct much influenced by a variety of mental baggage. The later Wittgenstein and his followers realised that the 'verification principle' at the heart of logical positivism was not universally applicable. We are, in fact, in the realm of probability theory here....everything has to be banced on a gamble, an assumption (though some assumptions have better odds than others). I do not think that Ayn Rand could accept that, for she wanted certainties where none existed.

I could say more, but I'll leave it at that.

Granted. But the context of upbringing, and indoctrination at rearing does not preclude the debate of the writings, themselves on their own merits. Context permits understanding of motivations, perhaps. And even subtle nuances in the content under contest. But it does not, perforce, allow for the abject dismissal on context alone.

Which is what is presented in this thread.

One can, one must, debate the merits of the content on the content. Not on the personality of the author.

Nor has anyone asserted that one must. She as merely asserted that the input is sensory, and that reason collates the understanding. If there is objectivity, a theoretical possiblity, but practically rare, so much the better. If there is not, then that must be sussed at the time of discussion. But the lack of absolute objectivity does not invalidate the text.

There is hardly objectivity in any of the postings here. And yet, there is a distinct bias in one direction to many of those deemed good and acceptable, vs those that are not.

The difference is the point of debate. Not cause for dismissal.

The

Again, reason for debate of her content. Not dismissal based on her personality, upbringing, or influences.

Put that another way, there is nothing in her background that precludes her from presenting true, meaningful, correct, or important observations and conclusion. The presentations must be debated on their face value. Not evaluated by her background and upbringing.

Or more simply...one may say a true statement, even if one's background does not support the saying of true statements.

It is the statement, itself, that must be debated for it's truth or falseness. Not the background of the speaker. Or else, we have to dismiss nearly all writings by those who write fiction, or those who have overcome their upbringing.

Rand presented theses in Atlas Shrugged that are roundly dismissed, here, by virtue of her upbringing and the context of the formation of her values. But no one is debating the content of the writing, itself. Only her motivations inferred from the politics of the work, against her background.

The debate about her background is a valid debate. But it is not, in fact, about the work. And it's the work that has made the bold statements, here.

Too bad she's a midget. Americans don't elect freaks president. That's why they hid Roosevelt's polio.

$2,000 would have gotten you a Pinto. Today you can get a similar car from Kia or Hyundai for about 9 grand.

Pintos didn't exist for at least two decades beyond the time he's referring to, which seems to be around 1955-1960, or thereabouts. At that time, $2000 was pretty standard for a car. Even the original Mustang cost under $3000 in 1964. About the only cars you couldn't get in the late 50's for around that mark were high end Chryslers, Cadillacs, etc.

Also, I wanna know where you can get a Kia or a Hyundai for $9000.. you can't even get one here in Korea for that kind of money.

KKK is a Christian oriented group that believes in the right to be white . Not illegal to be white ...yet.
Just like the blacks, browns, Catholics , Muslims .... they fight for their rights or they will lose them .
Nothing wrong with fighting for your rights. Nothing wrong with hating those who hate you .

Again, you didn't read what I wrote, truncated it and presented nothing of your own. Because it is a work of fiction we cannot debate its content.
All we can do is argue the philosophy being presented. That's why I've

asked you over and over to start the argument in support of the pholosophy and ignore the story. The truth of the philosophy cannot in any way depend upon the story. It is a work of fiction.

> Put that another way, there is nothing in her background that

Yes, but "Atlas Shrugged" is a work of fiction. It rests upon her philosophy but does not support it. There are several types of fiction. Some are intended to just be a good read while others are intended to present a truth about the world. Ayn intended the latter. One must extract the philosophy then evaluate it on its own merits. If it is found wanting then one is left explaining why the author believed it. Even if the philosophy is true then the author's life history can explain how she came to her position.

And again, we can't argue "Atlas Shurgged" because it is a work of fiction. What we can argue is the philosophy presented. I've asked you over and over to start doing so. I've even given you a brief counter and you deleted it complaining that I didn't present any.

> Rand presented theses in Atlas Shrugged that are roundly > dismissed, here, by virtue of her upbringing and the context of the > formation of her values.

Not true. I have tried to explain how she came to hold her beliefs.
I dismiss her philosophy because it is unsound. I've given hints and made some statements straight out wich you dismiss without reason because I don't want to discuss the book but rather the philosophy presented in the book. I doubt you can't argue the philosophy so are reduced to misunderstanding what I've written. I actually presented an argument similar to Barry's in response to RHF. It would have been much easier had you just started arguing the philosophy rather than complain about Ayn's life history being prejudicial to her beliefs.

The work isn't worth debating. The philosophy is minimally worth it. Please start arguing the philosophy. The author stackes the deck in favor of her philosophy; that's how these things work. The philosophy has to stand on its own.

Nonsense.

All allegory is fiction. And it's debated every day. 2001 was a work of fiction and it was debated at the college level. 'the prisoner' was a work of fiction, and in some schools, there have been courses dedicated to it since 1968.

Brave New World was fiction. It was debated in every school I attended.

The Republic was a work of fiction, and it may, in fact be the most debated work in history, beyond The Bible.

An Inconvenient Truth was a work of fiction. And yet....well, Gore won't debate that topic, will he....sorry, bad example.

That a work of fiction can't be debated on its content is utter rubbish.

ROY, in addition to your diatribe being ridiculous beyond all belief (what else is new), this is beside the point. If Byrd belonged to the KKK, it was not his father's fault, nor was it Byrd's fault that his father belonged. Each many makes his own decisions. My Dad was a Mason. Does that make me a Mason? OF COURSE NOT - but if I was, would it be his fault? OF COURSE NOT. I am a member of an astronomy club. Does that make my dad a member of my astornomy club? OF COURSE NOT - but if he was, would it be my fault? OF COURSE NOT.

I trust that every rational human can see this plainly. I have nothing more to say on this matter.

My grandparents left me gold coins and nice nuggets from the gold rush era. Now, unless I find gold coins at a real steal, from people who don't know what they have, I always purchase bullion -- my favorites are little ~1 oz ingots which once were very common and are now very collectible -- but I won't pay higher than what the gold is actually quoted at, at the time of purchase, plus a small fee for the transaction (I have paid higher than value for VERY old bullion coming from the gold rush era.) The firm I deal with is in San Fransisco and has been in business for over 100 years and is family owned.

Between jobs, one of my sons went around to flea markets, public functions and rented a small corner store and bought/sold gold. During this time it was unbelievable who would show up with gold (you would wonder where the winos and drug addicts were getting all of it?) and sell it for pennies on the dollar! He turned me onto a lot of great deals during that time -- however, pressure from law enforcement and government were constantly a hassle and in latter years had gotten much worse -- today the paperwork and such must be a real pain!

The Numismatic value of the coins would not have the value they have today in a very dramatic crisis, indeed, in a "total meltdown" of the economy the numismatic value would likely fall to ZERO! Never pay, invest in or count on any "perceived/imagined value!" -- RULE NO. 1.

You can watch the "gold wars" here:
http://www.goldalert.com/2011/04/gold-silver-fall-as-china-steps-up-inflation-fight/

Market manipulations of gold/metals is always fun to watch!

My two favorite "hobbies" are keeping aquariums and raising exotic fish/aquatic-species and collecting gold -- I actually like the aquariums better ...

It's not stuck. Unfinished business awaits Mr. Bush the next time he leaves the USA. He is wanted man in most of the world. Why were the Good Germans the last to find out?

Well, comparing bush to obama, and which you'd rather have as a corrupt crook in public servant office, is exactly like pondering which TSA guard you'd rather have grope you ...

Personally, I find neither choice acceptable.

bush and obama, BOTH, sharing the same gallows would be an acceptable solution ...

Yes, you do. But only in the context of the author's background.
That is only relevant if we are discussing the author.

I see perhaps I've not been clear.

My point in jumping into this thread is that the sum of the discussion, your own position excluded, has been that the film's release has been roundly dismissed, as has Rand's work based on her background, the conflicts that would appear to have risen between the work and her background, but not the work, itself.

In the context of this thread, the condemnation being of the teller, not the tale. And using the condemnation of the teller to dismiss the tale.

This is as absurd as dismissing the humor of Groucho Marx because he was chronically depressed. Or dismissing the speeches of Ted Kennedy about the need of the society to uplift the poor because he was raised as a child of privilege.

The work stands on its own. Regardless of the author's past. Or even her own philosophy. You seem willing to debate at least the substance of the themes of the work. And kudos to you.

That would make, in all, two, who have participated in this thread, so willing. The rest are just abject dismissals without addressing the content.

I see where you're coming from. And your points about specifically Rand's thinking and the philosophies engaged, here.

> Do you have a view on the post-modernist critique of rationalism and > structuralism?

Yes, I do. And thank you for asking. But my philosophies are not at issue here.

What I have a problem in all of this, here, is this statement, which is in fact at the core of this thread:

> But in a discussion of social construct, how do we avoid our mental >> baggage?

We, in fact, can. No one says it's easy. But it is possible. But why must we? You have your baggage, I have mine, Rand had hers. And from what I've read, quite a porter of it. So, what? In a practical and honest discussion, the baggage cancels itself out so that facts can be debated. But even that's not the issue that brought me into this thread.

It's the tale, not the teller, that's been at issue in the thread. Specifically, the dismissal of the work based on the author's upbringing. My point in all of this is that there's been a cheap sophistic attempt to dismiss the work, largely because it doesn't suit the tastes of a political body. And the argument has been couched in rhetoric that seeks to tie the baggage of the author into the the merits of the work. This is not a valid disposition. Else, we must dismiss everyone who's ever written, because of their own conflicting baggage. Including Lenin, Plato, Nietzsche, or Groucho Marx.

In 1966 I could buy a 16 oz Coke and a pack of Camels for $0.50 at the Circle K. I have never seen gasoline below 20 cents a gallon (leaded regular). Inflation started getting really bad during Nixon.

His reference to "the Democratic Governor of Alabama" rather belies that assertion. The reference was clearly to Alabama, not Arkansas.

I am sure there were gas wars long after the normal prices rose above
.20 cents ...

But, perhaps I did exaggerate, it was half a century ago ... I'll admit,
I don't have that good of a memory ... I'll up that to >0.30 cents and stand corrected!

Early this morning when the wife and I went a few blocks for breakfast, I filled on the way back, $4.19 a gallon! And, that is one of the cheaper stations around here ... $4.37 is the highest I have seen, to date.

Anyway you cut it, it was almost $60 to take it from a 1/4 tank to full
... :-(

But you were complaining that no-one criticises Rand on the basis of her philosophy alone! Now it seems that you don't want to discuss that.

Sorry, but I couldn't give a toss! Do you want to discuss her

That is a post-modernist position that relates to everyone. What makes Rand any different?

We don't dismiss them. We analyse them, we critique them, and we interpret them. In the process, we find that some are probably more credible than others.

You still aren't getting the point.

OK, I've rethought this. I agree that it could be done. I'm not in a position to do so. I was introduced to Ayn Rand with the film "The Foundainhead" when as a kid I would stay up late and watch movies. I bought several of her books and read them. When I started thinking about her philosophy I realized just how bad it was.

Everything we know we know through our senses. So far so good. Some people are blind and some are deaf. The blind person cannot know the color red in the same way the sighted do nor can the deaf know middle C the same way the hearing do. The lack of a sense doesn't change what actaully exists only our realization of it. Radiation existed prior to our ability to detect it.

There is some stuff we do due to our evolutionary heritage. Many animals survive mainly on inate response to stimulii. We think of ourselves as thinking beings so when we act without thought we will try to explain our actions as if rational even where there's nothing rational going on--evolution selects behaviors based upon survival; thoughtful action isn't necessarily the most efficient.

Reality has no morality. Even when we discuss morality we limit it to human actions. This alone should put the lie to it. If morality had an objective existence then it would apply to all of reality not just humans.

Reasoning can improve our survivability. While I'd like to say our existence proves this I cannot do so directly because traits neither selected for nor against will randomly drift. I must instead suggest each look into himself or herself and look for situations where prior thought has lead to survival. I believe all of us can find such cases.

We are social animals. Social animals benefit from predicting the behaviors of one's fellow societal members. This doesn't make one behavior moral and another immoral. We can modify our behavior based upon our predictions of others' responses and we benefit from doing so.

The range of human behaviors is quite large. By restricting those behaviors with the social context we reduce the complexity in predicting others' behaviors and responses to our behaviors. Myths, such as morality, serves to restrict the range of behaviors we can expect and this aides our survival.

I suspect I've said enough for now and you can find stuff with which to disagree. Hell, you'll probably discount it yet again becuase I don't like Ayn Rand's characterization of her philosophy as "Objectivism" when nothing could be further from the truth.

You might compare that with the number of lives lost on 9-11. Or the economic injury incurred from that event.
It would have been cheaper in both lives and money to just suffer another 9-11 every six or seven years.

Corsi is a certified nut job.

BTW, here is the birth certificate:

http://www.factcheck.org/elections-2008/born_in_the_usa.html

This is the one whose authenticity has been verified by officials of the Hawaii Department of Health numerous times.

Audiences Shrugged: Film Adaptation of Conservatives' Beloved Ayn Rand Novel Disappoints at Box Office

Anyone tempted to declare the weekend box office grosses of the Atlas Shrugged movie should take it up with the folks at Box Office Mojo:

For a pure independent release, Atlas Shrugged: Part I's opening was fine. But for the first-ever adaptation of Ayn Rand's influential mega-selling 1957 novel that had far more media hype than any other independent movie could dream of, it was disappointing.

There aren't many direct comparisons, because it's rare that an adaptation of such a famous book gets such a modest release. Atlas Shrugged: Part I opened higher than recent limited Christian movies The Grace Card and To Save a Life, and it was distributor Rocky Mountain Pictures' third highest-grossing launch, behind End of the Spear and Expelled: No Intelligence Allowed. But none of those movies are significant in the grand scheme of things. They're all still blips, even if Atlas was a slightly bigger blip than many.

What's more, Atlas Shrugged: Part I's box office dropped six percent from Friday to Saturday, further indicating niche appeal. The movie would require exceptional holds moving forward to right its course.

... Didactics alone don't carry the day. To the uninitiated (and to many of the initiated), Atlas Shrugged: Part I looked stilted, esoteric and cheap in its marketing....

Boosters of Atlas Shrugged: Part I might point to the movie's per theater average to spin it as a success (ex. "it did almost as much per theater as Scream 4!"), but spin is all it is. It's a common ploy to cling to per-theater average to rationalize a soft run. Obviously, it's generally easier for a small release to have a higher per-theater average than one at over 3,000 theaters (at any rate, Scream 4 was a disappointment itself)....

Nabbing $1,677,000 on 300 screens (for a $5,590 per-screen average) is slightly better than the first-weekend performance of From Prada to Nada a couple of months ago ($1,115,638, 256 screens, $4,358 per-screen average). From Prada has now made a total of, um, a little over $3 million. It has not changed the world.

"The liberty of a democracy is not safe if the people tolerate the growth of private power to a point where it becomes stronger than their democratic state itself. That, in its essence, is Fascism--ownership of government by an individual, by a group, or by any controlling private power."

" For too many of us the political equality we once had won was meaningless in the face of economic inequality. A small group had concentrated into their own hands an almost complete control over other people's property, other people's money, other people's labor – other people's lives. For too many of us life was no longer free; liberty no longer real; men could no longer follow the pursuit of happiness.
Against economic tyranny such as this, the American citizen could appeal only to the organized power of government. The collapse of 1929 showed up the despotism for what it was. The election of 1932 was the people's mandate to end it. Under that mandate it is being ended.

The modern conservative is engaged in one of man's oldest exercises in moral philosophy; that is, the search for a superior moral justification for selfishness.--John Kenneth Galbraith

"There is a great deal of psychological comfort to be found in a fully fledged ideology such as laissez faire because it removes the need for critical thought. The ideology is used as an algorithm. All the individual has to do in any situation is to ask what the ideology requires by way of action. The fact that the action may be harmful or the ideology objectively at odds with reality is emotionally unimportant for the individual. What matters is that an answer has been found which is compatible with the ideology. This is especially appealing to the less intellectually curious.

Psychologically, political ideologies are akin to religion and their practitioners behave in an essentially religious manner. For example, in the case of laissez faire, its disciples chant "let the market decide" in the manner of Christians saying "God will provide."

Those amongst the elite who are not true believers in laissez faire will, in most cases, toe the ideological line because they deem it prudent to do so for their own careers and security. The few who speak out against it are simply sidelined.

Taxes are not "punishment for success". Nor are they "theft". Taxes are a royalty paid commensurate to the economic benefit obtained from a shared socio-economic system.

"Those who gain the benefit should also bear the disadvantage."
- Common Law maxim

``Capitalism sowed the seeds of its own demise because the benefits of a decade-long boom accrued to capital, with nothing flowing to labor. Telling workers who hadn't had a decent pay raise for years to tighten their belts once the good times ended proved disastrous.

The biggest political story of 2008 is getting little coverage. It involves the collapse of assumptions that have dominated our economic debate for three decades.
Since the Reagan years, free market cliches have passed for sophisticated economic analysis. But in the current crisis, these ideas are falling, one by one, as even conservatives recognize that capitalism is ailing.
You know the talking points: Regulation is the problem and deregulation is the solution. The distribution of income and wealth doesn't matter. Providing incentives for the investors of capital to "grow the pie" is the only policy that counts. Free trade produces well-distributed economic growth, and any dissent from this orthodoxy is "protectionism."
e.j. dionne

teddy roosevelt

We wish to control big business so as to secure among other things good wages for the wage-workers and reasonable prices for the consumers. Wherever in any business the prosperity of the businessman is obtained by lowering the wages of his workmen and charging an excessive price to the consumers we wish to interfere and stop such practices. We will not submit to that kind of prosperity any more than we will submit to prosperity obtained by swindling investors or getting unfair advantages over business rivals.

Remember, when a Republican talks about "Free" Markets, they mean

Free of Regulation
Free of Oversight
Free of Competition
Free of Ethics
Free of Morality
Free of Common Sense
Free of Long Term Thinking'

"disinterest in good government has long been a principle of modern conservatism."
paul krugman

Economist and author Henry Liu summed it up brilliantly in a recent article in the Asia Times:
"The collapse of market fundamentalism in economies everywhere is putting the Chicago School theology on trial. Its big lie has been exposed by facts on two levels. The Chicago Boys' claim that helping the rich will also help the poor is not only exposed as not true, it turns out that market fundamentalism hurts not only the poor and the powerless; it hurts everyone, rich and poor, albeit in different ways. When wages are kept low to fight inflation, the low-wage regime causes overcapacity through over investment from excess profit. And monetary easing under such conditions produces hyperinflation that hurts also the rich. The fruits of Friedman test are in - and they are all rotten."

and we can go back to adam smith, who was really a socialist, not a libertarian, who advocated for wealth redistribution, unions, regulation, as well as taxation based on ones abilities to pay.

Nice reminder, but to pick a nit they weren't warning residents of Boston. They rode from Boston and warned people to help in Lexington

You are probably hearing the Zahedan, Iran site. It runs 500KW.
Greece runs 250KW, but the signal you get depends on the xmtr. antenna

Oh yeah, Siskel and Ebert, I remember watching them. I always thought they were a comedy team ... you mean they actually were commenting on the quality of the movies? And, they actually expected someone to take them seriously?

Damn, makes me feel bad now ... I certainly am not a movie critic then ... however, luckily, that does nothing to make good movies worse!

Siskel and Ebert used to be on tee vee, I think it was on Sunday evenings, if I remember.They had their Thumbs up, and their Thumbs down on whatever movies they were critiquing.Sometimes they would agree with each other, and sometimes not.The way Roger Ebert used to squirm around in that chair, it looked like he had Hemoroids.

But you seeeeee, either I Like a movie, or not like a movie, or perhaps

I can honestly say, I don't care, one way or another ... however, I can plainly see, they ARE girly-men! Of course, I have seen macho-men (big, hairy, burly football players even) who are gay ... so, just looking like a girly-man doesn't make it so ... no argument there.

Yep. Same in my house. Only, I have to do the "thumbs up/down" thing with the wife ... we don't always agree -- so I understand Siskel and Ebert. Worst thing, me and the wife can do it all day and no one will pay us! Maybe if we looked like girly-men someone might pay us?

Yeah, I didn't get it, at first, either.

That is why he needs the teleprompter, the brain surgeon slipped and scalpel slipped into the speech area of the brain!

Wow, don't you just feel bad now, I mean by enjoying all the jokes about obama (soetoro) and his teleprompter?

Of course, I still have some belief in the illegal alien implant theory ... and that is why he refuses to tighten the borders and deport illegal aliens, gives 'em drives licenses without birth certificates, work without proper verification, etc!

Will have to see what future evidence comes to light ... I guess :-)

To pick another nit, Revere didn't -ride- from Boston at all.

He was rowed across the Charles River from Boston and his ride actually commenced in Charlestown.

Dawes however took the long way around and actually began in Boston.

Don't worry, Johnny's "plonking" usually lasts about an hour or so. I don't think he really understands what the term means. No shock there, he's pretty far out of touch with reality in everything else.

I guess hoagland interjects some dark humor into all this ...

It is obvious, hoagland feels if NIST can get away with a bogus report ignoring free fall speeds, incendiaries in the dust, collapse into their own footprints (controlled demolition) and claim "the buildings just fell" at their scientific finding ... that hoagland feels his alien conspiracy theory should hold just as much weight!

I tend to agree ...

Former Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan is stepping up his call for Congress to let the Bush-era tax cuts lapse.

In an appearance Sunday on NBCï¿½s ï¿½Meet the Press,ï¿½ Mr. Greenspan used his strongest words yet to urge lawmakers to let them expire. The risk of a U.S. debt crisis, he said, is just too big. Mr. Greenspan, who retired from the Federal Reserve in 2006, had endorsed the cuts back in 2001 championed by then-President George W. Bush.

ï¿½This crisis is so imminent and so difficult that I think we have to allow the so-called Bush tax cuts all to expire. That is a very big number,ï¿½ he said, referring to how much the U.S. government could save from letting income taxes go back up to levels last seen under former President Bill Clinton.

Mr. Greenspan was talking about re-imposing the taxes for all

This whole thread sounds like a bad MLM (Multi Level Marketing) scheme.
You're not selling a bad or fake product, but a cooked-up idea based on thin air.
Many conspiracy-theories goes like this; If one could only convince 3 or 4 people that the theory holds water, you're in business. Those 3 or 4 would tell their friends etc. and the story will gain credibility. Never mind the thruth, it's the marketing of the idea/theory that matters.

Products sold via MLM can only make the approx. top 10 sellers rich. The rest of the gullible merchants below in the pyramid are just useful idiots that can never make a return on their investment. I believe "John Smith" (?) is such an useful idiot trapped in a such an MLM "selling" this kook idea. He (and others) probably have way too much spare-time.

PS. Here is a good article debunking MLM:

Here in California, you can get a "Medical Marijuana Card" (actually just certification from a doctor), allows you to grow up to six budding plants with six starter plants as backup.

Or, you can simply go to a medical marijuana dispensary and buy it.

All the claims by all the nutjobs that this would be bring on a whole slew of problems, or worsen existing ones, were total BS. But, now government is attempting to figure out a whole slew of ways to make money off this ... I expect by the time they are done, the whole slew of problems there were speaking of will fall upon our heads!

If you ask someone on the streets, "Have you noticed problems from legalizing medical marijuana?", half or better don't even know it has been legalized, don't care, and haven't noticed anything but the same-old-same-old -- I had suspected it would all be like that. Even the people who were screaming of how dangerous it would be to legalize medical marijuana have disappeared!

Only makes you wonder what else is a big lie by government ...

The other side of that is much, much more dangerous:

"The only people who don't want to disclose the truth are people with something to hide." -- barack obama (AKA barry soetoro)

Or, as has recently been shown out, "THE TRUTH TRUMPS!"

Or, is that, The Trump truths?

Exactly, diversity and multiculturalism are opium dreams!

Everyone is always happier in their own neighborhoods, around their own people, telling jokes about someone else race, ethnicity and cultural traditions! DUH!

When we finally get government manipulation out of the way and things go back to normal all this crap that is being stirred up will die down ... we have seen the enemy and the enemy is/are out own public servants!

Well, I will admit, regan did a better job of acting the part of president ... but then, he had an unfair advantage -- regan was an actor, had practice/experience at acting the part of a governor in California and a slew of grade B movies -- on the other hand, obama is a poor actor with very little or no experience!

Don't forget the Federal Reserve criminals. Kennedy was going to take amount of profits at stake would have been immeasurable.

I have a sincere belief that it was the Reserve that had him killed.

Do you even know what "peer reviewed" means?

It simply means publishing/releasing the work(s) so that others, with proper qualifications, can make comments, dispute points/conclusions, etc.

Since its' release, nothing but peer review has been happening ... all you are noticing is the complete lack of credible scientists, PhDs', engineers, architects, etc. disputing his conclusions/statements ...

a radical who employs terror as a political weapon; usually organizes with other terrorists in small cells; often uses religion as a cover for terrorist activities

So, it is pretty broad ... one thing is for sure, the forefathers of America were terrorists!

So, one must conclude, there are good terrorists and there are bad ones.

Personally, I have problems with the TSA terrorizing citizens with full body scans and physical molestations of their persons ... Bradley Manning being tortured (just a couple of examples), etc. ...

The documents, revealed for the first time, show that how British Petroleum (BP)'s concerns over losing lucrative contracts in Iraq were addressed by then Trade Minister, Baroness Symons, the daily Independent reported.

According to the papers, Baroness Symons had assured BP, five months before the 2003 invasion, that British energy firms would be given their shares of Iraq's enormous oil and gas reserves as a reward for Tony Blair's commitment to US plans for regime change in the country.

British oil giant, BP, had voiced concerns that then US government under George W. Bush was quietly striking deals with US, French, and Russian energy firms, the papers say.

Good man!

Clinton and his gang still need to be brought to justice on that one ... the crimes keep piling up and piling up. Meanwhile, our criminal public

Why aren't issues like these on SW radio? (krist, why isn't it even on

SW, get some newbies interested in the hobby, educate people worldwide to issues, improves sales of equipment, etc.

More manipulation of actual facts with disinformation.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Peer_review

"Peer Review", the term, itself, simply tells it all. It requires a Peer(s) and a Review(s) ... the peers must be of equal or above in standing, review is self-explanatory, I hope!

One PhD handing a fellow PhD his document in the mens restroom and the fellow PhD reviewing the document is no more valid than publication on a widely circulating media which is widely available to review by his peers, and allows any remarks, conclusions, arguments, etc. to be "published" with the same ease, DUH!!!

One more "dumber than chit" post, aimed at taking advantage of the uneducated and general population, and you are plonked here ... your worthless drivel substantiates that action!

Actually, an excellent observation!

The NIST report and government statements and actions, after now having been peer reviewed by being made available to ALL Americans -- even the world at large, have been found faulty, misleading, fraudulent, criminal, below the standards of scientific proof, etc.

A proper peer review if I have ever seen one!

I have been in California most of my life, for me has been the best weather, best employment/pay, best place to own a business, best recreation, best beaches, etc. It still is a decent place to retire to ... and serves me well in this ...

Some of that is no longer true ... unfortunately. Crime is bad, unemployment is astronomical, pay is poor, businesses are closing, homelessness abounds, etc.

However, I always felt that the only reason we had earthquakes was to attract tourists and reap the money "earthquake tourism" brings in.

Of course, for decades now, most of us in California have been praying san fransicko would break off and fall into the ocean ... and down south, the LA area, has experienced notable damage, in the past.

But, pretty much, earthquakes are pretty ho-hum to the natives here ...

It is an action where one scientists is reviewed by another, or a group ... it can take place anywhere, in any forum, in any media which gives both the proper platform for the action/exchange to take place in/on.

A terrorist is generally what a dictator (or repressive and controlling government) determines they are ... from what I can see, i.e., it is so broad in coverage as to be virtually meaningless -- this is why it is such a favorite term or our criminal public servants.

JS,

1ST : Technically each and every semi-legal California Medical-Marijuana User is One-Less Illegal Buyer of Illegal Street Drugs and Reduces the Gross Revenue of Street Drugs and the Street Drug Traffic.
-less-drug-dealers--that-has-to-be-some-social-good-

2ND - Medical-Marijuana is a Drug-of-Choice -cause-There are other RX Drug that Medical-Marijuana Users can Take and Use for the Treatment of Their Medical Problems -but- They 'Choose' Medical-Marijuana.

3RD - Medical-Alcohol is a Drug-of-Choice -cause-
There are other RX Drug that Medical-Alcohol Users can Take and Use for the Treatment of Their Medical Problems -but- They 'Choose' Medical-Alcohol.

4TH - Medical-Alcohol Drug Users Who Have Over-Dosed face serious Restrictions on What They Can and Can NOT Do While 'In' a State of Medical-Alcohol Over-Dose
-aka- Alcohol Intoxication : Legally Drunk [Impaired]
* Can't Drive a Car/Truck
* Can't Operate Heavy Equipment
* Can't Operate Machinery
* Can't Be At Work
 Legally Prohibited from Doing These When Using Medical-Alcohol and in an Over-Dosed
'State' -aka- Alcohol Intoxication : Legally Drunk
[Impaired Judgement and Motor Skills]

5TH - Therefore It Follows that Medical-Marijuana Drug Users Who Are Over-Dosed {Buzzed/Stoned} should face serious Restrictions on What They Can and Can NOT Do While 'In' a State of Medical-Marijuana Over-Dose
-aka- Marijuana Intoxication : Legally Buzzed-Stoned
[Impaired Judgement and Motor Skills]
* Can't Drive a Car/Truck
* Can't Operate Heavy Equipment
* Can't Operate Machinery
* Can't Be At Work
 Legally Prohibited from Doing These When Using Medical-Marijuana and in an Over-Dosed
'State' -aka- Marijuana Intoxication : Legally Stoned
[Impaired Judgement and Motor Skills]

6TH - The State of California should Regulate and License Medial-Marijuana Use and Clinics {Dispensaries} Just Like
They Do For Bars and Liquor Stores and Methodone Clinics.
-regulate-and-tax-the-business:-control-the-use-&-user-

IMHO : All Medical-Marijuana Users Should Have It Clearly Stamped-On* Their California Drivers License/ID Card as a Mandatory Public Safety Issue/Control
* Balancing The Individual's Right To Use Medical-Marijuana With Societies Right To Have Safe Streets and Drug Free Work Places.

CONCLUSION :
All the Medical-Alcohol Laws, Use Restrictions and Impairment Prohibitions Should Equally Apply To Medical-Marijuana Users.

Well, again, one thing is for certain, todays' terrorists use better bullets than the forefathers did against the British!

String up a couple of electric wire with a good "shocker" hooked up to 'em.

Get a great and funny infrared video to post up on the web which will give us all a good laugh! :-)

Seen a cheap electric fence charger for $39.95 at the local cheap tool outlet here ... that and some old wire and a handful of insulators should get some action going!

If all war is "terrorism", then we don't need that word. Terrorism is a way of terrifying a population, not in terrifying the soldiers.

This attempt doesn't change its original meaning though - not quite

Well, my whole point was to point out, I no longer have any respect for my government (the public servants, not the real government -- my fellow citizens), I can no longer trust my government, my government lies ... and, "terrorist" is useful to make anyone, anywhere, a perceived enemy ... it you trust or favor the opinion of the one making the claim, "TERRORIST!"

That claim falls on deaf ears with my family, my friends, myself and many I engage in conversations these days ...

Too often I see "terrorists" as just scapegoats, people with natural resources which our government wishes to steal (actually aid the puppet masters in stealing), a way to make banks and uber-rich richer, etc.

It is all about a sham, an illusion, a lie ...

For the first half of the United States, the country supported the rebels virtually every time in foreign wars. Then its self-identity changed and it supported the establishment virtually every time.

Not terrorism. The Colonists fought the Revolution as a guerilla war. Largely because they had neither the manpower, or the resources to go line for line against the superiour enemy.

I just love how everyone has their own definition of "terrorist" and "terrorism" ...:

terror - panic: an overwhelming feeling of fear and anxiety terror - a person who inspires fear or dread; "he was the terror of the neighborhood" terror - a very troublesome child terror - the use of extreme fear in order to coerce people (especially for political reasons); "he used terror to make them confess" wordnetweb.princeton.edu/perl/webwn

(or, find and place your favorite definition here)

But, none of these fit with the way our government uses it, to attack disillusioned vets would have been there and realized the truth, to attack patriotic militias here who insist on Constitutional Law, to attack patriotic Americans who protests become too vocal or catch too much of the public eye, to attack oil rich nations, or nations of strategic importance, by attacking those who demand their rights, to those who question and resist authority, ... etc., etc.

It is a sham, it is a lie, it is an illusion ... we have seen the enemies and they are our public servants, a shadow government, large corporate interests, etc. ...

I really can't believe there are Americans who can believe that stealing the resources of other countries are going to help our problems here ... the unemployed, the homeless, those without medical care, youth needing good educations, etc.

All I see now is that by the time we get everyone focused on our real problems, the resources needed to fix them will already have been stolen, the economy destroyed and the criminals living in safe-houses far from American shores ... those crooks who consider themselves "world citizens" and not holding allegiance, bond, debt or service to any specific country, government, or people ... we will see.

I was at a location today where I noticed they had a trash can half full of those CFLs. They were the ones that were supposed to last up to 9 years. According to my client they were all less than a year old. And now they are where the majority of the blow ones will end up. In a regular old trash can destined for a landfill.

The CFL Fraud -or- Misunderstanding ! :
What Is a Light Bulb's Average Service Use [ASU]
and a Light Bulb's Average Service Life [ASL] ?

1st the usual 4~6~8 Year 'claimed' Life of a CFL Bulb is in the Up-Right {Base-Down} Position.
http://www.coejl.org/greensyn/CFL%20USDOE.gif

Oops - A CFL in the Base-Up Position : Cut the Average Service Use [ASU] in Half !
-and- Oops Oops - A CFL in the Base-Up Position :
Often Reduces the Light Output by 10%~15% ?

2nd the usual 4~6~8 Year 'claimed' Life of a CFL Bulb is for only a low average of 4-Hours Use per Day [HU/D] 4 X 365 = 1460 = One Years Average Service Use [OYASU]
6000 Hours Rated CFL Life = 4 OYASU
That's About 4-Years Average Service Use [ASU]

CFL's that are in 24/7 Service Use for 365 Days {1-Year}
Have Run for 8760 Hours which is roughly 6-Year ASU.
which is all used up in one year.

Had some 24/7 locations on a job where the old Long-Life
Incandescent Light Bulbs were on a 2-Month Replacement Cycle {Usually Burned-Out} that required the Use of a Ladder.
* The new CFLs Averaged 1-Year before Burning Out
* Eliminated 5 of the 6 Annual Hours on that Ladder {Saved 5 Hours of Labor}
* Used 1/4th the Electricity
* That was 4 Exit Signs Inside and 6 Outside-Lights
{3 for the Outside Front}
+ Up Graded the Inside Exit Signs to Red LEDs a few years back; and have not replace them since. :o)

IMHO : All CFL Bulbs Should be Enclosed in Glass or Plastic Envelopes for Environmental Safe Handling

it is impossible for liberals to be fascists. fascists hate liberals, trade unionist, socialists, communists, jews(because most of them are liberal), the weak, the disabled, minorities, homosexuals. they are intolerant of other views and religions. they practice bigotry, racism, and homophobia, etc. say, i just described the modern conservative movement:)

here are the three 3 phases of conservative decay.
1.conservatism(policies always fail)
2. libertarianism(the drive for purity, the conservative polices and those that implemented them, were not pure enough)
3. fascism(the rise of the strong man to ensure purity), the strongman will drive out the impure, liberals, jews, immigrants, trade unionists, communists, socialists, those with mental and physical defects, gypsies, etc. this to fails on a huge scale. just look what happened to the central european fascists. they collapsed their economies, and came up millions of workers and soldiers short.

If we want to have the power to do anything - we need to work on our economy and our identity. A strong tax-paying middle class is how we pay for everything else - including the military. Our identity is what we fight for - the identity of Liberty standing up against tyranny.

If we give up on our future to be strong, we won't be strong long.

Nah - After "BO" {Obama} was Elected to Illinois State
'Public' Office : "BO" {Obama} became a "Profession" Politician and "BO" {Obama} progressed-up the "Profession" Politician Carrier Ladder ever since.

Why Prez "BO" {Obama} has Mastered the "Profession" Politician Skills :
* Promise Promise Promise and Lie Lie Lie
* Spend Spend Spend and Over-Spend Some More !
* Tax Tax Tax and Raise Taxes; Plus More Higher Taxes
* Regulate, Control and Criminalize
* Demonize "The Rich"
* Exploit The Poverty of 'The Poor'
* Play Minorities Against The Majority and vice-versa

Actually, it all really hinges on having no poverty (3rd world conditions) existing in the country.

A measure of any country can be gauged by the poor. When you have ample food, clothing, housing, medical, transportation, education, etc. for everyone, you have a great nation ... we used to have one.

How about a work of "patriotic fiction", set in the future. A band of patriotic American assassins are devoted to the destruction of the illicit government. They become maids, servants, repair men, mechanics, plumbers, etc. But, secretly they are all assassins who have sworn oaths to assassinate all criminal public servants until power is restored to the people.

The secretly infiltrate the homes of public servants where they sprinkle toxic biological and poison which have resulted in the deaths of large numbers of politicians.

They look normal and work into positions where they service public servants cars, where they place bombs and all sorts of killing devices removing the scum politicians from the world.

They are called to politicians homes where they hook up bottles of cyanide gas into the plumbing which release their deadly contents while the politicians sleep.

Etc., etc.

Maybe HBO will pick it up and do a special series on such a premise!!!!

Fluorescent is a great way to go ... however, the old fluorescent were much more green ... first of all, you didn't replace (throw away) the ballast every time you changed the bulb.

Should just have an adapter containing the ballast and just replace the SHO fluorescent "curly Q" tube, tons of ballasts filling land fills is completely senseless!

Our outdoor security lights (56 watt CFL's with the lumens of a 500 watt halide lamp) have replaceable lamps (mogul base) with the ballast contained in the fixture. Too bad this isn't a useful way to go for household lighting.

Back in the 1970s at a W.T.Grant department store that used to be on Ellis Ave near Highway 80 I bought a Philips made in the Netherlands CFL light bulb thingy.The bulb lasted over seventeen years before it finally burned out.I still have it right here, it is on a shelf in one of my bathroom cabinets now.If I could find a new bulb for it, I have no doubt I could use it for a bunch of more years.

New construction uses permanent ballast CFLs. The medium Edison base CFL

And then the patriotic American assassins begin to run the government and the process starts over again...

A constitution is drafted containing the clause:
"when in the Course of human events it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation."

And, it rolls on ... however, WAIT A MINUTE, that clause was included to make government "self correcting", wasn't it?

Guess that is where the part about:
"The tree of liberty must be refreshed from time to time with the blood of patriots and tyrants. ... God forbid we should ever be twenty years without such a rebellion; what country can preserve its liberties if their rulers are not warned from time to time that their people preserve the spirit of resistance? Let them take arms." -- Thomas Jefferson to William Stephens Smith, 1787

I was wonderin' when we were going to get around to that part?

1913. The Republican Party is run by Mad Men.

One of the serious presidential candidates that is leading the pack is Billionaire on Paper Donald Trump who is ranting and raving about a birth certificate that Obama has produced for the public. In other parts of the party they are ranting and raving about providing contraceptive devices for women that are sexually active, this would actually reduce abortions. Some of the radical republicans also want to do away with biology and evolution then teach school children some wild tale that God created Adam & Eve in the Garden of Eden, then were talked into eating some forbidden fruit by a talking serpent and ruining it all for the rest of his. I guess Jehovah was into welfare as long as you lived by his rules.
In Florida they have passed some drug law testing requirement so single women with kids have to pay $75 to get $50 worth of food stamps. It won't be long before the State will require all licensed drivers to do the same drugs test yearly for the privilege to have a drivers license.
In Wisconsin despite the fact that the financial woes are caused by Medicaid and education costs Republicans are against employees having collective bargaining rights, the freedom of association is wrong in the Republican eyes.

The implementation of Fiscal Martial Law in Michigan and the raising specter of such legislationï¿½s enactment in Wisconsin make it clearer than ever the true nature of the enemy. The Republican assault on our democratic values, local governance and workersï¿½ right to have a voice in the work place can best be described as a fascist coup-dï¿½ï¿½tat. In the words of Mussolini, ï¿½fascism should more properly be called corporatism because it is the merger of state and corporate power.ï¿½ The Republicansï¿½ bare-knuckle dedication to cutting taxes on corporations at the expense of the deficit and the middle class exemplifies their loyalty to corporate interests over those of every-day Americans. Perhaps more so than any measure rolled out in recent months, Michigan Gov. Rick Snyderï¿½s implementation of Fiscal Martial Law legislation leaves no room for ambiguity in the Republican gameplan.

CFL Light Bulbs : What Fits... Works !
Creating 'Instant' Consumer Acceptance
It's about having a CFL Bulb Screw-In-and-Glow Instant Replacement for the same-size & same-shape-factor [A19] older Incandescent Bulbs and simply using the existing home electrical fixtures.

* A19 Light Bulb

"Just as the Left was drawn to the communist killing machines of Lenin, Stalin, Mao, Pol Pot, and Castro, so too it is now attracted to radical Islam."

"The contempt that German Hitlerytes had for "Bolshevism" or "marxist Jews" generally should also not mislead us in assessing the similarity between National Socialism and Communism. Leftist sects are very prone to rivalry, dissension, schism and hatred of one-another. One has only to think of the Bolsheviks versus the Mensheviks, Stalin versus Trotsky, China versus the Soviet Union etc. Similarity does not preclude rivalry. Hitler and Stalin were literally brothers in arms BEFORE they became rivals. That socialist brothers sometimes fall out should not prevent us from noting the brotherhood concerned."

"The fundamental dogma of all brands of socialism and communism is that the market economy or capitalism is a system that hurts the vital interests of the immense majority of people for the sole benefit of a small minority of rugged individualists. It condemns the masses to progressing impoverishment. It brings about misery, slavery, oppression, degradation and exploitation of the working men, while it enriches a class of idle and useless parasites."

"This doctrine was not the work of Karl Marx. It had been developed long before Marx entered the scene. Its most successful propagators were not the Marxian authors, but such men as Carlyle and Ruskin, the British Fabians, the German professors and the American Institutionalists. And it is a very significant fact that the correctness of this dogma was contested only by a few economists who were very soon silenced and barred from access to the universities, the press, the leadership of political parties and, first of all, public office. Public opinion by and large accepted the condemnation of capitalism without any reservation."

"The term 'planning' is mostly used as a synonym for socialism, communism, and authoritarian and totalitarian economic management. Sometimes only the German pattern of socialism-Zwangswirtschaft-is called planning, while the term socialism proper is reserved for the Russian pattern of outright socialization and bureaucratic operation of all plants, shops, and farms. At any rate, planning in this sense means all-around planning by the government and enforcement of these plans by the police power. Planning in this sense means full government control of business. It is the antithesis of free enterprise, private initiative, private ownership of the means of production, market economy, and the price system. Planning and capitalism are utterly incompatible. Within a system of planning production is conducted according to the government's orders, not according to the plans of capitalists and entrepreneurs eager to profit by best filling the wants of the consumers.

"But the term planning is also used in a second sense. Lord Keynes, Sir William Beveridge, Professor Hansen, and many other eminent men assert that they do not want to substitute totalitarian slavery for freedom. They declare that they are planing for a free society. They recommend a third system, which, as they say, is as far from socialism as it is from capitalism, which, as a third solution of the problem of society's economic organization, stands midway between the two other systems, and while retaining the advantages of both, avoids the disadvantages inherent in each.

"These self-styled progressives are certainly mistaken when they pretend that their proposals are new and unheard of. The idea of this third solution is very old indeed, and the French have long since baptized it with a pertinent name; they call it interventionism. Hardly anybody can doubt that history will link the idea of social security, more closely than with the American New Deal and with Sir William Beveridge, with the memory of Bismarck whom our fathers did not precisely describe as a liberal. All the essential ideas of present-day interventionist progressivism were neatly expounded by the supreme brain-trusters of imperial Germany, Professors Schmoller and Wagner, who at the same time urged their Kaiser to invade and to conquer the Americas. Far be it from me to condemn any idea only on account of its not being new. But as the progressives slander all their opponents as old-fashioned, orthodox, and reactionary, it is expedient to observe that it would be more appropriate to speak of the clash of two orthodoxies; the Bismarck orthodoxy versus the Jefferson orthodoxy.

Dr. Ludwig von Mises - 1952 - http://mises.org/books/planningforfreedom_mises.pdf

The origins of the modern left can be traced back to the famous passage in Rousseau's Discourse on the Origin and Foundations of Inequality, in which he condemned the institution of private property:

"The first man, who after enclosing a piece of ground, took it into his head to say, 'this is mine,' and found people simple enough to believe him, was the real founder of civil society."

Added Rousseau: "How many crimes, how many wars, how many murders, how many misfortunes and horrors, would that man have saved the human species, who pulling up the stakes or filling up the ditches should have cried to his fellows: Beware of listening to this impostor; you are lost, if you forget that the fruits of the earth belong equally to us all, and the earth itself to nobody!"

Around the 1830s, a faction of French liberals gravitated toward Romanticism and the philosophy of the late Rousseau, proclaiming that capitalism, private property, and the increasing complexity of modern society were agents of moral decay -- both for the individual and for society at large. This is essentially the worldview that has made its way, through history, into the collective mind of the modern left; it is a worldview calling for a revolution that not only will topple the existing capitalist order and punish its corrupt leaders, but that also will replace that order with a socialist regime where the utopian ideals of perfect justice and equality will reign. Such an ambition can be put into effect only by a totalitarian state with the authority to micromanage every facet of human life, precisely the end-point toward which the policies and crusades of the modern left are directed.

When the term "liberalism" (from the Latin word liberalis, meaning "pertaining to a free man") first emerged in the early 1800s, its hallmarks were a belief in individual rights, the rule of law, limited government, private property, and laissez faire economics. These would remain the defining characteristics of liberalism throughout the liberal epoch (generally identified as the period of 1815-1914). Yet the modern left, which portrays itself as the agent of enlightened commitment to "liberal" causes, in fact stands for the antithesis of each of the foregoing liberal ideals. Contrary to its self-definition, the left is neither "liberal" nor "progressive," but rather a reactionary force that seeks to resurrect the traditions that characterized the epoch which preceded the rise of classical liberalism.

The following is from The World Book Encyclopedia, 1947 edition:
The chief characteristics of Fascism are as follows:

THE CULTIVATION OF IGNORANCE

Fascism, like all forms of government, rests firmly on the sincere consent of a large part of the population... To maintain this consent, the Fascist leadership must cut off the people from any information which might cause them to doubt the complete correctness of the fixed Fascist principles... All forms of communication are carefully censored, so that the public will receive only those facts that the dictators want known... Travel to other countries must be controlled, and freedom of speech and assembly must be rigorously suppressed...

These people saw in Fascism a protection against the demands of farmers and other workers... Both regimes at first upheld the rights of private property... They subjected the working classes to a rigorous discipline... As soon as they were firmly established, the dictators began to limit profit, impose capital levies, and regulate business in great detail...

THE POLICE STATE

Fascism depends upon the police to crush all opposition or dissent.
Secret police spy on the whole population, and any casual remark against the regime leads to swift and severe punishment... Opposition parties are dissolved. Intellectual, athletic and recreational organizations are usually brought under the control of the Fascist authority... The ruthlessness of the police gradually becomes less noticeable... This is because within a year or so after a Fascist government takes power, vigorous opponents of the regime have either left the country, been killed or jailed...

EXTREME NATIONALISM

Fascism is highly nationalistic... It tries to identify its principles with the country, so that disagreement will look like treason... Some other country, or some group within the country, is chosen to serve as the "enemy" and made to appear as the cause of all evils or misfortunes... For example, the Nazis in Germany represented their movement first as a crusade against the Jews, then as a fight against Communism and later as a struggle against the "attacks" from whatever neighboring country they wished to subdue or occupy... Extreme nationalism often becomes a kind of racial fanaticism... Sometimes it combines racial and religious bigotry...

When you hear the Liberal Fascist JackAss propaganda that THEY are the true patriots then you know the time is near. Look for it from the socialist Labor Unions such as the SEIU!
http://www.discoverthenetworks.org/groupProfile.asp?grpid=6535

MILITARISM

Fascism maintains among the people a permanently warlike frame of mind... Every citizen feels that he is mobilized against enemies of the regime from within, and against possible foreign foes... The dictator usually comes to power during a period of economic crisis or depression... He relieves the depression partly by employing many people in the making of armaments... To justify this procedure, he must convince the people that the country is threatened, and must point toward some of the enemies against whom the armaments may be needed...

Listen to 0baMa0's rhetoric and his fascistic support from the Liberals Billionaire George Soros is a primary funder and key proponent of the global organization that promotes the military doctrine used by the Obama administration to justify the recent airstrikes targeting the regime of Moammar Gadhafi in Libya.

Here are the Three (3) Phases of Liberal Decay into Fascism:

1. Liberalism (Well Meaning, Nice Sounding, "Do-Gooder" Policies Always Doomed to Fail)

2. Liberal-Progressivism (The Drive for Social Improvement through Change and Promising Hope;
More Draconian Liberal Polices are Implemented to Transform The People into a New Society that

3. Liberal-Fascism (The Rise of the Party Leader over 'The Party' Ensuring the Unity and Uniformaty of 'The Party' and Enforcing The Will of 'The Party' Over the People.) The Party Leader will Cleanse 'The Party' of All those Who Are NOT of 'The Party'; and 'The Party' Will Cleanse the People of All Those Who Do NOT Support 'The Party' and The Party Leader. The Party Leader Now Has Complete and Total Power and Rules by the Force of His Iron Will.

I can see what the problem is now. We are all talking about CFL's to light your house, yard, business with ... SD (Special Dave) is talking about MARIJUANA GROW LIGHTS!

I just think he needs more wattage ... tokin' all the dope has his basement so smoked up he can't see the keyboard and screen and keeps typing gibberish ... maybe a fan to move the smoke outdoors would work.
But then, the whole neighborhood would probably end up being stoned!

Bongster dave might consider getting a new hobby ...

I am going to look around and see what is available to replace my existing fixtures with which has a permanent ballast with just replaceable bulbs. Maybe it is available here and I have just missed 'em!

"Civilized" warfare is that which gives the powerful the best advantage. (Seeing that the powerful define the terms).

But tactics that are used against soldiers aren't terrorism.

ask him if he agrees with these statements,

then you must agree with these statements correct?
"We must take from state authority those functions for which it is incompetent and which it performs badly... I believe the state should

Are you trying to say we should give George W. Bush a pass? He killed hundreds of thousands of non-combatants in an illegal preemptive war, let alone the 6,000 or so Americans he murdered. If we want to claim any moral authority in the world we will not forgive George W. Bush (or Obama for that matter).

Presently you need an 11 Watt LED Light Bulb to Replace a 100 Watt Rated Incandescent Bulb
-but- I has to be Shaped and Configured to provide All-A-Round Light like the old A19 Bulbs did

-or- You Need an 7 Watt LED Light Bulb to Replace a 65 Watt Rated Incandescent PAR-30 Bulb
-easy-to- Be Shaped and Configured to provide The 60*~90* Spot Light like the PAR-30 Bulbs do
For the next 3~5 Years CFL's are the better Energy Use and more Cost Effective 'replacement' for older Incandescent Light Bulbs. - imho ~ RHF

Another hypocrite. Roadmap for America's Future Paul Ryan (proponent of private accounts, raising the retirement age, means testing) received survivor benefits when his father died.

excerpt:

"One day as a 16 year old, Ryan came upon the lifeless body of his father. Paul Ryan, Sr. had died of a heart attack at age 55, leaving the Janesville Craig High School 10th grader, his three older brothers and sisters and his mother alone. It was Paul who told the family of his fatherï¿½s death.

With his fatherï¿½s passing, young Paul collected Social Security benefits until age 18, which he put away for college. To make ends meet, Paulï¿½s mother returned to school to study interior design. His siblings were off at college. Ryan remembers this difficult time bringing him and his mother closer."

Yeah, the whole thing is so ridiculous.

Makes me imagine 21 guys with box cutters are attempting to harm the check out clerk at the local walmart. The wife is there, she quickly pulls her little .32 Beretta out of her purse, shouts "HALT" (which is refused) and she begins popping off the boxcutter handlers, as they start smacking the floor like dead mackerel, and slapping in new clips to the gun, some decide to turn and flee ...

And, then, you realize some people actually believe the boxcutter stories! And, you realize just who the real enemy is ...

obama supporters have produced a, produced on demand, "Certification of Live Birth" and NOT a photocopy of an original "Certificate of Live Birth."

The latter is acceptable, the former is NOT.

The former may get you a driver license (even illegals can get 'em), but it is NOT good enough for the public servant office of president.

Many years ago, I read The Fountainhead book and I have seen the movie on tee vee a few times before.I reckon sooner (Do you know what a Sooner Dog is? I know) or later the TCM channel, or some such movie channel will run The Fountainhead movie again.I am not interested in going to a movie theater around here to see the Atlas Shrugged movie.I would probally fall asleep halfway through the movie like I did in 1999 when I went to a theater to see the Angela's Ashes movie and when that movie was over, a woman was shaking my shoulder, she said, Sir, Sir, the movie is over!
Does that mean I am a Kook? I don't think so! Besides, the Atlas Shrugged movie WILL be on tee vee someday.I will wait and see.

Dishwashers, ice makers, and drain uncloggers are all under attack.
Puritans and paranoids are working with bureaucrats to unravel all the gains that markets have made for civilization. They are driving us

The White House last week began circulating a draft executive order that would require companies seeking government contracts to disclose contributions -- including those that otherwise would have been secret -- to groups that air political ads attacking or supporting candidates.

Administration critics, including the powerful U.S. Chamber of Commerce, are seizing on the White House's draft executive order, in particular, as evidence of an attempt to use executive power to punish or silence political adversaries, while rewarding supporters.

Calling the draft executive order "an affront to the separation of powers ... (and) to free speech," chamber spokeswoman Blair Latoff said it "lays the groundwork for a political litmus test for companies that wish to do business with the federal government" and is "less about disclosure than intimidation."

And yet, we're still fighting, there. And now in a third country.
And we're draining the treasury and filling it with IOU's at a historic rate.

Again, your boy has been in the big chair for more than two years. And it's not doing anything to stop it. It's time to stop blaming the guy who's no longer there, and to begin blaming his replacement...you know, the guy who's currently responsible. The one who got the job by promising to do what he's not doing now.

Absolutely.

Good try - but the governor of Arkansas never stood in any school house door. Faubus attempted to prevent the integration of Central High School in Little Rock but not by standing in any doorways.

That was George Wallace (at the University of Alabama) and only George Wallace.

Your demonstrated historical ignorance continues.

Product Description
Over the course of more than three years of research, Jerome Corsi assembles the evidence that Barack Obama is constitutionally ineligible for the office of the presidency. As a New York Times bestselling author, Harvard graduate, and investigative journalist, Corsi exposes in detail key issues with Obama's eligibility, including the fact the President has spent millions of dollars in legal fees to avoid providing the American people with something as simple as a long-form birth certificate. The eligibility issue has major ramifications for every American, and through Corsi's in-depth research, a clear, concise, and compelling case is made for a return to Founding Father principles and transparent, constitutional government, starting from the top down ...

About the Author
Jerome R. Corsi, a Harvard Ph.D., has authored many books, including No. 1 N.Y. Times best-sellers The Obama Nation and Unfit for Command. Along with serving as WND's senior staff reporter, Corsi is a senior managing director at Gilford Securities.

As I have pointed out, in the last few decades, presidents have come and gone, republicrats vs. democans has been the only game in town ...

Through it all the hand of the shadow government as unwaveringly kept steady course, loss of freedoms, loss of rights, loss of liberty, increased unemployment, higher inflation, rich getting richer, poor getting poorer, wars, hunger, loss of medical services, etc.

I can honestly say that since obama has taken office, nothing in my life which involves government has gotten any better -- only worse. But, I can say the same for all presidents since Kennedy!

New U.S. Birth Certificate Requirement

Beginning April 1, 2011, the U.S. Department of State will require the full names of the applicant’s parent(s) to be listed on all certified birth certificates to be considered as primary evidence of U.S. citizenship for all passport applicants, regardless of age. Certified birth certificates missing this information will not be acceptable as evidence of citizenship.

In addition to this requirement, certified copies of birth certificates must also include the following information to be considered acceptable primary evidence of U.S. citizenship:

Full name of the applicant
Date of birth
Place of birth
Raised, embossed, impressed or multicolored seal of issuing authority Registrar’s signature
The date the certificate was filed with the registrar’s office (must be within one year)

Hey, John.

Don't you remember: you had supposedly killfiled me... ...again.

What's the matter, got yet another new PC?

The poor are better off than they ever have been. We have more stuff. But our current policies aren't optimal for producing a next generation of tax payers.

The heroes in flight 93 had the solution to the terrorism. But our government needed to "do something". And that something was to limit us from being able to react the way those heroes did - because we should be sheep, it is our rulers who need to be in charge.

Something you forgot to copy/paste, dumbass.

Beginning April 1, 2011, the U.S. Department of State will require the full names of the applicant’s parent(s) to be listed on all certified birth certificates to be considered as primary evidence of U.S. citizenship for all passport applicants, regardless of age. Certified birth certificates missing this information will not be acceptable as evidence of citizenship. This will not affect applications already in-process that have been submitted or accepted before the effective date.

Note the April 1, 2011 part? Notice the "This will not affect applications already in-process that have been submitted or accepted before the effective date" part?

You lose, retard.

The tents and cardboard housing under the freeways, in remote areas, and on undeveloped land, here in California, are quite new. The amount of food banks, homeless shelters, numbers on food stamps, homes foreclosing (even business foreclosings and closings), clothing handout programs, church assistance, etc. have NEVER been seen in California, in the last 50 years I know of!

My streets are cracked, broken up, in disrepair, the public utilities are being patched together and are being run short handed (PG&E, a pseudo-government electric co is not), public transportation has been cut, parks and rec are not maintaining the parks in good condition, all benches and drinking fountains and childrens play equipment is disappearing, ... crime is rampant, officers are laid off, crimes are not even reported in the newspapers, car windows are broken out and the streets covered in broken glass ... unemployment at 18%+ ... the Central Valley of California is starting to look like a 3rd world war zone!

The area of my second home, in Arizona, is in much better shape, but still getting worse and dangerous because of the wetbacks ... maybe it is just California ... but damn, I really don't want to move to Kansas!

Well, there certainly is a large increase in girly-men and

Two points.
1. It would be exceedingly entertaining to see President Joe and Vice Boehner go at it in public, if only Joe could stay awake.

2. LIBs don't consider you to have ANY Rights whatsoever unless you 'matter', unless you are one of their tiny, priviledge cadre jockeying to be recognized as 'Emminent Monster' of our day.

This is because Good Men believe they've surrendered their Rights.
This is because Good Men do Absolutely Nothing

We can't be so fixed on our desire to preserve the rights of ordinary Americans..."
Arch-traitor Bill Clinton'93

The purpose of government is to reign in the rights of the people" Clinton'93.

"Every aspect of our lives must be subjected to an inventory"
-- Shameless Politico THUG, Nancy Pelosi'09

Just say NO.
They have NO RIGHT to do this, unless you 'let' them.

The time has come for citizens to act via Judicial Activism, to take a stand to have Gov't Officials qualify the legitimacy of their actions, AND their office.

As Citizens we have a Right to do this.

Only then will the inadequacy of LIB Justice be evident,
Only then will the extent of their corruptive influence be known.
Only then will Good Men be able to measure the size and power of a fearsome adversary, one who proudly does unto their own constituency, precisely what they forbid us to do to our Foes.
Only then will Good Men be able rebuild from the ruins.

LIBs are NOT JUST Mistaken, but Evil.

LIBs plead for a Morality which holds COMPROMISE as its standard of Value, making it possible to judge Virtue on the basis of the number of Values which one is willing to Betray.

http://www.amazon.com/Roots-Obamas-Rage-Dinesh-DSouza/dp/1596986255
THE ROOTS OF OBAMA's RAGE

The real Obama is a man shaped by experiences far different from those of most Americans; he is a much stranger, more determined, and exponentially more dangerous man than you'd ever imagined. He is not motivated by the civil rights struggles of African Americans in the 1960s those battles leave him wholly untouched. He is not motivated by the socialist or Marxist propaganda that hypnotized a whole generation of wooly minded academics and condescending liberals those concepts also leave him cold.

What really motivates Barack Obama is an inherited rage an often masked, but profound rage that comes from his African father; an anticolonialist rage against Western dominance, and most especially against the wealth and power of the very nation Barack Obama now leads. It is this rage that explains the previously inexplicable, and that gives us a startling look at what might lie ahead.

In The Roots of Obama's Rage you'll learn: Why Obama's economic policies are actually designed to make America poorer compared to the rest of the world Why Obama will welcome a nuclear Iran Why Obama sees America as a rogue nation worse than North Korea The real reason Obama banished a bust of Winston Churchill from the White House and ordered NASA to praise the scientific contributions of Muslims Why Obama would like to make America's superpower status a thing of the past

HOW OBAMA THINKS

Barack Obama is the most antibusiness president in a generation, perhaps in American history. Thanks to him the era of big government is back. Obama runs up taxpayer debt not in the billions but in the trillions. He has expanded the federal government's control over home mortgages, investment banking, health care, autos and energy.

IT REALLY IS AS SIMPLE AS THAT.
LIB STRATEGIC INSANITY CAN AND MUST BE DEFEATED.
BECAUSE EVIL HAS NO POWER WHEN THE GOOD REMAIN UNAFRAID.

Sounds like a good application for that radar bulb they invented about

That's not for you to decide. I told you the "reasonable person" preponderance of evidence standard applies. The Constitution doesn't even define "Natural Born".

The "original intent" of the Founders is that we think for ourselves.

Phosphates cause algal blooms and huge dead spots in the ocean. I stopped using them decades ago.

Foaming Root Killer every spring will keep your pipes open. If your

The Greek economy relies heavily on tourism, which in a global market where short resources takes precedence. The US economy includes food exports, which become increasingly appealing in uncertain times.

American rice & soybeans are on Japanese, Korean, and Chinese tables, and no matter what the US debt is, they wont forget it.

Actually, NO.

I used to carry a big .45 military style, cool look and the sight of it would scare me, BIG arse bulge in a suit/sports jacket too -- shoot someone in the hand and it would spin 'em around and drop 'em on the floor. Now I have a 9mm, on the smallest frame made ... hiding power is more important that making holes the size of dinner plates in 'em. Fits in a windbreaker pocket when we go for walks on summer nights, in bad areas ...

Wifes .32 is a serious weapon, hides in my palm. If you doubt that it ain't serious, just let me shoot off your little finger off and see if that won't take a lot of fight out of ya'. However, if she gut shoots someone, after they remove a few feet of their intestines, they will rethink the power of a .32. Head shot and the gun fight is over ... hit a lung and deflate it (and it deflates almost EXPLOSIVELY, before it starts filling with blood and choking off their breathing) and it is pretty much over ... heart, they are dead ... she has ball ammo, deep penetration ... does about 13.5 inchs in ballistic gelatin.

I love to watch big macho men laugh at a .32 ... shoot their little finger off and that laughing would dry up quickly!

Truth is, if you won't do everything possible before being forced to shoot someone (while NOT placing yourself at risk), you shouldn't have a gun anyway! After you pull that trigger it is going to change someones' life for a lifetime, albeit that lifetime might be rather short! And, that is with a .32, bigger than that and every shot is going to remove a large chunk of their body mass -- PERMANENTLY!

Military rifles, worldwide, are .22 - .24 cal generally ...

People unfamiliar with weapons and the aftermath tend to talk in a way that gives that fact away quickly ...

Hmmm, or maybe those UFO people know something we don't, and it has been entrusted to the aliens for safe keeping ... heck, maybe the illegal aliens are holding it for him!

Of course, a space alien would be an illegal alien without the proper papers, wouldn't it?

Actually, the COLB which someone posted for him meets NONE ... it is just a "Certification of Live Birth" and totally unacceptable!

Either he shows a "Certificate of Live Birth" or he needs to get his clinton certainly was a fool of such magnitude as to challenge obamas' standing.

Governments powers are only those granted it by the people governed, and through the Constitution. No Constitution, the government has NO powers ...

It is the peoples job to keep their employees in line, as always, our public servants are just like anyone else working for a wage, with a boss, if they don't preform for us, we need to fire them!

The whole point of the Constitution is too limit the powers of government, which they obama is over stepping and needs to be charged for treason, for his actions.

Simple really, ask any scholar on the Constitution ... you should be able to take a class at a college and get this straight quickly!

The Constitution is simply a list of powers we grant our public servants so they can do our government chores for us. It place no limits on rights of the people, UNLESS they are SPECIFICALLY NAMED IN THE CONSTITUTION! obama is simply having the same problem understanding this which "Criminal Clinton" did!

You are quite correct. If he anything which wouldn't be laughed at from the get-go, you'd be seeing him posting it ...

He is stuck in the circular "already been debunked" circle for so long, he actually has grown to believe it!

The thermite in the dust, the molten iron/steel, the free fall speeds, the collapsing into their own footprints, the explosions, the fire fighters statements, etc. it is simply overwhelming evidence and proof which thousands of experts are behind.

The conclusion, it was a false flag operation involving our public servants, from the president on down, is just so overwhelming in the context of diabolical evil as to be an unimaginable horror ... one which my mind ran away from at first ... it takes awhile before you can believe such evil people have infiltrated our government public servant positions!

I still balk at acceptance, it is hard to admit this evil ...

While I grant you that a .32 is nothing to sneeze at, military rifles are in a different class because of a little thing called muzzle velocity.

There are only two possibilities, do you agree?:

1) They took out important thought centers of his brain causing him to resort to criminal and treasonous actions against American citizens?

or

2) They put something in (cyborg control mechanism) which is forcing him to obey commands and inflict criminal and treasonous actions on American citizens?

I get email.
Category: Blogging
I live in a neighborhood that has a small homeless population. One such person within that homeless group is known to the rest of us by her first name only. I can hear her now, outside my apartment. I'm told she lives in a kind of dilapidated garage of some sort, where she sleeps in a pile of blankets and debris. She often walks my street, collecting bottles and cans for the cash deposits. Whilst on her journeys, she often stops abruptly, plants both feet firmly to the ground and launches a kind of "external dialogue" with the world. She doesn't scream, but rather projects her voice with a powerful force.
Her chanting can literally be heard for blocks as she speaks directly to phantoms that only she can see. Sometimes she appears to be "lecturing" passersby with a hostile, throaty tone. It all comes out in a weird staccato rhythm, like a drill sergeant. Mostly, she's harmless and her monologues, indecipherable. This is the kind of obvious mental illness we can all recognize. But there are other forms of psychosis. And books such as "The Sociopath Next Door" by Martha Stout illuminate that fact clearly. Still, as I write this, the sound of our homeless inculcator strikes me as familiar. I am reminded of my first Ayn Rand girlfriend ARGF1, who's moods would alternate between states of overblown confidence and abject misery from time to time. When she was on one of her transient "highs", she would ad lib her own monologues, paraphrasing Ayn Rand's vituperative critiques on modern society with a bratty, flippant demeanor. ARGF1 was crazy too. She was a borderline.

I'm surprised that my little corner of Myspace gets the modest attention that it does. However, to my critics and others who would send me email defending Ayn Rand: let me be clear.

The main topic of this page is Borderline Personality Disorder and the reasons why the belief system of Ayn Rand appeals to certain individuals who exhibit traits of that psychological malady. The main topic of this page is not – I repeat NOT about the merits of Ayn Rand's "philosophy". Take a psychological perspective on what she said and how she acted in life. The available research on BPD is extensive, so I suggest that Rand's defenders who don't understand the disease should first read "Stop Walking on Eggshells" by Paul Mason and Randy Kreger. For a different take on the psychology of Objectivism, read Ellen Plasil's autobiography "Therapist", in which she chronicles how she was sexually molested by her Objectivist father when she was 11 years old and other horrific events that took place in the Randian subculture of her time. It is my opinion that Plasil's book is essential to understanding the cult-like phenomenon of Ayn Rand.

In so far as Rand's "philosophy" is referenced here, it serves mainly to reinforce the established and substantiated opinion that Ayn Rand probably did suffer from Borderline Personality Disorder. Her black & white / all or nothing / love & hate beliefs (including her narrow views on art and music) reveal her as a borderline pretty quickly to any person who has experienced a close relationship with a BPD partner. Apart from Rand's own tawdry personal story, it's also distinctly evident to me that her writings are expressions of BPD and therefore appeal to a certain borderline type, as my experiences and those of others have demonstrated. (I've been contacted by supportive readers who shared their stories of relationships with Randian borderlines.) It's very clear to me that Ayn Rand was a high functioning, manipulative and cunning sociopath (see: gaslighting, as the term relates to borderline pathology). She was also severely narcissistic and imperious. She was afflicted with multiple personality disorders (co-morbidity) and psychologically abused people within her social group, perhaps most cruelly her own husband. Evidence of her unbalanced psychology appears early in her life, as Michael Prescott has observed. This is not a case of a person "losing it" in her old age, although her psychological problems were magnified during that later time period.

I suggest that my critics crawl out of the fantasy world of "Galt's Gulch" and face the facts: Mental illness is real. Borderline Personality Disorder is real. Now take a fresh new look at your precious guru.

THERAPIST: A book that is testimony to Rand’s destructive legacy.
I purchased a used copy of Therapist from Amazon. It deserves to be reprinted and perhaps someday a new edition will be published.

It's an engaging read, but disturbingly so. I actually had knots in my stomach while getting through it. In Therapist, author Ellen Plasil recounts in detail her experience as a patient with the Objectivist psychiatrist, Dr. Lonnie Leonard. Over the course of several years, Dr. Leonard psychologically manipulated, controlled and sexually abused the author and other women in his care. Years later, legal action was taken against Dr. Leonard, and some justice was procured for the victims.

Many of the doctor's patients were students of Objectivism, and it's unsettling how immured they were, as a group. The doctor's sex theories were highly informed by those of Ayn Rand, especially in regards to his interpretation of the so-called "ideal man" that Rand championed. Plasil says that she, along with other "students of Objectivism" were all blinded by the mechanism of Objectivist culture, where leaders of the movement possessed unchallenged authority, much like a cult. It was this culture that enabled the abuse.

"Whatever their source, there seemed to be rules of right and wrong for everything in Objectivism. There was more than just a right kind of politics and a right kind of moral code. There was also a right kind of music, a right kind of art, a right kind of interior design, a right kind of dancing. There were wrong books which we could not buy, and right ones which we should. Wrong books were written by "immoral" people whom we didn't want to support through our purchase; right books never were. There were plays we should not see, records we should not listen to, and movies we should not pay to watch. There were right ways to behave at parties, and right people to invite to them. And there were, of course, right psychotherapists. And on everything, absolutely everything, one was constantly being judged, just as one was expected to be judging everything around him. And if one was not judging everything that was around him, one was judged on that, too. It was a perfect breeding ground for insecurity, fear, and paranoia."

"The numbers of these blindly devoted went beyond coincidence. There was more to this than just a chance meeting of several dozen sheep all willing to follow their hero, their ideal man anywhere. Maybe the "hook" was in the lesson that if Objectivism was the right way, then being a student of objectivism made us more right than others. And for those of us who were not certain of our value to begin with, such superiority helped us ignore our self-evaluations and feed our egos.... Or maybe it was in Ayn Rand's incorporation of "hero-worship" into her representation of romantic love; show an Objectivist a hero and the hero has but to take command."

Therapist reveals the dark side of Objectivism like no other document can.

Why I created this page.
Narcissistic Personality Disorder and Borderline Personality Disorder; how I wish I had never heard of these two things!

And how I wish that I'd never heard of a person named Ayn Rand.

Actually, I'm reasonably confident that I never would have heard of that name until recently, if it were not for one person: I will call her Ayn Rand Girlfriend Number One, hereafter referred to as ARGF1.

I met ARGF1 about 1 year after graduating from college. I was in my first (and last) corporate job at the time, making decent money and trying to figure out what to do with myself. ARGF1 was slightly younger and had a troubled life. Her father was a recovered alcoholic and her parents were long divorced. I guess when she was about 15, she dropped out of high school and ran away to the state where her father lived. She slummed around, used drugs and ran with a group of punk rock kids. But when she needed money or food, her father's place was not far. Indicatively, she had very poor relations with both of her parents, especially her mother, whom she often spoke of in disparaging tones. Somewhere along the line, ARGF1 suffered from some kind of abuse. Parts of that dimension within her history were known to me, and others I surmised were either missing or suspect, because ARGF1 was a chronic prevaricator. Lies of omission were especially problematic with her. However, it was certain that something terrible did happen to ARGF1. I witnessed her trauma as she would break down in tears, unpredictably on several occasions. Other times she raged and her face morphed into the most ugly countenance I have ever seen, before or since. I realized that those incidents occurred because of triggers (unknown to me) that would cause her to act out. Those moments were frightening and unsettling. I didn't know it then, but ARGF1 had Borderline Personality Disorder. Clearly though, I did perceive that she had Narcissistic Personality Disorder and was unmistakably antisocial. My friends couldn't believe I was dating her. Nobody liked her, including my parents.

What was I thinking? Well, I have my own problems too! I'm working on those issues now. But, let's just say that in the past, I've taken on the role of the "rescuer" in certain relationships. Also, I honestly saw the good in ARGF1, even if others did not. Perhaps most significantly, at that time I was very young. During college, I never took a proper psychology class. I regret that now.

I mentioned before that ARGF1 was a high school drop out (she later earned her G.E.D. after she ran away). In this regard, she was low functioning and characteristically she also had trouble keeping jobs. The false identity that she fostered, both as a brash punk and an intrepid runaway appeared outwardly to indicate that she was independent. The opposite in fact, was true; she was needy, insecure, petty, histrionic and childish sometimes to the point of caricature. Somehow, she cultivated an image of herself that equated independence with intelligence. Her bookshelf was packed with second hand copies of things I knew she could not possibly have read, including books on complex subjects such as physics and mathematics. In actuality, when she enrolled at the local state university, she had to drop out of basic algebra because she was failing. She was intelligent on a certain level, however she was not book smart. Revealingly, she only really finished one specific group of books on that shelf. Indeed, she read and reread these particular books thoroughly and memorized her favorite passages from them, underlining the important sections for good measure. These were the books of Ayn Rand; The Fountainhead, Atlas Shrugged, We the Living, The Romantic Manifesto and lastly, a title so sensationally vulgar that it virtually insures book sales to the publisher – The Virtue of Selfishness.

I don't remember at what stage of the relationship I was introduced to them, but Ayn Rand's books were obviously important to ARGF1, so I reluctantly agreed to consider some of them. I wasn't a huge fan of fiction at the time, so I first chose to read The Virtue of Selfishness, since it was supposedly a summary of Rand's "philosophy" and it contained long passages from her fiction anyway. Now let me declare from the outset that I was immediately suspicious of this work, since ARGF1's behavior was already troubling, and if these books were informing her actions at the time, there must have been something weird about her exaggerated enthusiasm for them. Besides, as a recent graduate from an elite university with its subsequent required course work in English literature, I found it strange that I had never heard of this supposedly important author. My suspicions correctly reflected the general academic position on Ayn Rand: She was a prodigious hack who would never have been able to stand up to any kind of rigorous academic peer review process. This work was nothing more than pop philosophy and more importantly, it was dogma. To any reasonable sentient human being, the first few pages of The Virtue of Selfishness reveal the author as what she was: a hateful, pedantic, patronizing and arrogant pedagogue.

But people with Borderline Personality Disorder are not reasonable human beings. They are narcissists. When I tried to explain my objections to Ayn Rand's "philosophy", my concerns went right through one ear of ARGF1 and exited out the other side of her skull. It simply did not register. To ARGF1, Ayn Rand was good, all good and nothing but good. This hostile dichotomy of things that are either all good or all bad is in fact, a hallmark of Borderline Personality Disorder. Moreover, I think the ideas contained in The Virtue of Selfishness were interpreted by ARGF1 to justify her destructive behaviors. At times, Rand reads like a teenager who just discovered Friedrich Nietzsche. It's crass, unsophisticated and simplistic. But that's why it's so appealing to borderlines: It has often been written that borderlines stop their emotional development at an early age. While they may appear to be adults, emotionally, they are frightened children. Rand dresses her arguments in a kind of pseudo-intellectual aura, but really she appeals to ugly, base emotions. One of her favorite words repeated continuously in Atlas Shrugged is contempt. And contempt is what Ayn Rand exuded in virtually everything she wrote.

With welcome relief, I ended that relationship within a year. I heard through a mutual friend that ARGF1 had shacked up with another punk and consummated an even more turbulent relationship with him. They met at a punk club. It's my understanding that she cased after him when she caught a glimpse of the Ayn Rand quote he had scribbled on the back of his studded leather jacket. Sometimes borderlines are just like cartoon characters. It would be funny if it weren't so horrendous.

That was 17 years ago. I'd hoped to have forgotten Ayn Rand. But in later years I would meet another person that would throw me for a loop. Unlike ARGF1, she was extremely intelligent, talented and beautiful. I was in love. In the beginning, it was wonderful. But Ayn Rand and Borderline Personality Disorder would once again intrude upon my world. Thus begins my tale of Ayn Rand Girlfriend Number Two.

Update: For personal reasons, I have decided to post only minimal information regarding my former relationship with ARGF2. There is a post regarding Ayn Rand tattoos that covers the topic with brevity.

Mental illness is REAL.
They call them "invisible borderlines".

These are people who are "high functioning" and outwardly, they appear normal.

Inside however, there is emotional turmoil.

Control is what they need; control over their own feelings of inner shame, control over their significant others and family members.

Outwardly, they might exude self confidence, but during times when "the mask" is off, they often reveal an unusual and irrational fear of abandonment.
It is this constant fear of abandonment, always churning in the background that makes the whole thing so tragic and pernicious.

What this all has to do with Ayn Rand becomes clear when you get involved with one of her borderline fans.

Ayn Rand's books are MADE FOR BORDERLINES.

Let me explain. And may I submit that I am not jumping to conclusions here, but I am now convinced that there is a quantifiable, tangible CONNECTION between Ayn Rand's ideas and the characteristics of borderline personality disorder.
Twice in my life, I have been involved with BPD women that "discovered" the writings of Ayn Rand. The similarities of these two relationships, set years apart from one another are frighteningly striking. The cold, social darwinism championed by the hateful Ayn Rand appeals to the narcissistic side of the borderline. Also, the simplistic black and white solutions to EVERYTHING would seem perfectly necessary in the BPD's mind. Ayn Rand's portrayal of human beings as being either "all good" or "all bad" is 100% consistent with their views of all others and themselves. And a lack of empathy towards other people, so similar to what Rand preaches is a hallmark of borderline personality disorder.

Not convinced yet? If your BPD girlfriend has ALL THOSE BOOKS on her shelf, take a look at them closely, especially if the spines are worn (evidence of repeated readings). Look for the parts that she underlined. These passages are frightening glimpses into the mind of borderline. Remember, Ayn Rand herself was a diagnosed NPD and current research suggests that she had BPD also.

If you meet someone who claims that Ayn Rand has inspired them to new heights of philosophical awareness, be very, very concerned.

Why did Ayn Rand use Dexedrine?
This is interesting.

Consider this description of Dexedrine from Wikipedia:

"Dextroamphetamine is a powerful psychostimulant which produces increased wakefulness, energy and self-confidence in association with decreased fatigue and appetite."

Self-confidence?

Why did Ayn Rand need a drug to boost her self-confidence? She apparently held a negative view of her own body image. But her fans claim that she was the most confident person who ever lived.

Question: Did Ayn Rand even like herself...?

This is how Borderlines talk...
An exaggerated form of hero worship is one of the many hallmarks of BPD.

Consider these examples of quotes from Ayn Rand's most famous disciple, Nathaniel Branden.

"I had come to Ayn out of the void - and I imagined that without her a void was all that awaited me."

"I am in the first place I have ever felt at home in my entire life... a place where only good can happen and no harm can possibly come."

Borderlines often speak about their lives as being "voids"... They have a chronic feeling of emptiness. They attempt to fill that void by virtue of idolizing their significant other (for certain amount of time) until they "split" and devalue that person.

Editorial Reviews
From Publishers Weekly
[Dr.] Stout says that as many as 4% of the population are conscienceless sociopaths who have no empathy or affectionate feelings for humans or animals. As Stout (The Myth of Sanity) explains, a sociopath is defined as someone who displays at least three of seven distinguishing characteristics, such as deceitfulness, impulsivity and a lack of remorse. Such people often have a superficial charm, which they exercise ruthlessly in order to get what they want. Stout argues that the development of sociopathy is due half to genetics and half to nongenetic influences that have not been clearly identified. The author offers three examples of such people, including Skip, the handsome, brilliant, superrich boy who enjoyed stabbing bullfrogs near his family's summer home, and Doreen, who lied about her credentials to get work at a psychiatric institute, manipulated her colleagues and, most cruelly, a patient. Dramatic as these tales are, they are composites, and while Stout is a good writer and her exploration of sociopaths can be arresting, this book occasionally appeals to readers' paranoia, as the book's title and its guidelines for dealing with sociopaths indicate.

AYN RAND AND THE WORLD SHE MADE Anne C. Heller Anchor Biography
Hardcover: 9780385513999 Paperback: 9781400078936
Anne C. Heller acknowledges that “because [she was] not an advocate for Rand’s ideas, [she] was denied access to the Ayn Rand Papers at the Ayn Rand Institute.” By “advocate” she meant “idolater” since that is what is required of those who wish to gain access. But as well as being able to read many letters and papers not possessed by the Institute, she interviewed Rand’s still-living family and her ex-lover/first great protégée, Nathaniel Branden (born Nathan Blumenthal, a young man who at one time admired Ayn Rand so much that he changed his name to incorporate hers within it, a kind of marital custom in reverse), to discover much about the life of the highly controversial author.
Ayn Rand (born Alissa Rosenbaum in 1905) immigrated to the United States from Russia in her early 20s and quickly gained employment as a Hollywood screenwriter. She was nothing if not driven, believing she had a destiny as a great author. She used amphetamines to stay awake night and day to write both her best known books, THE FOUNTAINHEAD and ATLAS SHRUGGED. She sometimes taped a needle to her thumb so that if she lost focus, she could stick herself back to work. Rand espoused a philosophy that came to be called Objectivism and was symbolized by a U.S. dollar sign. Objectivism celebrated the total independence of all human beings, yet Rand was devastated when ATLAS SHRUGGED was, for the most part, panned by the reviewers. Paradoxically, it seemed that praise was the food she most craved, yet when people merely liked her work without espousing the ideas behind it, she was quick to label them fools and weaklings.
Heller takes a dispassionate view of Rand and, in this detailed portrait, seeks to reveal her as a whole person rather than the cardboard cutout swathed in legend created by the great lady herself. That Rand was Russian was known -- her accent proclaimed that --- but that she was Jewish was less acknowledged, especially since Rand made the claim that she had decided upon atheism by her early teens. Heller seeks to illustrate by many examples Rand's "Russianness" and her cultural "Jewishness." The biographer took care to disentangle the public image of Rand --- caped, clever and sometimes cruel --- from the private person, an enigma wrapped in a mystery and possibly driven more by personal fear than by public idealism.

No doubt, she was a genius who had many insightful ideas and could write a whale of a sexual romance. Her plots thickened exponentially, and even those who disagreed with her world view tired themselves out turning the pages of her giant tomes, keeping them on the bestseller lists despite critical disdain. Rand posited a world in which only productive, capitalistic people truly matter, the rest being slaves and underlings. She believed that only fiercely independent people can truly enjoy sex; in her own way, she was a proto-feminist and also anti-war, two banners that could have won her some admirers on the left. But she caustically rejected any devotion that was not total.

Also, it is difficult to feel warm towards someone who characterizes altruism as the greatest possible evil, and that was Rand's absolute belief.

Reacting poorly to the world's failure to fall at her feet, and perhaps affected mentally by years of ingesting large numbers of dexadrine pills, Rand gradually fashioned herself into the legend she thought she deserved to be. Reading the book, I found myself thinking she was, by turns, either a high-functioning autistic, a psychotic, or a self-degraded drug addict, despite her genius and her occasional acts of kindness. She vilified nearly all of her early supporters (anyone who might have remembered her when she was not famous), dropping them in favor of a coterie of young admirers (who some would call sycophants). She never thanked anyone. She handily forgot her own missteps and recalled only her glory moments. Fiercely anti-communistic, she paradoxically played the role of a petty Stalin at the center of a clutch of young worshippers, staging psychologically destructive purges and lengthy show trials of those she identified as disloyal.

Surprisingly, however, her longest relationship, with her husband Frank O'Connor, exemplified, on his part, the quality she claimed most to despise: generosity of spirit. Hardly the sadistic, raging hero of her literary imaginings, he was passive yet protective, the opposite of what a "goddess" like Rand deserved. Frank defended her, cooked and cleaned for her, and did not protest over her affair of many years with a man some 30 years her junior conducted twice weekly in Frank's own bed. Rand's books have always sold well as each new generation "discovers" her. Young people, usually in their teens, take her philosophy to heart.

But, ultimately, her cold ideas lose their flavor, and most of her avid readers become as indifferent to her seductive speechifying as did her lover, Nathaniel Branden. By recanting his once hot ardor for all things Rand, he was cast into outer darkness, and an unknown young professor, Leonard Piekoff, inherited all of the author's considerable intellectual property. That was the beginning of the Rand Institute, the end of the open sharing of Objectivism, and the middle of what is proving to be a long story. Though she passed away in 1982 from lung cancer and loneliness for her dear, weak Frank, Ayn Rand's philosophy and the novels that proclaim it are getting more attention since the current recession took hold. That and the right wing's perception of the imminent threat of government takeovers comprise just the sort of scenario Rand would love to have been alive to scorn and struggle against.

MAN!

You got that dead on center. That tough guy was going to clean up government here, balance the budget, etc.

All we got was an actor like rotten regan! Neither of 'em can do a better job of acting like a real governor than acting a part on the big screen!

I have heard people who want to start up conversations about causing fractures which are allowing oil to pollute under ground water supplies ... never researched it though ...

Have a commercial reverse osmosis and deionized water filter on the whole house ... however, we live far from where these practices of fracturing shale layers is being done, to extract oil.

But, if the water starts tasting funny or neighbors start complaining, will have to look into it!

But, you do realize we have jerry brown now, right?

That tootsie roll poker got us decades ago. I really can't believe anyone remembering him would ever let him get anywhere near a governors' chair!

That twinkle toes fairy is already cutting services to the poorest and arranging sweet deal for the rich ...

It is a real shame, they always assassinate the wrong politicians! (well, they almost got it right with regan)

Hi - if anyone has any experience with an R75, I would appreciate any ideas you have. The R75 has several filter settings, narrow-normal-wide. Until Monday night, they all worked perfectly. Suddenly, on the AM-wide setting, the signal is enormously attenuated - not inaudible, but virtually all the gain is gone in that setting. In all other settings the radio works as it should.

Any ideas? Is this a filter problem, a solder problem, other? The radio has not received any knocks or spikes I know of. It does have the Kiwa mods, which means the fault occurs in the 6 kHz filter that replaces the original 15 kHz filter.

Thanks,
Bruce

But "original meaning" is fraught with problems - not the least of which is -whose- original meaning. The original constitution was authored and approved by fifty-some delegates to the constitutional convention and ratified by a thousand or so delegates to the conventions in the various states. The various amendments were authored and approved by even greater numbers in the congress and in the various state legislatures and conventions*.

When the constitution speaks to "unreasonable searches and seizures", just whose definition of "unreasonable" should we adopt? I'm sure each of the two thousand or so folks involved in adding that phraseology to the constitution had their own idiosyncratic views on just what is or is not "unreasonable".

What guidance does "original meaning" provide there?

*I believe only the 21st amendment was ratified by state conventions rather than by state legislatures.

peace and justice,

This page explains why a "Certification of Live Birth" as opposed to a "Certificate of Live Birth", at least in the year of obamas' birth -- 1961, is open to doubt:

http://www.thepostemail.com/2011/04/07/exposing-the-birth-certificate-lies-used-to-cover-for-obama/

HERE IS ONE IMPORTANT PART, taken from the page:

"The document posted on the web alleged to be and wrongly referred to as Obama’s birth certificate is titled CERTIFICATION OF LIVE BIRTH, and only certifies a baby was born. The purpose of the Certification is to provide documentation for those babies and children who do not have a real birth certificate because they were born at home or outside the country without benefit of a hospital or doctor. When there is no proof of hospital or doctor it proves nothing, just the information attested to by the person filling out the application for a certified document.
This is one of the biggest lies promulgated by people ignorant of the facts such as Bill O’Reilly and Megyn Kelly of FOX who continue to claim that what is posted on the internet is the real deal."

Has nothing to do with hate, as this will show:

I think "running a car on food" is moronic! (not inferring anything on you)

Already, every drop of water is "owned" or in the control and possession of someone. Fertilizer, in the forms used in our agriculture, is in finite supply. Land suitable for crop production is a finite supply, and already being pushed towards max for just food production ...

If push come to shove, and we are fueling our cars with food, someone is going to get hungry and starve to death while some rich b*st*rd fills his tank up and watches them starve -- maybe even enjoys watching them do so ...

I think running engines on food is a very bad idea!

But, FMJ (Full Metal Jacket) and high velocity mainly goes to more penetration. With the .32 there is less chance of it going completely though your target and getting someone out of vision and behind, less chance of penetrating a wall and getting an innocent, etc.

But, main choice for the wife is because she is small and light and can target practice all day with it. She shot a .357 once and refuses to ever shoot it again. And, the .32 is less weight than a .38 in her purse or pocket.

The first .44 mag I ever shot was a single shot ruger of some old frontier design frame ... damn near broke me of ever wanting to shoot another! It was definitely a gun which you held with both hands ... kicked up and towards your head like a mule.

My .44 desert eagle is a nice shooting weapon, recoil is straight back and dampened by the weight of the frame and function of the action, but still a hand cannon and as much fire power as I want in one hand, it really is a two handed weapon, VERY hard on the wrist ... blows a gallon paint can filled with water and sealed all to hell! Firing it into ballistic gel with soft point ammo reveals it would do massive tissue damage on a big area, probably killing even if not striking a vital area of the torso ... it is a great conversation piece.

Excellent suggestion for testing. It's also possible that a bad connection at the plug-in (if it is a plug-in filter) or solder points will be flushed out merely by unplugging or jumpering the connections.

You might want to jumper the in and out terminals on the filter with a .01 mF capacitor instead of a dead short for the test, just in case there are DC voltages on the terminals.

With all good wishes,

Another possibility:

If the filters are easily switchable from position to position, try swapping a couple and see if the fault follows the filter or remains with the circuitry for that selectivity position.

No. Sorry. You are incorrect.

The birth certificate that Obama has shown is the only one that Hawai'i issues.

This is the simple truth of the matter.

Not each person, but each generation. Again "reasonable" is an important concept.

There is no way to tell what people were really thinking in 1787. Our brains have shrunk too much in the intervening years to be able to grasp the complex issues.

There's an interview he did on WBEZ some years ago, in which he makes surprisingly clear what he cares about, and how committed he is to addressing his priorities. The audio is out on the internet.
It shows up in ads against him, or his confederates, from time to

Of course, the liberal Aussie government will not deport these criminals, but make it easier for them to get into society where they will receive welfare benefits and free housing.

<http://www.bbc.co.uk/news/world-asia-pacific-13153333>

Detainees at an Australian immigration detention centre in Sydney have rioted and burnt down nine buildings.

Rioters at Villawood detention centre threw roof tiles and other objects at firefighters, preventing them from putting out the blazes.

The riot started with a rooftop protest from two detainees and spread to involve 100 people late on Wednesday.

Protests at Australia's detention centres have become more frequent as the number of asylum seekers has risen.

Immigration Department spokesman Sandi Logan said no injuries had been reported at Villawood.

There are a bunch of updates. You need to send the radio to Washington. They will make it better than new for about $150-$200. There are bad capacitors inside sealed sub-assemblies; the whole radio gets taken apart.

ICOM America is a small company with nice people. You can get the lead service tech on the phone no problem. They have a flat rate for the R75 upgrade as I recall.

Thanks - I would love to do this - but the thing has Kiwa mods that I really like, and I don't want IcomAmerica to restore it back to any "original condition". However, I will try a phone call to see what they can do for me.

Thanks, Guys - these are fine ideas. I checked inside last night; the filter in question is hard-soldered into the CB; if it were just inserted, I guess I could have just plopped another similar filter I have (15 kHz) into place to try it out.

I've also already spoken with Kiwa, and this morning I'll give Icom a call.

I've had some interaction with ICOM in Bellevue. They do nice work, and they're pretty quick, depending on workload. The first time, there was a miscommunication, apparently, and they didn't to the second part of the project I sent them. So you need to be very clear about your symptoms and your expectations.

In my case, they did make it right, however. And the second radio
I sent to them, came back to me looking and operating like new.

I have no hesitation about sending a rig to them now, or in the future.

Seldom a problem. There is lots of documentation about what legal words meant at that time. We're not talking about what Madison or Franklin thought the words meant but about their generally accepted meaning in 1787. For example, clearly public use did not mean whatever public purpose some official decided he wanted to meet.

English common law at the time would define the term since that is what they were basing it on. In addition the forth amendment clarified the need to get a warrant based on probable cause.

The actual intentions of the Founders, the specific meanings of their words, and how they chose the language of the Constitution is found in the Federalist Papers.

The clarity you seek, is there.

Balderdash! Do you want a contract you signed to change with time, without your approval? The constitution is effectively a contract and contracts must mean what they meant at the time of acceptance unless all parties thereto agree to the changes.

You really should read what is at the link I posted.

> Again "reasonable" is an important > concept.

And it is not reasonable to allow people to unilaterally change the meaning of a contract after it has been accepted. That is what you seem to want to do.

> There is no way to tell what people were really thinking in 1787.

Read what I wrote. There is no need to know what each of them was thinking. We only need to know what the constitution and its words meant.

That's an interesting point. When I had my mods done about 9 years ago, that Filter Module pictured on the webpage was apparently not a part of the mods; instead, apparently, a single 3.8 kHz filter was. That module pictured on the webpage is NOT in my radio, and I think it is a successor to the original mod. I do have the S-AM module, obviously mounted inside right where they say it should be.

Thanks - For clarity's sake, I should emphasize that this pictured Kiwa filter module is apparently for the "AM-Normal" 3.8 kHz filter setting. In my radio, the 3.8 kHz setting works just fine; it's the "AM-wide" 455 kHz IF - 6 khz filter setting that now malfunctions. I would not swear to it, but since this module does not appear in my radio, I don't think that could be the problem.

ARLP016 Propagation de K7RA

ZCZC AP16
QST de W1AW
Propagation Forecast Bulletin 16 ARLP016
From Tad Cook, K7RA
Seattle, WA April 21, 2011
To all radio amateurs

SB PROP ARL ARLP016
ARLP016 Propagation de K7RA

The bulletin is out a day early due to the Good Friday holiday observed tomorrow.

Average daily sunspot numbers and solar flux for the week were both higher - sunspot numbers up over three points to 93.1 - and solar flux up by eight points to 117.2. Geomagnetic activity was a bit lower, with April 20 the most active day after a coronal hole on the Sun spewed a solar wind at high speed. The Australian government gave an alert one day prior. You can subscribe to those emailed warnings at http://www.ips.gov.au/mailman/listinfo/ips-geo-warning. If you are in Australia, the same service offers an HF radio propagation course. See http://www.ips.gov.au/Products_and_Services/2/2 for details.

The same Australian service has predicted monthly smoothed sunspot numbers and solar flux at http://www.ips.gov.au/Solar/1/6 and it looks like they predict the peak of Cycle 24 exactly two years from now in April 2013.

Currently there are four sunspot groups visible, and today could see a geo-magnetic disturbance from a slow-moving coronal mass ejection.

The latest forecast from NOAA/USAF shows solar flux at 115 for April 21-24, 110 for April 25-29 and 115 again on April 30 through May 3. Predicted planetary A index is 10 and 8 for April 21-22 and 5 on April 23-27. On April 28-30 the predicted planetary A index is 7, 15 and 12.

The May issue of WorldRadio Online is now available at http://worldradiomagazine.com. Check out the propagation column by K9LA on page 22, which this month concerns an unusual divergence during the recent solar cycle when correlation between solar flux and sunspot numbers seemed to decrease.

Mark Lunday, WD4ELG of Greensboro, North Carolina is excited about all the recent solar activity and associated propagation. Mark says, "I never thought it would happen, but the sunspots are back!"

Mark notes that 10 meters is open worldwide during the day and 20 meters is open all day and night to somewhere in the world. He sends lists of DX worked from all over, all with simple antennas. Check his blog at http://wd4elg.blogspot.com.

Richard Kautz, KC2HZW of Pelham, New York is looking forward to a good sporadic-E and F-layer propagation season on 6 meters. He says, "Really been enjoying the renewed sunspot activity the last two months. This week conditions on 15 meters have been excellent. Friday April 15 I worked HS0ZIN at 1523 with 59+ signals in both directions. Saturday I worked VU2PAI at 1920 again with 59 signals in both directions. Also worked JE1LET at 2330. Listened to KL7LF for a while working a pile-up with a great 59 signal. I modeled many of the contacts I made the last few days on W6ELPROP and while the program predicted many of the contacts were possible, in none of the cases did the predictions show signal strengths anywhere near what I experienced. I am not complaining -- it been about 8 years since I worked into South East Asia on the higher bands and it was a real thrill."

Oleh Kernytskyy, KD7WPJ of Saint George, Utah has been operating QRP CW from mountain peaks out west. He writes, "On April 16/17, 2011 I activated Grandeur Peak (SOTA -W7/NU-065) - 2530 m. I was able to make contacts with JE2RMH and 5N7M on 21 MHz with 10 w and simple dipole. I also heard a lot of stations from Brazil on 28 MHz, but they all worked in the contest."

Jeff, N8II of West Virginia writes on April 16, "The SFI is 129 and the K is 1 today and you could tell it. But first back to Monday the 11th when I was lucky enough to be off from work. On 15 meters CW, between 0018 and 0031Z BA1KW, HS0ZBS, and XV2W were logged, great DX for us on the East Coast. Then as early as 1249Z IS0GQX was 599 on 12 meters CW. P29NI running a big IOTA EU pile-up was easily worked on 17 meters at 1236Z and JJ0NCC answered a CQ at 1309.

"Then up on 15 meters YB0NFL was worked on SSB 59 at 1325 (quite early) along with UA0SR, UA9QM, and YB9/DJ7XJ on 15 CW. But the biggest surprise of the day was E21EJC at 1418, HS0ZBS, and 9M2TO on 12 meters CW! Then, I was treated to more over the pole DX on 15 meters, VU2PAI and V85TL. HS0AC was logged on 17 meters CW at 1525, and found Kob, E21EJC there 10 minutes later. It doesn't get much better than that here unless 10 meters opens polar which is rare. Today the 16th started with 14 Russians from all over Asia answering my CQ from 0033 thru 0115 along with HB9, EA5, BD0AH, and UN7PBW on 20M CW.

"At 1305Z XV2RZ was worked on 17 meters CW and P29VLR was running a large EU pile-up and was about S3-4 here. At 1325, 12 meters was open well to EU at 1325Z with OL2011VP 599 on 12 CW, but despite a good EU opening with lots of Germans logged, the band never opened to the Far East as on Monday. 10 meters started to open to EU at 1423Z with 4O3A logged 599+ 15dB, but CQs yielded no answers. After a run of EU on 12 meters, I returned to 10 meters SSB at 1522Z to find HZ1DG a 57. Then I worked around the Mediterranean area on 10 meters logging Is, three IT9s, E71A, and 9H5BZ. Down on 15, the band was open to most of Asia including due north to SE Asia logging RL9AA on CW and on SSB 9M2GET a 59 at 1634Z running a big pile-up, I also logged YC6NE and neighbor YB6MIX at 1702Z. It was quite a morning!"

Bud Trench, AA3B of Boyertown, Pennsylvania writes that he was on this past weekend and the bands were very nice. His summary:

"10M - Very nice opening to SA on both Saturday and Sunday. Also brief openings to southern and central Europe on both days, with Sunday being the better of the two.

"15M - opened nicely to Europe early both mornings and stayed open until late afternoon. Also, a good North - South path. This was the best band for the weekend.

"20M - marginal on Saturday to Europe, a little better on Sunday. The best openings were mid to late afternoon.

"40M - the band opened to Europe around 22z with decent conditions. Signals on the North - South path were fluttery.

"80M - some loud signals from Europe around 00Z, but conditions weren't impressive."

There was a problem with some of the web links in some versions of last week's Propagation Forecast Bulletin ARLP015, specifically the ones that were emailed to subscribers and the copies that appear in the bulletin archive at http://arrl.org/w1aw-bulletins-archive-propagation. I was using a shortened link that goes through the site http://snipurl.com, and they had some problems which deleted the links we provided. So the first one, ending in "snys" should have gone to http://www.arrl.org/w1aw-bulletins-archive/ARLP010/2011, the second one, ending in "snz" should have gone to http://www.arrl.org/w1aw-bulletins-archive/ARLP028/2005, and the next ending in "so8j" should have linked to http://stereo-ssc.nascom.nasa.gov/beacon/beacon_secchi.shtml. True football games are adversarial in nature (fixed games always lack the element of "reality"), if they "fake" that too much, it will be too apparent and joe-six-pack will catch on to the fraudulent game of control, entertainment and diversion.

The element of "competition" is important to the sport, democan vs. republicrat games.

An important factor is that the players, or public servants, actually believe the role they role play -- to some extent, adds both to the credibility of actors/players, the entertainment sham/scam and the players ability in creating a believable character which the general, brain dead, public accepts and willing suspends their sane powers of belief to encompass ... once you see it, it is all quite apparent and funny, but, at the same time, very, very sad ... when you realize the tip of the bell cure is ~100 (the avg IQ of the average citizen) you see how all this is easily accomplished.

Maybe Kiwa will do it cheaper. There are definitely some caps that go

THE IMPORTANT FACT:
"The document posted on the web alleged to be and wrongly referred to as Obama’s birth certificate is titled CERTIFICATION OF LIVE BIRTH, and only certifies a baby was born. The purpose of the Certification is to provide documentation for those babies and children who do not have a real birth certificate because they were born at home or outside the country without benefit of a hospital or doctor. When there is no proof of hospital or doctor it proves nothing, just the information attested to by the person filling out the application for a certified document. This is one of the biggest lies promulgated by people ignorant of the facts such as Bill O’Reilly and Megyn Kelly of FOX who continue to claim that what is posted on the internet is the real deal."

The Federalist Papers are adverts as much as anything else. You'll get more insight from the deeds and letters of the Founders.

Good your realize that, Jeffersons' texts/writings is/are very sound, sensible and easily understood!

"Never spend your money before you have it."
Is very relevant to our present economic condition.

"How much pain have cost us the evils which have never happened."
Speaks much to the false flag operation, controlled demolitions and crime(s) known as "9/11."

"Every citizen should be a soldier. This was the case with the Greeks and Romans, and must be that of every free state." Speaks much to the Constitutions stand of firearms/weapons and the necessity of "civilian militias."

"The man who reads nothing at all is better educated than the man who reads nothing but newspapers."
Speaks much on the value/truth of main scream media.

Etc., etc., etc. As, just a few examples ...

Luckily, Jefferson was very prolific in generating text which exposed his thinking, logic and wisdom.

JS

I see then, the drugs caused the confabulation of your mind, again ...

Else, why would you have missed, FMJ -- higher velocity.

The bullet "tumbling", while useful in war, is generally not promoted in popular, civilian, firearm design ... but, deserves mention.

In civilian use, "fire protection" carries the emphasis of importance. Stopping the criminal(s) with the least force necessary is considered the sane and humane path to follow ... in war, maiming the enemy for life is pretty hum-ho stuff ... indeed, after watching the enemy kill your buddy(s), killing the enemy slowly, with a dull knife, becomes an easy desire ... when in a court, defending your right to self defense, this is, generally, something you don't want to admit to ...

What you fail to point out, it was never debunked!

All the time, you see people post insane and inane arguments to laws, facts, truths, evidence, experts statements and opinions, etc. Mostly, they are just personal opinions of the posters here or just pure nonsense ... then, after post "chit" they start claiming, "Well, that has been conclusively debunked."

All I see is idiots posting drivel with is composed of total chit ... sorry, that is the best way to describe it ...

And, once again, that is all I see you doing ... others, perhaps, can see the great worth and truths in yours, bdk, animal, etc. texts ... all I see is nasty chit ...

The truth stands on its' own. If you wish to argue it, post CREDIBLE evidence and experts ...

Now, if you honestly want to prove me wrong, repost evidence which proves this is false:

Tim Pawlenty, a good Republican, says Obama is a natural born citizen.

Mitt Romney, a good Republican, says Obama is a natural born citizen.

Karl Rove, a good Republican, says Obama is a natural born citizen.

Peter Wehner, who led the Office of Strategic Initiatives for G.W. Bush, and who is a good Republican, says Obama is a natural born citizen.

Peter Wehner debunked the entire "birther" movement in an article in the
R-E-P-B-L-I-C-A-N, C-O-N-S-E-R-V-A-T-I-V-E paper.

Note to birther kooktards:

Rather than posting your kooktardery here, your time might be better spent sending emails to the people listed above, telling them they are Otherwise, why should we believe kooks like you instead of reasonable

Yes, the fine Republican Governor Snyder of Michigan that Lare helped vote into office turned out to be a closet DICTATOR, throwing out of office the duly and freely elected city officials of Benton Harbor, going against the core values of this country.

The only "justice" that may come out of this is when Snyder starts taxing Lare's pension (assuming Lare gets one) and Ryan guts Medicaid, Medicare and Social Security that Lare may be on.

Possibly that will give him a little "buyer's regret".

Anyway you cut it, with hollow points, soft points, etc. they are called "varmint ammo" around here. The name is given because the bullet literally explodes and shreds into schrapnel in the animals body. It is used when you don't care about spoiling the meat and the sole intent is killing the animal -- foxes, coyotes, wolfs, etc.

The .22 swift is a prime example, and the best ever, in my humble opinion ... my grandfather gave me an old one when I was a teen ... I ended up shooting the rifling completely out of the barrel! Thousands and thousands of rounds were channeled down that barrel. Reloading my own ammo make target practice a cheap hobby!:

Interesting, your list is also very focused on only using known/proven liars ... you know the rule, "How can you tell a public servant is lying?" -- "Their lips are moving!"

http://www.thepostemail.com/2011/04/07/exposing-the-birth-certificate-lies-used-to-cover-for-obama/

"The document posted on the web alleged to be and wrongly referred to as Obamaï¿½s birth certificate is titled CERTIFICATION OF LIVE BIRTH, and only certifies a baby was born. The purpose of the Certification is to provide documentation for those babies and children who do not have a real birth certificate because they were born at home or outside the country without benefit of a hospital or doctor. When there is no proof of hospital or doctor it proves nothing, just the information attested to by the person filling out the application for a certified document. This is one of the biggest lies promulgated by people ignorant of the facts such as Bill Oï¿½Reilly and Megyn Kelly of FOX who continue to claim that what is posted on the internet is the real deal."

The ONLY valid argument, able to prove the above false, IS A VALID LONG FORM, GENUINE OR PROPER PHOTOCOPY OF A "CERTIFICATE OF BIRTH."

Get it straight, a "Certification of Live Birth" is NOT adequate proof.

"The only people who don't want to disclose the truth are people with something to hide." -- barack obama (AKA barry soetoro)

Seems you can even realize the concept which obama has offered as an absolute!

Yes, when you want to ignore fact and truth, you have to be choosy on what you show people and how you manipulate text and attempt to manipulate peoples thinking ...

Attempting to manipulate posters and make morons out of 'em? AGAIN?

a rimfire .22 is NOT a .22 cal bullet, DUH! Only a moron like you, or someone with no real experience with weapons, could make such a moronic error!

If you can find fault with the message, attack the messenger ...

Dave, I hate to be the messenger, of the message, that you are a total moronic idiot, a worthless slob of a lying poster, an absolute sociopathic manipulator of people, etc.

But, hey, I put my text out there stating the facts as I see them, totally available for all here to argue ... why is it only you who thinks me in error?

Joe,

Don't correct these people! They've got it all figured out. Let them continue their attempts to split their own party over this nonsense. I doubt that anyone that might vote for Obama would allow this silliness to stop them from doing so.

In fact, I'm thinking about switching parties, just so that I can vote for Trump and laugh over this idiocy all the way through the election.

LOL,

Mike

Anyone have any idea where one might be able to purchase a replacement extendable antenna for the Grundig Sat 800?

Thanks,

Yep. Ask just about any illegal alien you can find (you will first have to find one that speaks english well enough) and they can tell you that!

Your words are true ... sad, but true ... time to fix some of this:
"The tree of liberty must be refreshed from time to time with the blood of patriots and tyrants. ... God forbid we should ever be twenty years without such a rebellion; what country can preserve its liberties if their rulers are not warned from time to time that their people preserve the spirit of resistance? Let them take arms." -- Thomas Jefferson to William Stephens Smith, 1787

However, not a sport for girly-men or powder-puff-butch-dykes ...

Yep, that link pretty well states obama is Kenyan born!

Well, yeah, even the Kenya Ambassador was going around claiming obama to be of Kenyan birth, then obama got handlers on him and he has become silent ... same with obamas' Kenyan grandmother ...

What amazes me, is that obama and his gang actually thought all Americans would be morons and his illegal presidency would go unnoticed ... he pisses me off, if others want to known as idiots and morons ... too bad ... don't expect that of me!

Yesterday was the worst DXing day I have had here in the Philippines.

I normally DX from 0700 to 0900 utc which is daytime here. Yesterday everything was down and very messed up. The BBC and R Australia were the only things I could get around 0700-0800 then even they faded.

Must have been The Sun! Wish I could stay up and DX but if I stay up I am working with stocks and don't take time to DX.

Maybe I can have a talk with myself and see if I can start DXing at night.

As far as I know there will be no gutting of Social Security as I know it and am currently collecting. However, as I calculated a few weeks ago, I could continue to draw my current benefit out of savings for 198 months and that doesn't even include what I receive from my two pensions.

My standard advice to all: Go to work and save and invest your money. If necessary get two jobs. Bottom line, save as best as you can, and do your best to avoid living paycheck to paycheck.

Excellent advice for public service workers protected by unions, longshoremen still with a strong union, excellent wages, adequate benefits and retirement, for small business owners (a disappearing breed), people like me who worked union and had my own small business (transferring it to family now I am retired), etc. but not so good for the 18%+ who are unemployed in my area. They are not unemployed because they want to be, but simply because their jobs are in china, india, indonesia, etc.

Working two jobs has always meant putting together full employment for yourself, even if it takes two jobs, until you have a ~40-48 hr. work week. Now, the slave masters have stepped in and they are expecting people to work 80 hr work weeks! Insanity! I only did this when it was my own business, my boss was myself, I had complete control over my working conditions, I chose the people to help me (employees), my hours, breaks, etc., and I got all the profits from my intensive labors. I have to admit, I would have NEVER done that for two minimum wage jobs ... one of my neighbors is doing that, it is hard to watch ... a year and a half of watching him and I can't see him getting ahead at all, he fears being laid off one job as I write this. I think what he has been though would have killed most men.

If you have a problem, and you apply a fix --- and you still have the problem, so you reapply the fix ... at some point, it becomes obvious, the problem is the fix and NOT the problem!

We will know, almost immediately, when the right things start being done ... from that point on, things will only get better ... that stands in stark comparison to conditions now ...

JS

I remember one interesting moment at a factory I was working at (2nd shift) when I mentioned to a gal that I'd worked that morning at another job. She said, why do you do that, you can't take that money with you when you die.

My reply was, yes, I know that Susie, but I don't plan on dying tomorrow!

And by golly I didn't!

Well, no. The Federalist papers are the thoughts of only two of the fifty some convention delegates (Jay wasn't even at Philadelphis)

And ignoring the fact that the authors of the Federalist Papers left many meanings unaddressed, they are no help at all on any of the

Actually, the COLB meets every one of the new requirements. It contains a raised seal of the State of Hawaii, lists the names of both parents, lists the place of birth, and contains a statement attesting to the validity and accuracy of the document signed by the Registrar of the State of Hawaii.

According to the laws of the State of Hawaii, there is no difference between a "Certification of Live Birth" and a "Certificate of Live Birth," moron. A Certification of Live Birth is the only document issued by the State of Hawaii.

Bravo! EXCELLENT advice (not sure about the two jobs, though...a sad commentary on life today). However, please don't lose sight of the main

Yeah, even in Kokomo some might call Benton Harbor a "bad neighborhood".
However, that does not justify a dictator. For criminal wrong doing, we have the criminal justice system (it works -- your (former) Detroit mayor is in the pen) and if the citizens don't like the politics, they have the recall process (like the mayor of Miami that was recalled a couple of months ago). Two procedures that are in place and work, dictators need not apply.

But like Brenda said, what Snyder did was dictatorial and goes against everything this country stands for. Sure, Mussolini made the trains run on time, but...do we really want a dictator?

If so, then there have been other take-overs by other Michigan Governors (Democrat and Republican), especially with the Detroit school system.

Bottom line is that others have to jump in to save things when the clown 'tards run amok.

Until you can accept that the Constitution state concise requirements to be president and that one is to be a natural born citizen, and that obama has not fulfilled that requirement, you will be stuck where you are ... at that level, only morons will argue insanity with you.

However, the world will still go on and those with enough intelligence, and respect for law, will have to go on and work this out without you.

Don't worry, just stand on the sidelines muttering your insanity ...

"The document posted on the web alleged to be and wrongly referred to as Obamaï¿½s birth certificate is titled CERTIFICATION OF LIVE BIRTH, and only certifies a baby was born. The purpose of the Certification is to provide documentation for those babies and children who do not have a real birth certificate because they were born at home or outside the country without benefit of a hospital or doctor. When there is no proof of hospital or doctor it proves nothing, just the information attested to by the person filling out the application for a certified document. This is one of the biggest lies promulgated by people ignorant of the facts such as Bill Oï¿½Reilly and Megyn Kelly of FOX who continue to claim that what is posted on the internet is the real deal."

http://www.thepostemail.com/2011/04/07/exposing-the-birth-certificate-lies-used-to-cover-for-obama/

The real problem is that you are unable to comprehend the truth and importance of the above, Corsis' book could cure your ignorance, but you are one which strikes me as not having much respect for knowledge, truth, evidence, experts, documents, etc.

Products of intercity poverty, gang influence, thug mentality, etc. have little use for any of this either ... sad, so very, very sad ...

As I have pointed out, the Constitution simply requires a natural born citizen ... if obama can prove that to a standard worth of the Constitution, the most important document, ever, in the history of mankind ... if he can do that WITHOUT A VALID BIRTH CERTIFICATE ...

We'd take a look, we are waiting ... but then, even I accepted it, others might not, and still demand the standard form of proof -- a simple valid birth certificate which everyone in America has ...

Dead giveaway to the fact you didn't read anything!

"The document posted on the web alleged to be and wrongly referred to as only certifies a baby was born. The purpose of the Certification is to provide documentation for those babies and children who do not have a

People like you, attempting to manipulate morons until they no longer believe what evidence, experts and their own eyes tell them simply make me sick:

"The film "Waco: The Rules of Engagement" purported to show infrared images of government agents firing on the building. Now there is also a rumored videotape, uncovered by the film's co-producer, Michael McNulty, that reportedly shows agents in an ATF helicopter shooting into Mount Carmel. No doubt there will be more evidence "discovered," more agents coming forward, their six-year amnesia about April 19 suddenly cured. The FBI has not come close to revealing the full government complicity in the Waco massacre."

The repeated criminal false flag operations of our criminal and treasonous public servants have only worsened with time, 9/11 topping all other criminal actions of our public servants to date ... the only thing that is going to happen in the future is just more and worse ...

Yeah, truth can be stranger than fiction. When Hawaii became a state, laws concerning birth certificates became VERY lax (well, they were lax to begin with, to be truthful.) The most important goal were as many citizens of Hawaii as possible ... influence with house and senate representatives, population numbers which qualified for various forms of "federal aid" and assistance, etc. were STRONG motivators ... those unfamiliar with Hawaiis' history would/will need some time to review it all ...

No.

A COLB is just not sufficient proof, again:

Michigan are!

Don't need to be familiar with Benton Harbor, only the laws of the United

First the US Presidential Election is actually 50 'Separate' State Elections -not- a single national election.
-that's-50-chances-to-disqualify-obama-from-the-ballot-

OOPS so in some US States : Yes The State Courts Will Get Involved.

BUT in most US States : It Will Be The Individual State's Elected Secretary of State Who Will Get Involved and Be The First Decider in their respective States.
-some-of-these-us-states-have-republican-secretaries-of-state-

If that satisfies the requirement for getting a passport, I don't have problems with ...

A COLB does not meet the much higher standards of proof which the Constitution demands ... a simple "Certificate of Live Birth" would.

After obama has spent $1-$2 million hiding his past records, including the proof of citizenship (with taxpayer money, I might add) I can't imagine a sane and rational person with no secret agenda to not ask for the proper proof ... we certainly do that with common criminals! Why not with suspected presidential criminals?

Funny how that video evidence didn't make an impression on the Texas jury that heard the civil case. Or the Republican judge that presided over the criminal one.
Or the Republican-led Danforth Commission.

Are they all part of a Clinton conspiracy as well?

Jury clears US over Waco deaths

A Texas jury has ruled that the US Government was not to blame for the death of about 80 members of the Branch Davidian sect during the Waco stand-off with federal agents in 1993. About 100 survivors and relatives of the dead had sued the government for $675m, alleging that agents had used excessive force to end the 51-day siege.

http://www.apologeticsindex.org/b10.html#jury

PS: Waco is the most conservative city in the most conservative state with the most conservatives jurors.

I would have to be privy to all evidence the jury viewed. I would have to make sure that the experts pointing out that the tanks were the likely cause of the fires and that davidian members were fired upon and killed as they attempted to flee the building ... and at that time I would wonder how the jury could have possibly reached the conclusion(s) it did.

Obviously, anyone viewing the rules of engagement video, and the analysis done by experts, would have to be shown some pretty contrary evidence ... perhaps both were shown to the jury ... I can't find any credible site, documents, video, etc. which would clue me in on what was available to the jury.

Many times, trials are won on what a jury is prevented from seeing, hearing, reading ... rather than tangible evidence presented to them ... multiple examples of this exist.

I know what I think after viewing the video and examining what ever I can find of government claims ...

Where is there a problem, though? If he was born in Kenya, USC Title
8, Chapter 12, Subchapter III, Part I, Par. 1401 (e) http://www.law.cornell.edu/uscode/html/uscode08/usc_sec_08_00001401----000-.html applies, and he's still a natural born citizen. "nationals and citizens of the United States at birth" means "natural born citizen as far as the law is concerned. One is naturally a citizen at birth - a natural born citizen. (Birthers confuse natural born citizen - which one must be to be president - with native-born, which appears nowhere in the Constitution, the law or court precedent.)

Article II, Clause 5:
"No Person except a natural born Citizen, or a Citizen of the United States, at the time of the Adoption of this Constitution, shall be eligible to the Office of President; neither shall any person be eligible to that Office who shall not have attained to the Age of thirty five Years, and been fourteen Years a Resident within the United States."

Obviously, since all "Citizen of the United States, at the time of the

And that's exactly why they rendered that preposterous -- and tragic -- verdict.

There are a few wise conservatives of the old school still around, and a few who have been awakened by harrowing personal experiences, but I am afraid that most "conservatives" today practically worship the Washington regime's military killing machine, and _actually believe_ that FBI and ATF agents are honorable men who generally tell the truth.

With every good wish,

And someone born to a woman who is a citizen, and who has spent at

Funny how conservatives latch on to jury verdicts as being definative proof of guilt-but disregard them entirely when the jury votes to acquit.

Why is that, do you think?

That's a phenomenon that's hardly limited to conservatives. Go back a couple of months. Reread this newsgroup. You'll find both sides seizing and discarding verdicts as proof with surprising ease.

The hard truth is that a jury verdict is a legal construct by which the system operates to conclude an action. In truth, only the accused really knows of what he or she is actually guilty.

Where else does evidence coalesce and create a picture of such definition? Where else do witnesses assemble under one roof, with evidence about some event? Unless, of course, you have been an eyewitness.

question?

Actually, only one parent being an American may be a problem ...

However, since obama has presented no valid birth certificate to satisfaction of the Constitution, I am sure, at the proper time, that will be dealt with at a later date.

I would not be surprised, and have doubled the size of my garden to do what little I can. But Obama is only POTUS, not king, much less god. There are a myriad global economic forces at work neither he, nor any other leader can do jack schitt about.

My main complaint is that while he can sell any idea, he does not really have the vision to produce any. Course, neither did McCain. Goldwater showed you cant get elected telling the truth.

But to the topic at hand, there were a lot of foreign crop failures last year at the same time the USA had bumpers. If, for instance, diesel went to 6$/gallon, with similar rises in fertilizers and other agribusiness petrochemicals, which then resulted in smaller harvests, Arabs would get to find out how they like diesel for breakfast.

Nobody gava fuck when Somalia, Ethiopia, Sudan, Kenya, and other African economies collapsed. But Libya? with oil, they hopped right on it. (A) Then too, the higher the oil price the more greed. The more greed, the more the resort to violence to try to control a source of oil. The more violence, the more infrastructure damage, which drives the supply down and the price up. Iterate back to (A)

Who the pres is if that gets started does not fucking matter.

Darn, how can he represent America when these guys keep spreading bad rumors about him? This is horrible, can you image what the world would be like if they let every nut get by with making such outrageous claims?:

http://fellowshipofminds.wordpress.com/2010/05/27/washington-insider-obama-member-of-chicago-gay-mans-club/

You would surely think Wayne Madsen would be sued for making such slanderous, filthy and deplorable smears on the president! This could ruin his next run for reelection when respectable people and family orientated Americans refuse to vote for him!

I mean, you aren't supposed to get by with this stuff, unless it is true!

Mine is starting to go to. The sections come apart too easily. Those little half shell retaining spring clips seem to be loosing their will to work.

First time it came apart, one of the shells disappeared back into the antenna section, so I could only find one. I may have cursed for a while.

Another thing was when the reception became really lousy on the set. It turned out to be my fault. I had previously set the rear switch to external antenna and had forgotten about it.

It's probably been done already, but here goes:

How about making a two part receiver, one stage for the normal detection and tuning, the other a really wide band receiver with a conversion portion in it.

That part would collect any and all signals hitting it and convert it to a very small dc output. That in turn could be used to power an amplifier for the audio of stage one and then work a small speaker.

Surely there should be enough broadcast power over the entire AM band, that, if collected and rectified, would drive a 2 inch speaker at very modest levels.

2349. Custom & Border Patrol Protecting Americans from $2 European Chocolate Easter Eggs

I'm from the government and I want to help you!

Not all eggs are created equal in the eyes of U.S. Customs and Border Protection.

Kinder Eggs, a popular European chocolate egg that contains a toy inside, is banned from importation into the United States because it contains a "non-nutritive object embedded in it."

With the Easter holiday around the corner, the agency issued the reminder this week, warning that the candy is considered unsafe for children under 3. Last year, Customs and Border Protection seized 25,000 of them in 1,700 incidents.

The hollow egg, which is sold by the Italian confectioner Ferrero, is available in Europe, Canada, Australia and parts of Latin America under various names including Kinder Surprise and Kinder Sorpresa. It has taken on a cult status among adults who collect the toys, which vary from rings to animals and cartoon characters.

Kinder Eggs' scarcity in the United States has made them an object of desire: Various websites and online forums are dedicated to acquiring them.

Some are apparently hiding in plain sight. Earlier this week, DNAinfo.com, a New York City neighborhood guide, posted a story and slideshow showing stores where the coveted treats can be found.

"While there are some commercial-sized seizures that occur, most Kinder Eggs are seized in personal baggage or at mail and express consignment facilities," Customs and Border Protection said.

A Canadian woman reportedly learned her lesson the hard way.

The woman was selected for a random search at a border checkpoint in Minnesota when officials discovered she was carrying a Kinder Egg and took it from her, The Toronto Star reported.

A few weeks later, she received a 7-page letter asking if she wanted the egg back or if she was going to abandon rights to it, the Star reported.

"I was in disbelief," she told the newspaper. "It's a $2 egg."

Probably an interesting exercise, but not very practical.

Connect a germanium diode directly to the antenna (no LC, this is your "wideband" portion). Use germanium because of its .3 volt barrier junction, not a silicon diode because its junction voltage is .7 volt. Put a filter capacitor on the output side of the diode.

Generally very unlikely that you would get enough power unless you were virtually next door to one or more AM stations...and in that case you could possibly drive a speaker (assuming proper impedance matching) without an amplifier.

Side story: The 50 kW AM outlet of a TV station I once worked for was actually (dimly) lighting an incandescent lamp in a nearby home that was located in the main lobe of the directional pattern. People also were getting shocks from their rabbit ears TV antennas.

Additionally, you have the "inverse square law" working against you. Example: if you are comparing two stations, one that is one mile away and one that is 4 miles away, the more distant station would have one sixteenth the power of the closer station.

Yes, we just differ on how they should "jump in". I favor the criminal justice system or the recall process, as appropriate. You favor, literally, a dictator. Your attitude makes it a little bit clearer how dictators get in power, by people looking for quick answers.
Unfortunately, IMHO your 'solution', in this country, goes against the core values and very foundation of our country.

They had a dusty old Brand New Satelite 650 under the counter at an mV/m means roughly how much voltage is captured by a 3.3' loop. Note that next to the antenna a huge station will produce about 2.5 to 3V in the sampling loop. A long wire antenna would probably capture enough Volts to drive a transformed speaker, but then you couldn't use a small signal diode; you'd need something a little beefier.

I have used this technique to build air monitors at stations where studio and transmitter share a location, but I always use a power amp.

Connect a germanium diode directly to the antenna (no LC, this is your "wideband" portion). Use germanium because of its .3 volt barrier junction, not a silicon diode because its junction voltage is .7 volt.
Put a filter capacitor on the output side of the diode.

Generally very unlikely that you would get enough power unless you were virtually next door to one or more AM stations...and in that case you could possibly drive a speaker (assuming proper impedance matching) without an amplifier.

I did this in my misspent youth. My dad bought me a Radio Shaft 120 in 1 kit. I managed to make what I came to realize was a voltage doubler circuit for the detector of a crystal set. This, in concert with a 10 KW local AM station just about 4 blocks away, managed to drive an 8" speaker with enough volume that I had to rig some way of turning down the volume, lest dad cuss me out. This he did, anyway, when he found out I was improvising my own projects with the kit, instead of following the directions...

They are banned because there are choking hazards inside. We don't give children choking hazards in this country, if we can help it.

Anyone have any idea where one might be able to purchase a replacement extendable antenna for the Grundig Sat 800?

Thanks,

I may have one... if you can send me a pic of your original (removed from Governor and legislature then they legally passed the laws. If Wisconsin voters

don't like the law they can elect a new government and have the law repealed

There was an article in Popular Electronics in the early 1960s about a crystal radio that could directly drive a speaker. Two features that I remember are dual tank circuits and using 1N54A diodes (selected for high back resistance/low leakage) as a full-wave voltage doubler instead of one of the more popular 1N34. I don't remember the speaker being chosen for large magnet size, but the common 5" speakers were pretty efficient.

Didn't a Liberal Supreme Court say a while back that it was OK to do that? Seems as though it dealt with a case up in the NE regarding eminent domain.

Try to stay focused. I know the only game you know is "Let's Play Race

You are still trying to play the other game too, "OJs Trial", where you get to use a race card.

Grow up and play some adult games!

OJs Trial goes like this, I could have murdered someone, but if I can scram "racist" at someone, I win! Most are rather bored with that game

You're proving yourself to be such.

A "CERTIFICATION OF LIVE BIRTH" doesn't merely state "a baby was born".
The baby is named, the date and place of birth given and the parents are also named. What's more, the document was provided with an official seal. What more does one need to provide proof of birth? More especially so when the STATE OF HAWAII will issue no more than what has been proffered as Obama's Birth Certificate.

WOW!

Economy is even worse than I thought! The neighbors daughter completed jr college and is working for the county while completing here degree at the four year, nights and weekends! She grabbed the county job to make ends meet and have a decent apt.

I thought $30k for a two year college ed was pretty standard. You do know the city cops here start at $50k with 6 months training and a couple of jr college classes, right?

Where do you live, the Ozarks?

I guess I should have said, " ... at or NEAR minimum wage."

Yes, it's been worked out already, Obama is in office and the people will have THEIR chance to determine the integrity of the process at the next election. That is due process and you should be aware that it will occur with or without your concurrence.

A Schottky diode with a 0.15 v junction voltage (research a suitable small signal one) shouldn't be too hard to find and is a little "hotter" than a 1n34 germanium would be ... but, as Brenda pointed out, a 1n34 from ebay would be good, and cheap!

When I worked in Iowa, the array was in a cornfield west of town.
A developer bought the land directly north of the array (we beamed 5kw nearly straight north) and built a subdivision there. The back yard of some of those homes ran up to the fence around the array.

One of the features of these homes was recessed flourescent tube lighting in both the basement and the garage.

One cluster of 5 homes, not only did the owners get my radio station on their refrigerators, but the flourscent lights could not be turned off.

From Answers.com

Pay particular attention to the last statement.

Certification is the process through which an organization grants recognition to an individual, organization, process, service, or product that meets certain established criteria.

For certification of individuals, the individuals usually have to meet eligibility requirements (such as education or years of experience), pass an examination, and pay a fee. There are also usually ongoing requirements that need to be met, such as retesting or participating in a minimum number of continuing education activities.

Certification is voluntary - unlike licensure which is mandatory in order to practice in the licensed role in a given state. However, that's not to say it's not valuable - because some employers require or prefer applicants who are certified.

"certification" means that a state of affairs has been stated to be so, by means, most commonly, of a document self described as a certificate

So, the document supplied by the Registrar is indeed a Birth Certificate according to the above definitions.

No. But it should be simple enough for you to understand.

The president must be a natural born American. If he is not, he does not meet the requirement to take/hold office. And, in such a case, he is a criminal.

One of our problem, if not the major problem, is crooks for no respect for the law. Whether it is common crook snatching your purse and running down the street, a thief breaking into your home and stealing your possessions, a street thug stealing your wallet at gun point, or some thug creating diversion and scamming his way into a public servant office ... our real problem is crooks with no respect for the law.

An only slightly less problem is criminal minded people like you who argue against any respect for law and would only call for a worsening of the problems ... your type has been around for a long, long time ... why do you think we still have crime?

No. Nothing changes the requirements of the Constitution.

obama either has a long form, valid, "Certificate of Live Birth" or he hasn't.

His supporters have posted up a VERY QUESTIONABLE "Certification of Live Birth" and hoped to deceive morons into not noticing this is not a suitable document to fulfill the Constitutional requirements.

If anyone "certified" him before he has shown the proper documentation they have committed a serious mistake ... their being open to prosecution for allowing a criminal to be allowed to sit in the public servant office of president may be in question also.

Right now, we just need to get the criminals arse out of public servant office -- unless he is able to produce proper documentation ...

This book, by the same author who exposed Kerry and his "swift boat", has exposed obama, also:

You can't find a taxi cab in my city, either. The taxi drivers end up beaten, robbed and murdered. A few years ago one of the taxi drivers carried a .357 and blew away his attempted robber ... they arrested the driver, but due to public outcry, the DA dropped charges ...

Still, there is just too much chit around taxis, the cost of insurance, etc. for anyone to want to make it a business ... if your car breaks down, better hope its still light out and the busses are still running!

I think they forced to say that under great pressure and threat of continued prosecution for their ties to the davidians ... if I were you, I'd check what they are saying now ... after time, no matter what attempts to hide it, the truth begins to leak out ... 9/11 is one example.

The wrongful death suit, filed by survivors and surviving davidian relatives and family are other examples of a criminal government denying

We (KRIZ now KOY 1230 Phoenix)had to read the antenna current at the doghouse every half hour when I started in radio. We had an F40 fluorescent tube we used at night to light up the meter. We only ran 250 Watts at night so we had to get the bulb right next to the feed wire to get it to glow. Then we could move it a few feet away.

You can see the modulation in the lamp. That's kind of cool.

You see.
That's the problem with LIB justice, it does not restore,
there will be no prosecution, there won't be even a meaningful debate.

Think a Sitting President could grant Clemeny to Convicted Felons who Murdered American Citizens in a bombing spree over a decade of 130 Bombings? It DID happened.

http://www.fas.org/irp/world/para/docs/final_faln_rpt2.htm
"[y]ou are lucky that we cannot take you right now. Our people will continue to use righteous violence. Revolutionary justice can be fierce, mark my words." Ricardo JimJnez shouted at the judge, "[w]e re going to fight . . . revolutionary justice will take care of you and everybody else." Dylcia Pagn warned the judge and courtroom, "[a]ll of you, I would advise you to watch your backs."

-- Bill Clinton's Terrorist/Murderers speaking plainly.
Why would a LIB believe they DESERVE Clemency?

Bill Clinton granted clemency to the unrepentant FALN radicals just as OBAMA will do for William Ayers and likely AMERICAN TALIBAN John Walker.

If I'm given 1,000 lives I will sacrifice them all
...
we are proud terrorists and we will keep on terrorizing you,
We do not accept your democracy or your freedom

-- Last words of the Time Square Wanna-bomber before being sponsored for 'life' at Club FED.

How little has really changed!
AND THERE'S NOT A DAMN THING YOU CAN DO TO STOP HIM, or the President for doing as he damn well pleases.

LIB LAW does NOT exist to protect your Rights.
LIB LAW ensures that ALL suffer Equally and Extensively BY LAW rather than be suffered equal representation under Law with a Justice that restores.

LIB LAW must be exposed for its inadequacy so that Good Men may rebuild from the ruins.

DEMAND COMPETANCE.
DEMAND ACCOUNTABILITY.
DEFEAT LIB STRATEGIC INSANITY.

To prevent this,
OBAMA would sooner devastate his constituency rather than own up to the obviousness of the Truth.
$12gallon gas, 20%APR, 40% unemployment, power grids nuked.

LIBs are NOT JUST mistaken, BUT EVIL.

LIBS reward the Guilty,
they punish the Innocent, they champion the Mediocre, the Unworthy, the Depraved on the basis of their Depravity.

They do this to first deprive you of your Virtue, and then your very life.
LIBs would have you pity the Devil for being EVIL.
What Price their Vision?

LIBs plead for a Morality which holds COMPROMISE as its standard of Value, making it possible to judge Virtue on the basis of the number of Values which one is willing to Betray.

OBAMA puts Clinton to shame in showing us all how actually-easy it was to do.

"to leave now we would send a message to terrorists and other potential adversaries around the world that they can change our policies by killing our people.
It would be open season on Americans."
-- Bill Clinton '93

To abandon this area now -- and to rely only on efforts against alQaeda from a distance -- would significantly hamper our ability to keep the pressure on al Qaeda, and create an unacceptable risk of additional attacks on our homeland and our allies.

Looking in my phonebook, I see, A-Taxi & Courier, Citi-Cab Co, Deluxe Cab Co, Jackson Taxi, Veterans Cab Co, and Yellow Cab Co.
I reckon they all hang out at the Airport and Train Station/Bus

Just the cost of a garage to keep your car in, in NYC is more than a nice 3 bd room apt in California!

No one owns a car in NYC (you always wonder where all the cars come from which clog traffic?) it is much quicker to walk in most situations ... where you must use a car, it is a taxi!

I bet, if you drive taxi, one of those is deductible on your tax return!

I can imagine an ad for bullet proof vests. Ad shows a taxi driver in a fierce gun battle with two thugs. Thugs end up bleeding and dying on the ground, plenty of blood running on the sidewalk ... taxi driver steps up from behind the cab, bullet proof vest has a few lead slugs hanging, dropping off ... driver has a big smile showing shark-like teeth and says, "I wouldn't leave home without my bullet proof vest." ... as he reloads his .357.

In this day and age, with the interest and criminal fees, charges, fines on credit cards, everyone is cutting them up and attempting to crawl out from under thousands of dollars of debit ...

I think that would pretty well limit the number of taxis which could make a go of it ... in NYC that just might work ... still, I think a big portion of their business probably comes from people who have lost all their credit cards ...

I know a lot of credit checks I am running on potential renters/lessees

"The document posted on the web alleged to be and wrongly referred to as Obamaï¿½s birth certificate is titled CERTIFICATION OF LIVE BIRTH, and only certifies a baby was born. The purpose of the Certification is to provide documentation for those babies and children who do not have a real birth certificate because they were born at home or outside the country without benefit of a hospital or doctor. When there is no proof of hospital or doctor it proves nothing, just the information attested to by the person filling out the application for a certified document. Well, actually, I don't know -- because I don't know where "here" is.
Furthermore, in many big city metropolitan areas, they are LAYING OFF

Well, thanks for that!

However, this is a NG. I do it for fun. My posts of spur of the minute, off the top of my head, express real thoughts and beliefs and facts and truths as I realize them to be. I don't spend much time on them as they are just a "hobby."

If it appears I put that much effort into them, great! But, even a letter to the editor, or an email/letter to my congressman/senator -- state or federal, gets much more thought!

I don't belittle nor minimize the unemployment problem(s.) Unemployment it at 18%+, admitted (probably notable higher in reality.)

But, it mainly affects older workers, less educated workers, etc. I am semi-retired and only have minimal duties in my own business ... I am working towards full retirement, but have to shut myself down in an orderly manner for best tax effects and the effects of other assuming the business assets ... so, I probably am not as sharp on all this and the new changes happening as those having a more active role ...

Hey, chill dude!

Another indication of the fear, protectionism and disinformation swirling around the the valid "Certificate of Live Birth" and its' strange absense, is Donald Trump falling from "Medias' Favorite Child" to personal attack target!

Almost every media piece is now targeted in a negative point towards Trump.

The valid "Certificate of Live Birth", now worth millions just in the cost of keeping it hidden, is still, strangely, missing ...

You usually find this when criminals are in the process of investigation. The only statement which is relevant, and stated by obama/soetoro:

"The only people who don't want to disclose the truth are people with something to hide."

Meanwhile, the battles between the good guys and bad guys continue:

I think that is great, citing the supreme court, if I am not mistaken some ruling of theirs also makes it mandatory that both parents of the person in question must have been American citizens at the childs' birth ...

I don't believe obamas' father (probably the one he claims, maybe not) was NOT an American citizen ... and, I don't think he ever applied nor became an American citizen ...

Great job of disinformation and attempting to divert argument/debate ...

However, the Constitution STILL requires proof obama was a natural born citizen, or born on American soil ... most likely, American territories, possessions, military bases, etc. would also be deemed satisfactory under close scrutiny ...

and, obama fails on these, all of them, and more ...

Even worse, even IF obama HAD BEEN born an American citizen ... his schooling in indonesia would have required him to have given up his American citizenship and to have reapplied for citizenship when he returned to his country ... I doubt he ever made that application ... but, worse yet, even if he did, he would still be in question as to his eligibility as president ...

We stand at the very tip of the iceberg on obama with the "birther" argument in its' present state ...

This is why to even let the question into court is certain death for obama!

I think Corsis' book also will cover all this ... YOU REALLY WILL NEED TO READ THAT BOOK!

Hawaii Again Declares Obama Birth Certificate Real

Published July 28, 2009 | AP

HONOLULU -- State officials in Hawaii on Monday said they have once again checked and confirmed that President Barack Obama was born in Hawaii and is a natural-born American citizen, and therefore meets a key constitutional requirement for being president.

They hoped to stem a recent surge in the number of inquiries about Obama's birthplace.

"I ... have seen the original vital records maintained on file by the Hawaii State Department of Health verifying Barack Hussein Obama was born in Hawaii and is a natural-born American citizen," Health Director Dr. Chiyome Fukino said in a brief statement. "I have nothing further to add to this statement or my original statement issued in October 2008 over eight months ago."

So-called "birthers" -- who claim Obama is ineligible to be president because, they argue, he was actually born outside the United States -- have grown more vocal recently on blogs and television news shows.

Fukino issued a similar press release Oct. 31, but was prompted to speak out again because of the renewed attention on Obama's beginnings. Hawaii's Health Department has been flooded in recent weeks with questions from individuals and several national TV news networks asking for proof that Obama was indeed born in Hawaii.

"They just keep asking over and over and over again," Health Department spokeswoman Janice Okubo said.

The Constitution states that a person must be a "natural-born citizen" to be eligible for the presidency. Birthers contend that Obama's birth certificate is a fake, and many say he was actually born in Kenya, his father's homeland. They've challenged his citizenship in court.

One widely circulated YouTube clip of a town hall meeting showed a Republican congressman getting booed for saying Obama is a citizen. Talk show host Rush Limbaugh and CNN's Lou Dobbs have also raised the issue, and 10 Republican members of Congress co-sponsored a bill that would require future presidential candidates to provide a copy of their original birth certificate.

However, it appears Congress has moved on and has accepted Obama's island birthplace. The U.S. House on Monday unanimously approved a resolution recognizing and celebrating the 50th anniversary of Hawaii becoming the 50th state. A clause was included that reads: "Whereas the 44th President of the United States, Barack Obama, was born in Hawaii on August 4, 1961."

State law bars the release of a certified birth certificate to anyone who does not have a tangible interest.

However, Obama's birth certificate along with birth notices from the two Honolulu newspapers were brought forward even before he took office. But that's done nothing to shake the belief by many Obama critics that the president was born abroad.

So we are teaching our children at a very young age to not be responsible for themselves. they no longer have to worry that something they might ingest could harm them. /they can blindfold themselves as toddlers, go out into the world and stuff anything in their mouths that they can grasp in their little hands. the US Department of Agriculture (or whoever) will make sure they can't poison themselves. And so it goes. When they are adults, they will, thinkj the same way. The good liberals will take care of them. Their government will save for their retirement, choose their educations, jobs, places to live, clother to wear, cars to drive, food to eat, health care plans and everything else. So all they will have to do is follow the simple instructions, and live in whatever padded cell the government chooses for them. And, the best part is that they will call it freedom!

Yeah, before he scammed illegally into office he was all about, I will end the wars, I will improve the economy, I will create jobs, etc., etc.

I will agree with you, if I didn't know obama had criminally stolen the office, I'd still think bush was president.

Do you find the smallest disagreement with my conclusion(s?)

There is no requirement that he come up with anything called a

What he has produced is the only type of birth document issued by the

The guy is a moron.

A "certificate" is a "document testifying to the truth of something."

A "certification" is a "certified statement." A "certified statement" is a statement that is confirmed formally as true, accurate, or genuine.

Therefore, there is no difference whatsoever between a "Certificate of Live Birth" and a "Certification of Live Birth."

There is overwhelming evidence that Obama is a natural born American and there is no evidence that he is not.

A "Certificate of Live Birth" is the same as a "Certification of Live Birth." They are identical in form and content.

You might compare that with the number of lives lost on 9-11. Or the economic injury incurred from that event.
It would have been cheaper in both lives and money to just suffer another 9-11 every six or seven years.

His long form certificate is the property of the State of Hawaii. There is no way for Obama or anybody else to request a copy of it. The only document issued by the State of Hawaii is an abstract of the original document called a "Certification of Live Birth." This document contains information from the original long form document, the raised seal of the State of Hawaii, and a statement of its accuracy signed by the Registrar of the State of Hawaii. According to the laws of the State of Hawaii, this document is to be treated in all matters as if it were the original long form document. Therefore, in accordance with the full faith and credit clause of the Constitution, this document proves that Obama was born in the U.S.

Day Brown was born on a farm in Dresseville Township MN, Aug 1,1939, as Dale Braun. But then when Julia Braun got married, they doctored the birth certificate to match her husband's name, Brown.

If you calculate it, you see he was conceived Oct 31, 1938, which is the night Orson Well's "War of the Worlds" premeired on the radio. It does net seem that Julia knew the sperm donor well. Harvey Jones took her to Texas, but she left him to give birth on the farm, and he has not been seen since. His parents lived at Kewatin MN.

OH NO!

The obvious scams and lies are much worse than that!

obama claims he was born at the Kapi'olani Medical Center for Women and Children in Honolulu, Hawaii.

Problem is, snopes and other of these debunker whackos are claiming he was born Queen's Medical Center in Honolulu, Hawaii.

READ HERE:

Liberty Net: April 16, 2011

http://3950.net/2011/04/liberty-net-april-16-2011/

by Kevin Strom, WB4AIO

A HUGE RAIN AND WIND storm enveloped eastern North America on Saturday, sent static into the ionosphere, and knocked down antennas ï¿½ including N2IRJï¿½s low-noise Beverage. But back-ups were brought into play within an hour and the longest-running discussion net on amateur radio ï¿½ the Liberty Net ï¿½ brought its hallmark intellectual excitement to the airwaves in excellent form.

Hereï¿½s a small sampling of some of the subjects brought up this time:

ï¿½ In Chicagoï¿½s schools, students are now forbidden to bring lunches from home. Unless they have medical exemptions, students must buy government-provided lunches ï¿½ brown bags from home will be confiscated. (18 minutes)

ï¿½ Why is the regime in Washington spending $20 million on a Pakistani version of Sesame Street? Since the US version of the show was a pioneer in brainwashing children to accept multiracialism, the reason for the funding is doubtlessly to push some kind of propaganda. (1 hour 16 minutes)

ï¿½ A Black councilwoman in Detroit recently claimed that ï¿½Detroit invented the middle classï¿½ by originating shorter work weeks and high wages, and that therefore the US taxpayer ï¿½owesï¿½ the Detroit underclass at least $1 billion. It wasnï¿½t the underclass that invented these underpinnings of the middle class, though: They were created by Henry Ford and other members of Americaï¿½s founding stock. (1 hour 18 minutes)

ï¿½ There is no more chance of the current Congress passing a balanced budget than there would be if they were replaced by a Congress of baboons ï¿½ and maybe they should be. (2 hours 4 minutes)

ï¿½ With inflation and taxes factored in, many dollar-denominated debt instruments, both public and private, now have a negative yield. Time to bail out! (2 hours 10 minutes)

ï¿½ Both France and India now have commercially viable autos that run on compressed air. Why arenï¿½t these cars available in the US? (2 hours 20 minutes)

ï¿½ Has someone been whispering in Glenn Beckï¿½s ear, suggesting a possible run for political office? (2 hours 37 minutes)

ï¿½ Why do the mass media ï¿½ including Murdochï¿½s Fox News ï¿½ almost completely ignore the burgeoning Ron Paul movement, acting as if it doesnï¿½t exist? (2 hours 40 minutes)

ï¿½ Why, in the midst of the worst financial calamity since 1929 and the highest deficit in history, is no one questioning our hugely bloated military budget, which dwarfs that of most of the world combined? (2 hours 49 minutes)

ï¿½ In Switzerland, where the people have retained the right to rule through referenda, it has been decided that individuals have the absolute right to keep automatic machine guns in their homes, and it is now unconstitutional to erect a minaret. (3 hours 39 minutes)

Remember that you can receive the Liberty Net in the area of 3950 kHz and above (usually above 3962 in recent weeks to escape DRM interference) every Saturday night at 10PM Eastern Time ï¿½ or listen live on the Internet via N2SAG or N2IRJ. And you can listen at your leisure via the mp3 files posted here at http://3950.net every week. Each Saturday nightï¿½s mp3 file is usually posted on the next morning ï¿½ Sunday ï¿½ and will be visible that day in the upper right column of this site.

Once again, thanks to W1WCR for running this important and historic discussion net, and thanks also to N2IRJ for making these recordings available.

Been there, done that, used galena crystals, razor blades, corroded metals, etc. as detectors as a young boy. Wound the coils on old oatmeal tubes and made coaxial caps out of copper pipe sections with "tromboned" sections and were insulated by a sheet of thin plastic wrapped around the inner pipe, or just waxed paper if that was all which was available. Or, a variable cap stolen from some old military surplus equipment ...

Then tube regens, transistor and finally ICs ...

Electronics, SW listening, and do-it-yourself projects were a great hobby into my teens ... mostly forgotten when the first girl friend came along ... later, degrees and employment in the field ...

Aquariums and SW radios, computer equip, etc. still fills the hobby rooms here and spills over into the living room and bedroom ...

Does the air magically compress itself, to run the car? What makes more sense about using power to compress the air to run the car on than to just use the energy directly to run the car.

I mean, idiots with electric cars, whose batteries are charged by burning oil to run generators to charge the batteries appear like fools to me also.

In one particular case, that was part of one opinion.

No more proof than any of the other 43 who came before him. No less proof, but no more proof either. And AIR he's the only president who published ANY copy of his birth certificate.

>or born on American soil

That's not sufficient - one has to also be subject to the jurisdiction of the US. (For instance, a diplomat's child, born in the US while the diplomat is serving here, isn't a citizen.)

>and, obama fails on these, all of them, and more ...

Not on having one parent a citizen who'd spent at least 5 years on US soil. His mother was born in Wichita, and spent most of her life here before he was born.

Not by US law if he was a child. You can't renounce citizenship until you're 21. Your parents can't renounce it for you.

Common sense is good for spreading butter on bread and deciding that it would be better to hold a cup of water upright instead of upside down. For anything more complex than that, it's about useless.

No, it doesn't compress itself, but there are many ways to charge batteries and compress air, some of which will still be viable even in a catastrophic economic breakdown -- but only one or two ways to fuel a gasoline engine.

Given a few years to work out the short-term dislocations caused by a military cutback, I think we would all be _much_ better off with people working for good and productive and progressive purposes, instead of making perpetual war on Israel's real and imagined enemies and murdering them on a mass scale (and recruiting ten times

N2IRJ's antenna came down in a storm, so the signals weren't as good on the temporary backup antenna. It's being worked on.

Yes, well, let's get those boys home, keep 'em out of unemployment lines and put 'em on the boarders where the real invaders and enemies are, the wetbacks causing unemployment problems and 3rd world conditions, here, in the first place! Coast guard could use a few ships/boats and some of

Yes, I agree ... we need ROTC classes in high school with excellent weapon training programs. When the students graduate, they need to be issues a good pistol and an assault rifle. They should be required to maintain it in a good condition and be ready to be called up as local militias to meet any threat(s) on American shores. They should feel patriotic, proud and an important part of America!

Well, he certainly would make a great "Screaming Queen", wouldn't he/she/it?

But, your question, that is hard to say. Is there a checkbox which states, "All of the above?" If so, I'd pick that one, just to be sure I have it covered!

Taxis are for tourists . Yellow cabs are too damn expensive . If you buy property which has a garage /parking it costs little or nothing at all . The quickest way around is by subway .

There are 26 various mixed use bridges and 4 major tunnels connecting Manhattan to the outside world . Also, there is a multitude of dedicated subterranean/underwater tunnels for subways and other railways as well . There is no fee to cross Brooklyn Bridge . No trucks , though .

MWB ?

Did you ask both Eton Corp and Tecsun China :

?IF? The Grundig Satellt 750 Whip Antenna would work ?

Note : The GS800M's Whip Antenna Extends 57" out-of the Body of the Radio.

The GS800M's Whip Antenna relative to other smaller Whip Antennas is Large :
Plus it has a built-in Pre-Amp {Pre-Selector}
So It does qualify as an Active Antenna.

I found that a piece of Wire Clipped to the Tip of the GS800M's Whip Antenna worked OK provided that the Wire was not too long.
-roughly- 2 X 57" : 9 Ft to 11 Ft

Sorry -if- the Issue is restoring the GS800M to Original :
I know that nothing less than the Original Factory Whip Antenna will do. :-{

Try Searching eBay Weekly for "Grundig Satellit Parts" may be something will come-up there in time.

Thanks for the reference -- an interesting article.

Please note that the article clearly points out TWO SEPARATE ISSUES, the park and the dictator. I thought that I was very clear that my main concern was the "dictator" issue, and on this it seems that the author of the article, Julie Mack, and I are in complete agreement. She says:

"What happened last week: Harris notified the Benton Harbor City Commission and other city boards that he's using the revamped law to assume dictatorial powers over city operations."

"That certainly is causing a stir. But it's a separate issue from the controversy involving Jean Klock Park."

"Are there reasons to be upset about what's happening in Benton Harbor? Absolutely."

Final note: Please realize that although Harris was appointed by the Democrat Granholm, he got his dictatorial powers from Snyder, the Republican. THAT is the issue. This is America and, spin it any way you want, WE AMERICANS DON'T WANT NO STINKIN' DICTATOR!

If it is a political enemy, then "lusting in your heart" is subject to condemnation.

If it is a political friend, then having affairs while impeaching a President for sexual dalliances is admirable. After all, hypocrisy in the defnese of conservatism is no vice.

ABSO-FRACKIN-LOOTLY!

We elect (hire) these damn fools to carry out our business and represent us to the world -- PUBLIC SERVANTS, AND OUR EMPLOYEES!

If they bastards don't do a proper job for us, and we DO NEED a way of checking on that, we need to kick their stinky, self serving, arses out of those offices!

Who would even hire an employee and let them work unsupervised? Who would hire an employee and let them run their business until broke, impoverished, are hated by the world, and losing their homes and business?

Really, if these guys can't see something wrong with that, they need shot and put our of their misery -- along with the criminal, treasonous and corrupt public servants, from the president on down to local dog catcher!

Maybe I should wait and let your mommy and daddy tell you ...

However, I'd say straight sex (missionary, doggy, hanging from a ceiling light, etc.), oral, anal, hand-job, and stick anything kinky here.

Damn fool ... the VERY PROVABLE blow-job clinton, by moron monica, certainly qualifies!

Unfortunately, the video, and its' analysis by experts, only gives proof to our military/police firing on victims of compound fleeing the fires, and fires breaking out AFTER the buildings are under destruction by tanks ... I am speaking of the Waco/Davidian video rules of engagement ...

It is quite obvious, the only real success flight of criminals involved those fleeing the blind lady of justice!

You have pointed out one very important concept/action which you frequently see being implemented.

That of a criminal to quickly point out the complete absence of any evidence, fact or witness to his crime(s.)

And, seems to always be true ... no matter if none does exist, little exists or a preponderance exists!

There was this old guy feeling under the weather. So, he consulted with a doctor. After all the test, the doctor returned to the man, stating, "The tests are inconclusive. Return here tomorrow at 11am for a shot of potent antibiotics."

The man returned home to await the time of his appointment. Meanwhile, three germs in the mans body, who were the cause of the mans' illness, had heard the doctor. And, they spoke amongst themselves, the first saying, "I will hide behind the heart, I think myself safe there."

The second spoke, saying, "I will hide behind the liver, surely I will be safe there."

The third replied, "You are morons! I am taking the 10:10am outta' here!"

Holds some truth, manning was/is looking like his actions are in the peoples' best interests.

However, nothing wrong with capitalism, unless it is implemented with system of courts, laws, rules, regulations, licenses, etc. where a select group are given unfair advantage over others ... which is the exact criminal system which has replaced true capitalism here in the USA. And, has been implement by the assistance of our public servants.

I must disagree, and see the only two possible explanations are our public servants with nano-thermite and controlled demolitions OR illegal aliens with advanced technology.

And, after careful consideration, and much thought, I favor the criminal public servants with the false flag operation ...

Barack Hussein Obama (Senator Obama's father) was born on the shores of Lake Victoria in Alego, Kenya. He met and married an American woman, Ann Dunham of Wichita, Kansas, while they were both attending the University of Hawaii. Their son, also named Barack Hussein Obama, was born on 4 August 1961 at the Kapiolani Medical Center in Honolulu, Hawaii. (News accounts have also variously reported his birth as having occurred at Queen's Medical Center in Honolulu.)

Yes. Well, patriot Americans already know there is no reason to participate in this criminal government, nor give it any respect. They are also intelligent to not get caught doing so ...

I think his fellow corrupt criminals wouldn't even bother. They have no respect for the average American, his wants, needs, demands, vote, etc. They would just ignore it or have the supreme court back them up with misinterpretations of the Constitution!

This would be good. I would also like him to be tried for his crimes while illegally occupying the public servant position of president! Even make restitution of his wages illegally obtained, his perks, retirement, use of tax payer money in hiding his records, etc.

Well, might be, though I'd like to see some statistics.

At any rate, even if it were true, it would be PRIVATE SECTOR unions, not PUBLIC SECTOR unions that were responsible.

Yeah, my bigotry towards crime and the criminals which are perpetrating it makes me dangerous to criminals ... they think I need to be dealt with!

Chit! I actually think the criminals should be forced to obey the laws, even to the point of using deadly force!

Krist, why do you think I carry a weapon?

Truth is, the COLB is an official document issued by the State of Hawaii.

Yes, it does. In fact, it was a true statement if one defines "sexual relations" as "sexual intercourse."

It wasn't a lie. Neither Clinton nor Lewinsky believed that they had engaged in "sexual relations."

Colanth - Ah One Person {Legal} With Standing !

How About 50 or More Persons All With "Legal-Standing" :
One in each and every US County ...and... Forming a Democrat Voters Class Action Across a State !

How About 50 Separate and Independent State Class Actions by Registered Democratic Voters Across the whole Nation : Yes one in each and every US State . . .
-hint- Raising-the-Question : Is Obama Legal ?
-and- Creating Voter Doubt : Is Obama Qualified ?
-plus- Asking... HAS OBAMA DONE A GOOD JOB ? ? ?
-therefore- Influencing the Voters by 1%,,, 2%... 3% ! ! !
1% voter shift may not change the election,,,
2% Voter shift might change the Election...
3% Voter Shift Will Change The Election ! ! !
Again This Will Be Happening In Each and Every of the 50 US States -here-is-how-
1st - Your so-called 'Birthers' are ready to Challenge the Obama Birth Certificate Issue in each and Every US State in in the Primary {Party} Elections; and again in the State General Elections too.
http://groups.google.com/group/rec.radio.shortwave/msg/b73a74c7b3d32061

2nd - 'Birthers' are right now Registering as Democrats so that they have Legal Standing in the individual State Primary {Party} Elections to Challenge the Obama Birth Certificate Issue and Natural Born Citizen Status.
http://groups.google.com/group/rec.radio.shortwave/msg/b73a74c7b3d32061
3rd - That is 50 individual US States with 50 Secretaries of State {Election Officials} each with the Independent Duty, Responsibility and Legal Authority to make a Determination whether Obama can Legally "Be" on the Ballot in their respective US States.
-and- Some of those 50 State Secretaries of State
{State Election Officials} are Elected Republicans
-with- Elected Republican Governors
-plus- State Legislatures Controlled by Republicans
-also- State Majority Elected US House Members
-that-something-extra- Two Republican US Senators
-oops- Conservative {Republican} State Judges & Courts too
http://groups.google.com/group/rec.radio.shortwave/msg/b73a74c7b3d32061
4th - Remember the US Presidential Election is really 50 Separate, Individual, and Independent State Elections that is then Aggregated by/into the Electoral College.
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Electoral_College_%28United_States%29
http://groups.google.com/group/rec.radio.shortwave/msg/b73a74c7b3d32061
5th - Second Each of these US State Electoral College Delegations has the Right to Put any and all Election Issues before the Confirmation Vote by the Joint Session of the US Congress.
http://groups.google.com/group/rec.radio.shortwave/msg/b73a74c7b3d32061
NOTE : All it takes is One (1) US House Member and One (1) US Senator to put any Issue to a Vote.
-wrt- The Obama Birth Certificate Issue and Obama's Natural Born Citizen Status. -it-just-takes-two-!- http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Electoral_College_%28United_States%29#Joint_session_of_Congre

6th - It is Only the US House of Representative Members who get to Vote in the 'Contingent' Presidential Election by House
http://groups.google.com/group/rec.radio.shortwave/msg/b73a74c7b3d32061

WHY SHOULD YOU BELIEVE A "REAL" BIRTH CERTIFICATE SINCE IT IS A GOVERNMENT DOCUMENT ALSO?

and by this time, I could argue if I were a "birther" which I am not, that Hawaii would have people in place to forge such an original document as agents of the Obama conspiracy itself, and secondarily for the pride of having a son of Hawaii be President!

"The document posted on the web alleged to be and wrongly referred to as Obamaï¿½s birth certificate is titled CERTIFICATION OF LIVE BIRTH, and only certifies a baby was born. The purpose of the Certification is to provide documentation for those babies and children who do not have a real birth certificate because they were born at home or outside the country without benefit of a hospital or doctor. When there is no proof of hospital or doctor it proves nothing, just the information attested to by the person filling out the application for a certified document.
This is one of the biggest lies promulgated by people ignorant of the facts such as Bill Oï¿½Reilly and Megyn Kelly of FOX who continue to claim that what is posted on the internet is the real deal."

"The document posted on the web alleged to be and wrongly referred to as Obamaï¿½s birth certificate is titled CERTIFICATION OF LIVE BIRTH, and only certifies a baby was born. The purpose of the Certification is to provide documentation for those babies and children who do not have a country without benefit of a hospital or doctor. When there is no proof of hospital or doctor it proves nothing, just the information attested to by the person filling out the application for a certified document.

Put up or shut up. A real "certificate" and NOT a "certification" or you are just wasting our time.

The Constitution commands higher proof than the certification, which can be scammed, and was even easier to scam back in 1961.

"The document posted on the web alleged to be and wrongly referred to as Obamaï¿½s birth certificate is titled CERTIFICATION OF LIVE BIRTH, and only certifies a baby was born. The purpose of the Certification is to provide documentation for those babies and children who do not have a

The intelligent and informed who are able to understand the Constitution and the laws and manipulations around this whole scam will know a real birth certificate when they see one ...

The scams have all been run, the manipulations have all been attempted
... time for the real birth certificate.

However, if enough states can pass laws requiring the government public servants to obey existing Constitutional law, obama (soetoro) will be disqualified from elections in those states, at least!

The BC may be valid but it may have some embarrassing info on it.
Like a different father than the one obama claims. Obama wrote a book about the man he claims to be his birth father and if that turned out to be a lie, no one would believe anything he said again.

9/11 was an inside job, 3000+ Americans bodies who were obliterated in controlled demolitions carried out by factors in our own government, by our own public servants.

Because we didn't demand truth and justice at the Waco Crimes, it has only gotten worse and BIGGER.

If we don't fix it here, this will only revisit us in the future!

What next time, instead of thousands, like this time, next 10s of thousands, hundreds of thousands, millions?

I say the line in the sand is drawn now ...

But then, I don't think you have a Hawaiian birth certificate either!

I'll even go further, bet you weren't born in Kenya like obama either!

Ummm, the logic of that is a bit faulty.

A false president could do nothing less than sign false documents. The very signing of the document(s) in question effectively render the document false!

But, since our public servants caught in crime are rarely prosecuted, at least satisfactorily, the rest of your text is up for grabs, as far as the outcome is concerned ...

If this story is true, whatï¿½s Barackï¿½s true name? I think, if he never Standing has nothing to do with evidence. I can't sue you for encroaching on your neighbor's yard, even if I have absolute proof and 10 clergypeople as witnesses. I have no standing. Your neighbor can sue you if all he has is circumstantial evidence.

JS,

As to 'Why' Both US Parties Do Not 'Trust' Sarah Palin : The Party {The Apparatus} Does Not 'Trust'

What It Can Not Control and This Leads The Party
as an Organization To Aggressive Action To Control or Crush That Which It Does Not Trust.

Actually to some degree both the Democrats* and the Republicans Both Do Not 'Trust' Sarah Palin.

?WHY? Because Palin is a more of a Populist :
Then the Creation of Either Party. The Creations of a Political Party Can Be Controlled by the Party.

While a Populist with-in or with-out the Party can only have their Role Shaped and Defined by one a/o both Parties; which is a lessor more limited from of control.

* Democrats ~ Liberals ~ The Left Democrat True Creations of 'The Party : Obama, Kerry, Gore, Dukakis, Mondale, Humphrey, Johnson, Kennedy, Stevenson
-lessor-creations- Clinton, Carter, McGovern
Note : The only notable Democrat who was a Populist was Huey Long.
 Republicans ~ Conservatives ~ The Right Republican True Creations of 'The Party :
McCain, Bush2, Dole, Bush1, Ford, Nixon
-lessor-creations- Goldwater, Eisenhower
-semi-populists- Reagan
-wrt- Reagan most were Reagan-nites First and republicans second. {The Cult of Reagan}
and that is the way 'i' see it ~ RHF
-imho- Ron Paul also falls in to the Populist category; as does Ralph Nader and Ross Perot.

- That's why the birthtards will cry "Fake!!" if the long form is ever
- released. It gives them a way to save face, as if they really could at
- this point in time, since they've already made total idiots of
- themselves for years.

If a camera can really look through walls then police use constitutes a search which must meet the same requirements as if they cop goes into the house.

I would like to see a number put on that. At least 75% probable that there is evidence etc. there before the warrant is issued. Of course that would require teaching some probability to cops and judges.

Yup, the very same Henry Ford that abused his employees. Fired for any reason -- or no reason. His goons busting into the lavatories, ripping a guy off the pot and saying "There better be a turd in there or you're fired".

As you are obviously clueless as to why the unions came into being, it wasn't because they were sitting around on a slow day and decided to start a union, it was because of management A-B-U-S-E of labor. Please brush up on your knowledge of history.

Hate Palin? Heck, I actually agreed with her once. I agreed with her when she said "Republicans are not the party of 'No', they are the party of 'Hell no!'"

P.S
Still waiting for the "Jobs, jobs, jobs" legislation that the Repubs got elected on.

All we've seen from the Repubs so far are proposals to:

* Take money away from the EPA (our kids don't need no stinkin' clean air)

* Take money away from the FAA (Who needs airline safety?)

* Kill Medicare. We'll privatize it. (Apparently -forgetting- that Medicare was brought in to being because the private insurance industry would not insure senior citizens).

The party of "Hell No", indeed. Quitter Palin is right on the mark. You go, girl!

I just purchased the LF engineering H-900 active antenna I am using it with the Elecraft K3 radio's sub receiver. I have mounted the antenna in the attic as I live in a condo townhouse and out door antennas are prohibited. Here is what is happening, I switch the gain switch to position my received signal goes down and in some cases disappears. I was under the impression with this switched on the signals would increase?

"The document posted on the web alleged to be and wrongly referred to as

Just how would you presume to place a number on THAT.

What constitutes "75%" or whatever probability? However would you compute that?

peace and justice,

If a camera can really look through walls then police use constitutes a search which must meet the same requirements as if they cop goes into the house.

I would like to see a number put on that. At least 75% probable that there is evidence etc. there before the warrant is issued. Of course that would require teaching some probability to cops and judges.

It's been at least a decade, maybe two, since cops have even needed a warrant to search your property. It's been "legal" for them to barge in and get a warrant after the fact (they're SUPPOSED to have to show cause why
